WPA Chief Opens Drive On Southern Farm Poverty

Hopkins Launches First Step in Roosevelt Aid Program.

Tells Aides to Add 200,000 to Rolls

Sees Permanent Policy to Raise Incomes in 11 States.

By the Associated Press.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 5.—Inauguration of a permanent program of between-season employment for needy farmers was announced here tonight by Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, as the first step of President Roosevelt's "frontal attack" on the South's inequality of income.

Hopkins, in an address prepared for nation-wide broadcast, said he came today to talk with State and regional administrators of 11 Southern States in which diets for thousands consist of "grits, greens and gravy."

He said he discussed with the administrators "measures the WPA can take to further the President's purposes," after previously giving them authority to add a total of 200,000 persons to WPA rolls pending the time when labor would be needed for picking cotton.

Plans to Avoid "Stigma."

"We intend to close out this employment in picking time, and to open it up again when the harvest is over," Hopkins said.

He said there were thousands of Southerners in rural areas not earning an adequate income from agriculture.

"I believe, therefore, as a matter of permanent policy the head of every farm family whose income is inadequate should be given employment a few months each year to supplement his agricultural income," Hopkins said. He added that while he intended to see the jobs went to needy, he proposed to modify the procedure of certification for work "and to substitute in its place an employment system which will remove the offensive stigma of relief from these people."

This "supplementary work," Hopkins pointed out, is not a "final answer," but "I am convinced that any permanent satisfactory solution is going to be a long time in the making."

Sees South "Handicapped."

"If the per capita net income of farm families in the South could be brought up to the level of farmers' incomes in the rest of the country, the pool of new purchasing power thus created would absorb twice as many goods as we exported to all foreign countries in 1935," he said.

Miss Hayes, Stage Star, and Husband To Adopt Baby Boy

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Aug. 5.—Charles MacArthur, author, and his wife, Actress Helen Hayes, soon will adopt a year-old baby boy, MacArthur revealed today at his home at Nyack, N. Y. The MacArthurs already have one child, Mary, 8 years old.

MacArthur wouldn't say where the boy is now and to whom he belongs. Mrs. Catherine Brown, Miss Hayes' mother, said: "It's the grandest thing in the world. He's a very handsome baby."

Miss Hayes is vacationing in southern Maryland and will return to New York in about a week, when adoption papers probably will be taken out, Mrs. Brown said.

Boy, Fleeing Heat, Drowned In Wading Pool

Summer's highest humidity smothered Washington and its suburbs yesterday and lured a 7-year-old Alexandria boy to his death in a swimming pool, while most of the Nation sweltered in mounting temperatures.

About the time the humidity reached its height, .83 at noon, with the temperature at 80, Charles Bradley, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bradley, of 26 East Maple street, Alexandria, wandered to the municipal pool, which was not scheduled to open until 2 o'clock because of the heavy rain.

Apparently he climbed the fence surrounding the wading pool, where his mother had taken him several times. He removed his clothes and plunged from the fence into the deep end and 10 feet of water.

Meanwhile, two boys saw Charles' trousers hanging to the fence. The youngsters, Elton Strickland, 14, and Albert Simpson, 16, told police, who located Harry Rudd, superintendent of the pool.

When Rudd, two life guards and the police entered the pool they spotted Charles' body on the bottom.

Charles is survived by his parents and two brothers, David, 6, and Donald, 4.

Child Car Toll Here Arouses Civic Groups

Southeastern 'Indignation' Rally Urges More Playgrounds.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Official and civic Washington, shocked to its senses by the horror of recent juvenile traffic slaughters, rallied to support of the city's newest drive on death yesterday and clamored loudly for action.

Even as the name of another victim was added to the steadily mounting fatality list and casualties continued to fill hospital emergency rooms, citizens and police organized for a mass attack on the District's appalling traffic problem.

In Southeast Washington, representatives of business and welfare organizations were joined by residents of the community in a move to draft safety plans. It was literally an "indignation" meeting, and citizens throughout the city were urged to follow suit.

At Police Headquarters yesterday members of the traffic division were spurred to greater safety efforts in a punch-packed roll-call talk by Lieut. Robert Pierce, acting commander. He told his men that the nine children killed since June 4 represented last year's entire child fatality toll, and issued rigid orders for the enforcement of all traffic regulations.

In line with his earlier order instructing policemen to clear the streets of unattended youngsters, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, instructed his commanding officers to conduct a city-wide survey to determine suitable streets

Once more The Post has cause for pride in its readers—and for gratitude. Their generosity proved to 100 of Washington's underprivileged children that somebody cares about their plight.

The fund of slightly more than $1,500 has been turned over to the Council of Social Agencies, which selected the boys and girls who stood in greatest need of vacations. With the money, the council will be able to send the 100 to camp for two weeks.

That two weeks will be more than a vacation for those 100 children. It will be a surcease from a dusty life in crowded tenements.

Instead of using the streets for a playground, these children, for two weeks, will be out in the wind and sand, experiencing the sort of life that they have never known existed.

And for two weeks these children will be safe from the traffic that has taken the lives of nine like them during the last two months.

Recommended by the District's welfare agencies, every child suffers from health or emotional problems which make a change in en-

Kentucky Votes Today.

By the Associated Press.

Louisville, Aug. 5.—Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler and Senator Alben Barkley tonight closed with huge rallies the furious campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination on which New Deal prestige was hazarded when President Roosevelt gave Barkley his blessing in three speeches.

Foreshadowing possibilities of an intensely bitter election day tomorrow, a murder warrant accused Barkley's campaign chairman in "bloody Breathitt" County of shooting Chandler's campaign manager and of killing his brother.

Senator Barkley concluded his campaign today with a "barnstorming" motorcade through the First Congressional District. He visited 10 towns and climaxed his drive for votes with a big rally in his home town of Paducah.

445,000 Eligible Voters.

Gov. Chandler made two speeches today and two tonight. There was a big Chandler rally at the University of Kentucky Stadium at Lexington. The Governor will conclude his campaigning with a radio speech early in the morning.

Barkley's leaders said he would win by a majority of approximately 75,000. Chandler's men claim his victory will be by about 30,000 votes. Approximately 445,000 Democrats are eligible to vote.

Barkley, the Roosevelt majority leader in the Senate, has the personal backing of the President, who came to Kentucky and in three speeches pointed to Barkley as the man he wished nominated.

Chandler, while claiming personal friendship with the President, has opposed some of the New Deal policies. He frequently has attacked Barkley for "running on someone's coattails."

Reich Maneuvers Will Bring Million Men Under Arms

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Maneuvers to be held throughout the Reich this season will bring under arms more than 1,000,000 of the regular and reserve units of the German army, not including the Air Corps. Reserve divisions will play a conspicuous role in the war games for the first time since the World War.

The Deutschewehr, the military weekly, announced that, with a view to creating conditions resembling those of war time, the reserve units called up would be equipped in part with horses, motor vehicles and the like, commandeered temporarily from the civilian population.

The full force of more than a million men will not be under arms at one time, but maneuvers are to be "staggered."

Czech Parley Delayed.

By Walter Kerr.

Special Cable to The Post.

Prague, Aug. 5.—A significant step toward a satisfactory settlement of Czechoslovakia's dispute with its Sudeten German minority, was taken today when Lord Runciman, on his second day at work as British mediator, postponed direct negotiations between the two sides for at least two weeks.

Time is an important factor in an effort to prevent the dispute from turning into open conflict and the delay which Lord Runicman obtained today may serve to keep it on ice for a month or more. He is understood to have explained that in order to deal with the question of minorities, he must understand it, and to understand it he must study it.

Direct negotiations between Czech and Sudeten leaders were to have begun on Wednesday, as a result of Sudeten efforts to hurry them along. They were postponed for a few days because of Lord Runciman's arrival. Meanwhile, Lord Runciman and members of his staff conferred separately with representatives of both sides.

Only one fact clouded an otherwise clear day in Prague. After patiently withstanding an anti-Czech campaign in the German press, the Czech government thrust back tonight. In a statement issued by Ceteka, the government's press bureau, the Czechs answered a German attack which began two days ago, when three Czech planes flew over German territory. They pointed out that on at least three occasions—and they gave names and dates—German planes had not only flown over Czech territory, but had landed on Czech military airdromes.

"Nevertheless," said the Czechs, "this foreign propaganda refuses to admit that loss of position is a reason for planes involuntarily crossing a frontier."

And in one of the three cases it cited, the Czechs pointed out that

New York, Aug. 5.—Douglas Corrigan, transatlantic "crate" flier, was put to bed for a short while tonight suffering a chest injury received, apparently, when crowds stormed his car just before his Broadway parade earlier today.

His brother, Harry, said that cartilage around the flier's breast bone had been broken and that he had been heavily taped by the Hotel McAlpin physician, Dr. William Ellsworth, but that he would go through with his schedule tonight.

At first it was believed Corrigan might be forced to remain in bed over night, but further examination proved this unnecessary—that and Corrigan's determination to complete his reception plans.

He was obviously suffering from his chest injury—but still grinning—when he started his night's schedule, which included the only private celebration of the day.

Leaving his hotel after being strapped up, he went to the New Yorker Hotel, where Mayor Adrian F. Levy, of Galveston, Tex., Corrigan's native city, gave a supper for the flier, at which only immediate friends and relatives were present.

Hears First Symphony.

From there, police convoyed Corrigan to Lewisohn Stadium, where he heard his first symphony concert. The adhesive tape kept him sitting stiffly in his chair before some 4,000 persons, and several times he asked to be excused from shaking hands because his right hurt "from shaking hands so much."

After this concert, he went to Yankee Stadium, where a crowd of approximately 30,000 had gathered for another reception, which included a few brief speeches, Irish songs and musical selections, and a variety of entertainment.

When the festivities at Yankee Stadium were over, the aviator went directly to his hotel, his good humor remaining high, and announced he was going straight to bed.

Previously, with many a quip and many a flash of Irish wit, Corrigan had passed through one of the wildest receptions New York has given

Crump Routs Gov. Browning In Tennessee

By the Associated Press.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 5.—The defeat of United States Senator George L. Berry and Gov. Gordon Browning in yesterday's Democratic primary turned into an utter rout with the tabulation of additional returns today.

A. Tom Stewart, of Winchester, won the senatorial nomination and Prentice Cooper, of Shelbyville, the gubernatorial nomination. They did it without needing the support that Shelby County (Memphis), storm center of the campaign, gave liberally.

E. H. Crump, head of the Memphis organization that backed Cooper and Stewart along with W. D. Hudson for indorsement as public utilities commissioner, let the results speak for themselves in his successful fight to beat Browning, Berry, who was Browning's appointee to the Senate, and Utilities Commissioner W. H. Turner. Browning had "no statement whatever."

Returns from 2,054 precincts out of 2,257 gave Cooper, 203,537; Browning, 142,781. In the senatorial race 2,012 precincts gave Stewart, 148,401; Berry, 87,276; Representative J. Ridley Mitchell, 62,355. Hudson led Turner 166,809 to 67,213 on the face of returns from 1,981 precincts.

The Shelby vote turned out to be virtually "all velvet" as politicians expressed it, since the Crump-indorsed candidates were in the lead when the Crump stronghold reported. Although Cooper recorded 56,213 Shelby votes to Browning's 8,992, the Governor carried one small box there and chuckled when advised of this.

Shelby gave Stewart, 54,445; Berry, 6,565, and Mitchell, 1,202. Hudson received 54,738 votes there to Turner's 2,681. The Shelby total is the largest ever recorded there. The total State vote was around 400,000.

Mrs. Caraway Faces Fight in Vote Tuesday

She Tells Arkansas Crowds 'a-Plenty,' but Race Is 'Anyone's.'

By Sidney Olson.

A Staff Correspondent.

Little Rock, Aug. 5.—There wasn't any shade anywhere in town at Hazen, Ark., today except in front of the White House, combined hotel and cafe, so Senator Hattie Caraway spoke on the steps of that peeling-painted building.

Mrs. Caraway is in a stiff fight. All over the State men say only a few thousand votes either way will decide her battle for a Senate seat with Representative McClellan, 42-year-old member of Congress, who began the study of Blackstone when he was a 10-year-old boy, who was a sod-breaking plowboy at 17, when he sought and received from the State Legislature special permission to practice law before the legal age of 21.

In the Senate Mrs. Caraway is demure, reticent, tentative in her approach. She is known as the demon letter writer of the Senate, having personally received more mail (and answered it) than any other member in years.

Tells 'Em "a-Plenty."

Here she is campaigning aggressively with the aid of a powerful Federally built machine that includes indorsement and active aid from Federal judges in each of Arkansas' key towns, the United States marshal and the State's Federal Internal Revenue collector, Homer Atkins. She told the voters "a-plenty" from the steps of the White House, she said afterward, arms akimbo, like any housewife over a back fence.

"The question of age and sex has been deliberately raised in this campaign. Like many men and women, I'm not saying how old I am. But I've done the State's work in Congress for six years and this State is the only one in the country which does not have to match Federal money with State money to get good roads," she asserted.

Blind Girl and Dog Win Stroll On London Pier Before Sailing

By Frank Kelley.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Aug. 5.—Following an appeal by Ambassador Joseph F. Kennedy, the British ministry of agriculture gave in at the last moment today and allowed Hazel Hurst, blind American girl, to set foot on English soil with her Alsatian dog guide, "Babe."

For five days Miss Hurst had been a virtual prisoner on board the liner American Merchant, tied up at Royal Albert dock in London's squalid East End because of the ministry's refusal to waive its six-month quarantine rule for imported

Late this afternoon, shortly before Miss Hurst sailed for New York on the liner, Franklin C. Gowen, one of the American consuls here, rushed to the pier in an embassy car and handed her the official permit for which she had been fighting all week.

Radiant with joy, the blind girl followed her "seeing eye" dog down the steep gangplank and for 10 minutes walked about the pier. "Babe" seemed to sense her mistress' victory and sniffed eagerly

Doctors Mobilize As Mystery Germs Kill Six in a Week

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—This city of 14,000 persons mobilized all its resources tonight to combat a mysterious disease that has taken six children's lives within the last week.

Dr. Don W. Gudakunst, State health commissioner, arrived tonight and summoned all physicians and members of his staff that have been working on the case to a conference.

Meanwhile, a seventh person, Gilbert Vogelhohl, 18, was taken to an Owosso hospital today suffering with the disease.

Members of the State health staff said the disease appears to be one of the dysenteries. A University of Michigan laboratory report said the deaths had been caused by an unknown bacterial infection that had practically eaten away the large intestine in each victim.

Sheppard Irked By Candidates' Silence on Cash

Campaign Questionnaires Show Lack of Candor, Chairman Finds.

Absence of candor by candidates for the Senate in filing their returns to the committee on investigation of campaign expenditures, prompted Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the committee, to say yesterday that the English system of presuming candidates are aware of money collected and paid out in their behalf would likely be suggested for enactment into Federal law at the next session of Congress.

The questionnaires which have been returned tend to show that running for the United States Senate is one of the cheapest of political pastimes. Some successful candidates in the primaries listed their expenditures as nothing.

There appears to be a general tendency to regard anything collected or dispensed for the candidates by others as not in the purview of the inquiry. Sheppard disagrees with this view and is out to see what can be done about strengthening the law.

Silent on Tennessee.

Senator Sheppard would make no comment today on the results of the Tennessee primary. It is known, however, that the committee has not changed its view, expressed last week, that the Tennessee political situation had the appearance of "gutter politics."

At that time it was intimated that election contests for the unseating of successful candidates might result from the full report of the committee on the Tennessee and Kentucky situations.

Chairman Sheppard today extended until Sunday the deadline for the filing of detailed expense accounts by two Ohio Republican Senatorial candidates, Robert A. Taft and Arthur H. Day. Previously the deadline had been set for Saturday, to enable the committee to make the matter public as early as possible before the Ohio primary on Tuesday.

Taft telegraphed that his return, which had been deficient on the point of contributions to others in his behalf, was in the mail.

Candidates' Reports.

Day reported a total of approximately $10,700. This compares with Taft's report of $15,674 spent by himself.

Sheridan Downey, running for the Senate from California on the Democratic, Republican, Progressive and Townsendite tickets, reported contributions of $3,435 and expenditures of $4,382.54.

A person close to the committee said yesterday that it is "ridiculous" the way candidates have, in the main, covered up the actual situation as to their receipts and disbursements.

Other returns so far filed are:

Senator Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, contributions $50, expenses nothing.

Senator McGill (Democrat), of Kansas, expenses $100.

Gov. Chandler, $1,000 expenses, no contributions.

C. I. O. Declares Labor Mission Is Girdler Idea

By the United Press.

The C. I. O. News charged editorially last night that President Roosevelt's commission to study British and Swedish labor legislation was the "brainchild" of Tom M. Girdler, Republic Steel Corporation board chairman, whom the C. I. O. described as "American labor's public enemy No. 1."

The News asserted that testimony before the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee "has now revealed where and how the idea originated," and declared that C. I. O. Chairman John L. Lewis "had good grounds for the suspicions he expressed" when the Presidential commission was proposed.

F. T. Patton, Republic general counsel who is attending the La Follette hearing, said "of course it's ridiculous." He declined to comment further.

"C. I. O. Adamant."

Lewis flatly refused to permit C. I. O. representatives to serve on the commission, despite Mr. Roosevelt's press conference denial that the study had any connection with proposed amendments to the Wagner act.

The C. I. O. said that "it will continue to stand adamant against any and all attempts to modify the minimum rights to organize and bargain collectively which are embodied in the Wagner act."

"The whole idea (of the study) had been bandied about for some time in anti-labor circles as a flank attack upon the Wagner labor relations act," the editorial said.

"It is not the main body of British labor law and practice, under which collective bargaining has long been taken for granted, that appeals to American antiunion employers. What catches their fancy is some particularly repressive features of the trade-disputes act imposed on British labor after the national general strike.

Cites Hill's Testimony.

"The Wagner act was passed to confer on American workers collective bargaining rights which their British brothers had long enjoyed without let or hindrance. But American employers who have been denying their employes such rights, hope to muddy the discussion of the subject by calling attention to foreign legislation that has no bearing on the American situation."

The editorial called attention to testimony of John W. Hill, senior partner of the firm of Hill & Knowlton, Cleveland steel publicists, before the La Follette committee. The News said that Hill testified that Girdler first suggested to him a study of the British labor laws and that Charles R. Hook, president of the National Association of Manufacturers and of the American Rolling Mill Co., was asked to help finance it.

Hook's firm now is facing Labor Board charges in hearings at Catlettsburg, Ky., and former NRA Administrator Donald R. Richberg is aiding the defense. The charges were filed by the C. I. O.'s steel workers' organizing committee.

The American Federation of Labor designated Robert J. Watts, American delegate to the International Labor office at Geneva, as its representative on the Presidential Commission.

me and screams for an investigation. I have such an innocent feeling about that whole matter that I dislike to mention it, even. But it's not true, not a word of it, and you good men and women here know it's not true."

Nudges Old Friends.

Dressed as always in severest black, relieved only by a touch of white at the throat, her only ornament the wedding ring from her late husband, Senator Thaddeus Caraway, who died in 1931, she stepped down from the rickety steps to shake hands with "the neighbors," nudging one lady and saying, "I don't know that I want to remember you. You are Mrs. Smithson, and you beat me at cards. I've played cards with everybody in this county, I think, but you beat me the most."

Mrs. Smithson went off glowing, saying she was "as strong as horseradish for Mrs. Caraway," and the Senator, serenely ignoring the romping dogs, shook hands with every voter in sight.

But "down the road a-piece" was stumping young John McClellan.

Austin Station, Ark., is a town of only a few hundred population, but its sons are solid citizens from many miles around. Every year, on August 3, 4 and 5, a three-day carnival, the old Austin reunion, is held.

Simulates His Ecstacy.

McClellan, "as edgy as a free-running colt," his eyes black hollows from making 140 speeches in 39 days, driving over 1,458 miles of Arkansas back roads, with 10 speeches to go in key spots in the States before the primary Tuesday, mounted the platform in the reunion today to tell the folks that they needed a "man" in Congress to get them Federal handouts for roads, flood control and other incidentals.

Jerking off his coat, undoing his collar and sliding down his necktie, "young John" rolled up his sleeves and went to work on the voters, getting a Bing Crosby grip on the microphone—bending it around him as he slashed the air around the platform, jumping with simulated ecstacy as he related his own achievements, modulating to a dull groan of boredom as he recounted Mrs. Caraway's accomplishments.

He shouted: "Someone in the crowd just hollered 'hurrah for Mrs. Caraway.' I'd hate to be that lonesome . . .

"I'm A-Comin' Fast."

"You people, down here don't want the bone-trusters from Boston, Mass., running you. You want to pick your own man to work for you. I was the one who got Arkansas $5,000,000 of road money without having to match it with State money. Joe Robinson started it but I did it. And I got Arkansas eight major flood control projects, dams, reservoirs, levees and $862,000 for farm-to-market roads. That's the kind of a man you need in the Senate. I may be young but I've been swinging at it hard and I'm a-comin' fast right now.

Mrs. Caraway's six years of daily personal correspondence with her constituents has borne fruit in the shape of voters. All authorities in Prairie County, near the Mississippi River agree, for instance, that she will get 700 of the 750 Democratic votes in that county. Here, however, is no such clear-cut test of the strength of a Federal machine versus a State machine as in Kentucky and in Tennessee, as McClellan has no machine but himself.

Mrs. Caraway has all the machine, managed unobtrusively by her powerful friends in Federal posts throughout the State; she has the feminine voters almost 100 per cent—she's played cards with a majority of them and written the rest—and yet.

Betting Is Careful.

McClellan is a house on fire, literally. Until a week ago his election was being quietly conceded, it is said here. A reaction set in for reasons bewildering to the politicians, and now it is anyone's race and a beauty besides.

Two weeks ago, it is also said, after a 12-county check the race of old Judge R. A. (Bob) Cook for Governor against 100-per cent Gov. Carl Bailey was conceded. But Cook has lost ground and Bailey, who has posted on each big bridge in the State the simple sign "Toll on This Bridge Removed by Carl E. Bailey, Governor," has come along swiftly. Betting money is not talking loudly here.

Tension High In Kentucky on Eve of Primary itt sheriff, was shot to death last brother, Lewis Combs, who is Chandler's Breathitt County chairman, started up the stairway leading to Barkley headquarters.

Issue Murder Warrants.

Murder warrants were issued for W. A. Combs, the Barkley county chairman; Wardie Jenkins, foreman on a WPA project, and Goebel L. Allen, Circuit Court clerk. Linville Carpenter and State Senator Ervine Turner, jr., are charged in other warrants with "aiding and assisting" in the shooting.

Lewis Combs, shot in the side, and Sheriff Walter Deaton, wounded in the shoulder, were in Good Samaritan Hospital at Lexington.

The county got its nickname of "Bloody Breathitt" in November, 1921, when four men were killed and 17 wounded in an election shooting in the Clayhole Precinct. Charges of fraud in the voting led to the affray.

Whoever goes to the Senate, after the November general election—Barkley or Chandler—may find a challenge inasmuch as the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee is continuing its investigation into the Kentucky primary situation.

The committee already has issued a statement charging Federal and State funds have been used by candidates in the senatorial race, but without calling names.

Republicans also hold their primary tomorrow. John P. Haswell has the State Republican organization behind his candidacy. He has four opponents.

Nine Representatives Up.

All of the State's Representatives in Congress—eight Democrats and one Republican—also are up for re-election. Of the Democrats only three, Nobel J. Gregory, of the First District; Beverly M. Vincent, of the Second, and Edward W. Creal, of the Fourth, are unopposed. Republican John M. Robison, of the Ninth District, has three opponents.

The New Deal has not been made a paramount one in the races for Congress although there has been an outcropping of it in some of the districts.

There was much speculation tonight among those who have followed Kentucky primaries as to when the tabulation would give a decided indication of the trend, due to Kentucky's laws stopping the counting Saturday until Monday morning.

The Louisville Times figured, on the basis of the 1935 primary when Senator M. M. Logan won the nomination, that approximately 300,000 votes would be reported by Saturday midnight from throughout the State. This figure included only a few Louisville precincts, where the counting is slow.

Polls open at 6 a. m. tomorrow and close at 4 p. m. Most of the State is on Central standard time.

the German pilot who was "180 degrees" off his course.

Lord Runciman passed a rather quiet day today, but he was up until 2 o'clock this morning before he ended a five-hour meeting with five members of the Sudeten negotiating committee. He isued no information on the meeting, but the Sudetens said it was informal and friendly, and they had given him copies, printed in English, of their full demands. These included a copy of the memorandum of June 7, listing what they thought should be done to settle the country's minority problem. They said they had given Lord Runciman a copy before, but he had lost it.

Just before noon today, Lord Runciman received Premier Milan Hodza and Kamil Krofta, minister of foreign affairs. The visit was described as a courtesy call to return the visit made yesterday, however. He and Lady Runciman had luncheon at Hradchany Castle with President Benes and the President's wife.

At 5 p. m. Lord Runciman met in the hotel with Wenzel Jaksch, leader of the German Social Democrat Party, whose membership includes the bulk of the Sudeten Germans unaffiliated with the Henlein party. They will confer again next week, when Lord Runciman's staff probably will meet with representatives of other minority parties.

There has been considerable speculation in Prague as to the reason for the visit of Hugh R. Wilson, American Ambassador to Germany. Despite the fact that he will have a talk tomorrow with Foreign Minister Krofta, he still maintains he is just here on a visit and to collect a little information.

Navy Alters Plans Of Training Cruise

By the Associated Press.

The Navy Department announced further changes yesterday in the remainder of the schedule for the Annapolis midshipmen's training cruise.

The midshipmen are en route home from European waters aboard the U. S. S. Wyoming, the U. S. S. Texas and the U. S. S. New York.

The Wyoming, the department said, will arrive in Hampton Roads August 7, and depart August 8 for the Southern drill grounds. The Texas will arrive at the drill grounds August 9 and probably will not enter Hampton Roads, as originally scheduled.

The Wyoming and Texas will leave the drill grounds August 12 for New York.

Mass. A. F. L. Asks 2 Smiths Be Fired From Labor Board

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The State Federation of Labor convention today demanded discharge of two National Labor Relations Board members after William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, accused the board of "using the C. I. O. movement to foster recession in the labor movement."

The resolution forwarded to President Roosevelt named Edwin S. Smith, of Framingham, Mass., whom Green said was "chief offender" and accused of going so far as to declare that our A. F. L. craft unions are company unions;" and Donald Smith, of Pennsylvania.

Law May Deprive Divine of Estate Next to Roosevelt

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt may lose his new neighbors, Father Divine and the colored leader's cult, counsel for the closed Straus National Bank & Trust Co., said today.

Jacob Paull, the counsel, said if an examination of Howland Spencer, recent owner of the Krum Elbow property, across the Hudson from the President's home, showed Spencer gave over his estate interest to others than his creditors, the transaction could be set aside.

Supreme Court Justice Peter Schumuck today ordered Spencer and others who may know about his assets to appear at Poughkeepsie August 16 and tell about Spencer's ability to pay a $780 judgment against him by the bank in 1931.

Appeals Court Backs U. S. in Astor Tax Suit

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Government's lower court victory in defending a suit to recover some $22,000,000 in estate taxes levied against trusts established by the late Baron William Waldorf Astor was upheld today with minor modifications by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., as trustee, had brought the suit, the taxes having been paid under protest.

Cherniavsky Dead.

Los Angeles, Aug. 5 (AP).—Abraham Cherniavsky, 82, composer and former conductor of Royal Opera House at Moscow, died today of a heart attack. Among the 8 of his 18 children surviving him are three sons, Leo, Jan and Mischel, known as the Cherniavsky Trio.

New Oil Trial Set.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 5 (AP).—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone today tentatively set September 26 as the date for retrial of 15 oil company executives and three corporations, whose conviction on charges of gasoline price fixing he recently set aside.

TVA Aide Denies Discrimination on Colored Workers

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 5 (AP).—A joint Congressional committee investigating the Tennessee Valley Authority heard testimony today the Government agency has not discriminated against colored persons in selection of employes.

Gordon R. Clapp, personnel director, told the committee he was "confident the record will show there has been no discrimination." The point was raised by Senator Davis (Republican) Pennsylvania, who declared he had received complaints.

Clapp said 10 per cent of the residents of the valley were colored and that they number 11 per cent of the TVA's 12,791 employes.

Posting of Debtors Keeps Store Open

Camden, N. J., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Grocer Robert Bierbaum took a tip from exclusive clubs today and posted in his display window the names of ten debtors and amounts they owed.

Above the names was a sign which said that "owing to bad debts this store is forced to close," but debtors on the list began to pay up so fast that the closing has been postponed.

Bierbaum said he would add two names to the list daily until the debts are cleaned up.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 5 (AP).—The Rev. Thomas A. Stenier, C. S. C., United States provincial, has announced the appointments of 111 priests and brothers of the congregation of Holy Cross.

The following priests were named chaplains: The Rev. Francis McBride at Catholic Medical Mission Society, Washington, D. C.; the Rev. Joseph Brannigan at St. Charles Boys' Home, Wauwatosa, Wis., and the Rev. Salvatore Fanelli at St. Joseph's of Holy Cross, Valatie, N. Y.

G. O. P. Group Sees Two-Fold U.S. Breakdown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—The Republican program committee concluded its "summer school" at Northwestern University today, winding up a week's intensive study of national problems by issuing a 1,500-word "summary statement" of objectives and method.

"The committee," the statement said, "has the conviction that under present trends in legislation and administration the United States may suffer the two-fold disaster which has overtaken peoples quite as sure of their destiny as we have been—the breakdown of an elaborate economic system and the disintegration of responsible and effective government."

Stresses Unemployment.

The committee noted that "after five years, in which the Administration has had funds and a freedom to act without parallel in our political history, we face the tragic fact that some 12,000,000 Americans are still unemployed.

"The committee is convinced this confusion and uncertainty will continue until there is complete assurance that the Nation's life and enterprise are to be operated under a program grounded on the principles of a balanced representative government, an adequately regulated and just system of private enterprise, a workable economics of plenty, and an inviolate code of civil liberties."

Avoids Misunderstanding.

The committee recognized fears in some Republican quarters that the committee might project itself into the Congressional and State elections this fall by issuing some sort of interim program. To avoid any misunderstanding of its purpose in making public even its unspecific statement of today, the committee carefully stated that it "makes no attempt to commit the Republican Party, or any candidate in the 1938 campaigns to the convictions expressed."

According to Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican program committee, the final report containing a suggested platform for the Republican Party in the 1940 Presidential campaign probably will not be submitted to the Republican National Committee before September, 1939.

Rail Mediation Board Acts to Avert Strike

By the Associated Press.

The National Mediation Board agreed yesterday to tackle the biggest job in its history—settlement of the controversy over a proposed 15 per cent wage cut for 900,000 employes of the Nation's major railroads.

The board notified both sides in the dispute it had accepted jurisdiction and would begin hearings in Chicago next Thursday.

Services of the board were invoked by representatives of both the carriers and the workers after weeks of independent negotiation ended in a deadlock. The carriers proposed the cut and the unions refused to accept it.

Chairman William M. Leiserson said the task was the largest single job ever handed the board. He declined to discuss prospects for a settlement, but asserted the board would comply with the mandate of the railway act to move "promptly" in such matters.

If mediation efforts fail, Leiserson said, the law requires the board to try to induce both sides to agree to appointment of a voluntary arbitration board whose decision would be final.

Should either side refuse to arbitrate, however, the mediation board then would be forced to close the case and the employes could decide whether to strike. If a strike vote carried, Leiserson said, the board would be required to report to the President whether it considered that a national emergency existed.

The law gives the Chief Executive power under such circumstances to appoint a new fact-finding agency to investigate the whole dispute and report to him within 30 days. In that time and for 30 days after the report was made, neither side in the controversy could do anything to change the status quo.

Roosevelt Son Also Good Fisherman

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 5 (AP).—John Roosevelt, the President' son, landed five barracudas ranging from 15 to 25 pounds and a 20-pound bonita 10 miles off Bermuda today. His wife caught a 23-pound barracuda.

Cardenas Signs Mine Export Tax

Mexico City, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The 12 per cent export tax, which mining companies, many backed by American capital, contend will ruin the industry, became law tonight when President Cardenas signed the measure passed by congress.

The measure was rushed through congress despite opposition because of the government's need for new revenue to replace taxes lost when American and British oil properties were expropriated last March.

Judge Blames Liquor For Most Auto Deaths

San Francisco, Aug. 5 (AP).—Judge Harry H. Porter, chief justice of the Municipal Court, Evanston, Ill., told the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union tonight that "60 per cent or more" of the 39,700 deaths and 1,400,000 injuries in 1937 auto accidents were "traceable to the use of alcohol at the wrong time and place." Judge Porter is chairman of National Safety Council's committee on tests for intoxication.

SEC Consolidates, Resets Hearings On Holding Plans

Edward C. Johnson, trial examiner in the Utilities Power & Light Corporation hearings before the Securities and Exchange Commission, announced yesterday that public hearing on the "death sentence" and on various plans of reorganization submitted by Atlas Corporation and Associated Investing Corporation will be postponed to August 29. The hearings were scheduled to get under way August 8.

On August 29 the SEC will hold a consolidated hearing on these matters, Johnson said, as well as a plan filed by the trustee of Public Utilities Corporation and Webster Securities Corporation and on the Atlas plan filed last October.

Casey Predicts President Will Boost Lewis

Roosevelt 'Will Speak' for Foe of Tydings, He Warns Skeptic.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 5.—Eugene B. Casey, Montgomery County resident and Washington real estate operator supporting the senatorial candidacy of Representative David J. Lewis, said today, "There is no doubt that the President will speak for Mr. Lewis."

Casey issued his statement answering one from Eldridge Hood Young, campaign manager for Arthur E. Hungerford, Baltimorean, who is engaged with Lewis and Senator Millard E. Tydings in the three-cornered race for the nomination.

Young said Lewis supporters "claim a co-operative alliance" with Mayor Howard W. Jackson, a Democratic gubernatorial candidate. "Lewis himself, they claim, remains neutral," Young said.

"This situation for stupidity is equal to the now discredited claim of White House support," Young added.

To which Casey replied:

"President Roosevelt undoubtedly spoke for the Maryland situation when he stated that as head of the Democratic Party, and not as President, he would participate in those primaries where it was essential for the preservation of the philosophy of the New Deal.

"If the gentleman will be patient sufficiently long to let the President debark at Pensacola, August 8, and come North to study the Maryland situation, he will find it indelibly written as to just what the President thinks of Davey Lewis."

Lewis is an ardent New Deal supporter and Tydings has opposed some New Deal measures.

frankly," said the "whole trend of development of our industrial economy, the tariff, the railroads and the effects of the one-crop system handicapped the South.

"The problem is intensified," he asserted, "by the concentration of financial power in the hands of too few people," many living away from the South and spending elsewhere.

Early, subsidized railroads, he said, were so built as to "choke off" river traffic, thus subordinating Western and Southern advantages and later the freight rate structure "clinched" the industrial supremacy of North and East.

"Today's rate differentials penalize both the Southern railroads and Southern shipyards, he said, and Northern manufacturers have a rate advantage "of about 39 per cent" over Southerners shipping into the East.

1 Jailed, Other Arrests Due in Ohio Vote Fight

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 5.—Charges of "flagrant" ballot violations were investigated today as campaigning for Tuesday's Ohio primary election nears a finish.

One arrest has resulted and Secretary of State William J. Kennedy predicted other prosecutions. He instigated the inquiry into complaints that old-age pensioners were "intimidated" to cast disabled voters' ballots for the renomination of Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Davey's contest with Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman, for the party gubernatorial nomination shared the spotlight with a word feud between two Republican aspirants for the United States Senatorial nomination, Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day and Robert A. Taft, son of former President Taft.

No New Deal Issue.

There was no New Deal issue among Democrats except in Congressional contests. Campaign arguments over legislative and domestic problems were subordinated by intra-party controversies, including:

Assertions that Davey and Sawyer forces violated civil service laws by soliciting State employes for campaign contributions; that John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization wanted to control the State government through Sawyer; that Taft sought to "buy" the Senatorial nomination; that Day was not in sympathy with Republican efforts to "uproot the New Deal."

Intensive interest created by the political "family fights" prompted State Election Statistician George Neffner to predict a record primary vote of 1,450,000.

Steel Strike Echoed.

In the Democratic Senatorial race both Senator Bulkley, seeking a second term, and former Gov. George White are New Dealers, but Ohio's senior Senator carried President Roosevelt's indorsement. White has described himself as a "yes-no" New Dealer, and not a "yet-but" man.

Davey has accused Sawyer of being John Lewis' candidate for Governor. Sawyer replied that the Governor was "inciting hatred and unrest" in labor ranks. Davey and the C. I. O. have been hostile since he ordered National Guardsmen to protect a "back to work" movement which virtually ended the C. I. O.-sponsored strike of "little steel" workers in Ohio last summer. Davey is seeking a third term.

"Tremendous campaign expenditures" were cited by Judge Day in asserting that former State Senator Taft was trying to "buy" the United States Senatorial nomination.

Union Sues Labor Board To Enforce Plant Vote

The American Federation of Labor and Federal Labor Union No. 21,164, of Copperville, Tenn., yesterday asked the District Court to require the National Labor Relations Board to issue a certificate granting the labor union the exclusive right to act as bargaining agency for employes of the Tennessee Copper Co. The petition said the union won a plant election.

Steel Strikers Lay Killings to Republic Police

By the Associated Press.

Indignant Youngstown police and irate union men told the Senate Civil Liberties Committe e yesterday in vivid, if often conflicting, detail, how a "ladies' day on the picket line" ended in a bloody, night-long battle, in which two men were killed.

The fight occurred in last summer's "little steel" strike. The scene, an area of several blocks adjacent to a Republic Steel Corporation mill, was one of horror, according to testimony.

Bullets and rocks flew, the streets were ankle deep in water from open fire hydrants, tear gas eddied about in the still air of a hot summer night, street lights were broken and the area was intermittently illuminated by the glaring lights of military flares.

Most Strikers Slain.

Vehemently, the police denied that they fired any guns, other than those used to propel tear gas bombs, and vigorously they asserted that the strikers fired upon them with revolvers, rifles and shotguns.

When the dead and wounded were counted, it was found that both the slain men were in the ranks of the strikers, and that of more than 30 injured, some 25 had been on that side also.

Union witnesses testified, moreover, that when the flares shot by the police glowed over the scene, flashes were observed from upper windows of the Republic mill and reports of firing from them were heard. One of these witnesses asserted that he saw 20 Republic guards emerge from the mill and man a railroad embankment which stood between the mill and the rioting.

Women Tell of Gassing.

Earl Butler, captain of Republic mill guards in Youngstown, testified, however, that his men were not so placed, and while strikers said that rifles were fired from windows, he asserted his police were armed only with shotguns.

John Dobozy, a union man, testified he saw a shot fired from the mill and that simultaneously he saw a man fall. The circumstances were such, he said, that the bullet which killed the man could have come from no other direction. The victim was James Eperjesi and the other man killed was John Bogovich.

Police Capt. Charles Richmond contended that the incident began when rocks were thrown at him by men concealed in a nearby streambed while he was attempting to persuade the women pickets to keep moving. Two of the women—Mrs. Erba Krepechiak and Mrs. Stella Krin—testified that despite their starting to comply with his instruction he hurled a tear gas bomb into their midst. Richmond said none of the gas grenades fired in the fight went within 25 feet of the women.

Coogan Admits Mother Wanted Drink Pledge

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Aug. 5.—Twenty-three-year-old Jackie Coogan testified today of small sums of money and advice he had received in the past few years from his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bernstein, whom he is suing for an accounting of the millions he earned as a child movie actor.

Bernstein first was Coogan's business manager.

Coogan told at a deposition hearing conducted by counsel for the Bernsteins that his mother contributed money for his education at Loyola University of Los Angeles, Villanova and Santa Clara, and said she gave him $60 for his honeymoon with blonde young Betty Grable, screen actress.

"And didn't she give you $50 for rent after your marriage?" asked Attorney Charles Katz

"Well, yes; she gave me $50," Jackie said

"In addition to $1,000 as a present on your twenty-first birthday, didn't she provide you with other gifts of money from time to time?"

"Well, on another occasion she gave me $40."

"And didn't you tell her this was for a film opening in San Francsico, and didn't you cash the check instead at Santa Anita (race track)?

"I don't remember."

Katz then asked whether it was true Coogan had been expelled from Stanta Clara University for excessive drinking and other reasons.

"I told my mother about the drinking," Coogan said.

"Didn't she go to church with you, plead with you and get you to take a life pledge?"

"Yes."

"Didn't your mother tell you," Katz asked, "that someone had told her Betty Grable's mother said this to you: 'If you expect to marry Betty, you will have to settle a large sum of money on me—and I don't mean a few thousands?'

"Yes, my mother said that, but I told her I couldn't believe it."

He said his mother told him, "If you marry Betty, it will be on your own hook—you won't get any money from us."

Beard Is Refused Habeas Corpus on Wire-Tapping Plea

Big Sam Beard, erstwhile overlord of Washington gambling, must serve out his 2-to-6 year sentence in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Federal Judge E. Narvin Underwood yesterday discharged a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, filed last May after the United States Supreme Court ruled evidence obtained from tapping interstate telephone lines inadmissable in court. Beard held in his petition that evidence gathered from tapped wires, which did much to convict him in District Court before Justice Joseph W. Cox in 1935 was illegal. He was one of 13 convicted on gaming charges.

After the Supreme Court ruling, Justice Cox held that it applied to telephone lines in the District, and the United States attorney's office here dropped several cases against gamblers.

Her Love Notes Read in Court, Carroll Girl Slumps in Seat

Five Letters Admitted by Judge, One of Which Tells Boy He 'Should Have a Girl Who Hasn't Been Touched.'

By the Associated Press.

South Paris, Me., Aug. 5.—The prosecution, trying to convict Francis M. Carroll of the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield, read before a sensation-hungry courtroom audience today five love letters Carroll's comely daughter, Barbara, wrote to Paul N. Dwyer, the slim youth who confessed strangling the elderly physician and went to prison for life.

But white-thatched Judge William M. Fisher refused to admit into evidence a sixth missive, after defense counsel Clyde R. Chapman objected because part of it was missing.

Special prosecutor Ralph M. Ingalls has contended Barbara wrote Dwyer of being seduced by her father, and Carroll had a motive for the slaying when the 67-year-old country doctor was told of the letter by the youth.

Dwyer, who previously confessed garroting both the doctor and his wife, Lydia, 63, now accuses the 43-year-old Carroll, one-time deputy sheriff, of both crimes.

When arrested in North Arlington, N. J., last October, Dwyer said he slew the doctor because the elderly man spoke slurringly of his "girl." Later in Maine, he said robbery alone was the motive, but held to his contention Mrs. Littlefield was slain because of her suspicions of what had happened to her husband.

Midway in the afternoon session Dwyer was taken from the court, his testimony ended after two and one-half days on the stand.

Long, hot hours of relentless cross-examination failed to shake the 19-year-old boy's poise or what he reiterated was his "true story."

Barbara, her pretty face flushed, slumped in her seat, beside her mother, as Ingalls read the letters, written in 1934 and 1935, in which she was quoted as pledging love that would last "always, no matter what happens."

"I think I regret," said the first missive read aloud, "telling you what I did yesterday and that you know what you know now."

Another letter, greeting Paul as "My little sweetheart," told him "I love you with every single bit of my body."

In another, Barbara said she realized Paul "should have a girl that hasn't been touched, although I know you love me and I am positive that I love you."

"I gave you everything I could" said a fourth letter, that ended, "Your own Babs, and I'm glad I belong to you."

At one point, when Dwyer was being questioned again by Ingalls, the prosecutor had him strip to the waist to indicate his frail build.

Magill Awards Pistol Cup to Customs Team

Gold, Silver and Bronze Medals Are Presented to Individuals.

Roswell Magill, acting Secretary of the Treasury, yesterday presented to the Bureau of Customs revolver team the silver cup offered by Secretary Morgenthau, jr., for proficiency in small-arms marksmanship by Treasury agents engaged in law-enforcement and protective duties.

Magill also presented gold, silver and bronze medals to the individual winners, topped by L. E. Echols, of New York, Bureau of Customs, who in the team match shot 300, a perfect score. In two previous matches Echols scored 299 and 296. E. L. Ballinger, of El Paso, Tex., also made a perfect score yesterday.

The ten leading individual shots were detailed to remain in Washington from August 5 to 20 to train for the Camp Perry, Ohio, National Matches, which open August 21. From the ten best shots six will be selected to represent the department at Camp Perry.

The Bureau of Customs, Alcohol Tax Unit and White House Police teams led the shooting in this week's matches. The scores were considerably better than in the two previous annual shoots and were higher than in the preliminaries which were held throughout the country in July.

Secretary Morgenthau inaugurated the Treasury Department's annual marksmanship training tests so that the agents of the various services might be better able to protect themselves in operations against armed criminals.

In yesterday's matches A. W. Quick, of New York, P. M. Chapman, of Seattle and W. J. Osmer, of New York, all of the Bureau of Customs, shot 297 each. On the Alcohol Tax Unit team A. L. Meloche, of Phoenix, Ariz., scored 298 and the targets of K. A. Wilson, of San Francisco, totaled 297. E. L. Warden of the White House Police shot 299 and R. G. Ford of the same organization registered a 296.

Rapist Is Killed By Police Guns In Hotel Fight

Tattooed Man Wanted in 4 States Trapped in Room at Hot Springs.

By the Associated Press.

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 5.—Trapped in a hotel room, Earl Young, 28, Lebanon, Pa., desperado wanted in four States for robbery, kidnaping, rape and murder, was shot to death here today by two city policemen.

Young was identified from fingerprints by H. B. Fletcher, agent in charge of the Little Rock office, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Bill Cakthman, Hot Springs police department fingerprinting expert.

The fugitive died in a hospital three hours after he was felled with a bullet in the head and a wound in one ankle in a gun battle with Police Captains Jerry Watkins and Ben Rogers.

Kidnaped Three Girls.

Fletcher said Young was wanted for the kidnap-murder of 17-year-old Betty Schnaidt near St. Charles, S. D., July 29; for kidnaping and robbing a young girl taken from Louisville, Ky., to French Lick, Ind., on July 12, and for robbery, car theft and jail breaking at Lebanon, Pa., three months ago.

Watkins said a police circular sent out by Sheriff George T. Allison of Hutchinson, Kas., said Young also was wanted there for kidnaping and assaulting a young girl June 15.

Watkins said Young made his appearance here yesterday for the second time this spring. He said the fugitive was here for three weeks in May, at which time he was wanted only at Lebanon, Pa. The police captain said when sufficient evidence had been collected to warrant the man's arrest, he eluded officers by departing 15 minutes before they raided a tourist camp where he had been staying.

Entire Body Tattooed.

Rogers said he spotted Young in a beer parlor last night. He said he trailed the man to a hotel and early today, accompanied by Watkins, went to his room.

"We knocked and told him to open up," Watkins said.

"He asked who we were and we told him police. I peeked through the keyhole and saw him get out of bed. When he opened the door I stuck my foot in the room but he opened fire. As we fired back, he slammed the door and continued shooting.

"We stepped out of the line of fire and sent the house maid to call headquarters for a submachine gun. While we were waiting, Young jerked open the door and ran out into the hall, firing at us. We opened up and he fell."

Red Guns Blast Border; Japan Expects Peace

By the Associated Press.

Tokyo, Aug. 5.—Soviet artillery blasted at Japanese positions along the Siberian frontier while the Japanese foreign office tonight radiated optimism that the "vest pocket" border war soon would be settled by negotiation.

[Two attacks by Russians today (Saturday) on Japanese positions in the disputed Siberian-Manchukuoan border area were repulsed, according to a war office communique, the United Press said.—Editor's note.]

"We are hopeful of a speedy settlement," said the foreign office spokesman after receiving reports on Japanese Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu's Moscow conference yesterday with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs. "It appears some progress has been made," he added.

The Japanese army reported Soviet guns at half-hour intervals were steadily bombarding Japanese positions at Changkufeng, near the spot where the borders of Manchukuo and Korea join the Siberian frontier.

Planes Driven Back.

An unspecified number of Soviet planes, Japanese said, crossed the border, but were driven back by anti-aircraft fire. The army declared anti-aircraft guns were the only ones fired by the Japanese answering the Russian maneuvers.

(Eye-witness dispatches from the scene, however, said Japanese artillery had replied with a barrage that broke up Soviet infantry formations behind the contested frontier line.)

"Japanese troops have refrained from responding to the Soviet bombardment," said an army communique, "in view of proposals for cessation of hostilities made by the Japanese government Thursday to the Moscow government."

Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatches asserted Russians "apparently are planning to recapture Changkufeng before a diplomatic settlement is reached."

The agency also reported observation of troops moving in trucks behind the Soviet lines and said that 20 planes were sent from Khabarovsk to positions nearer the frontier yesterday.

Reds Offer Face-Saver.

In Moscow yesterday the Japanese ambassador proposed mutual withdrawal from the battle zone while a commission marks the disputed frontier. Litvinoff agreed to the withdrawal on condition that Japan recognize the Russian-Chinese treaty of June 26, 1886, which establishes Changkufeng as part of Siberia.

(Soviet sources in Moscow considered Litvinoff's reply, referring to Japanese troops as "remnants of forces which may still be left" on Soviet territory, gave the Japanese a chance to withdraw without loss of prestige.)

(Moscow believed the frontier tension had eased.)

275 Employes Facing Maytag Strike Inquiry

By the Associated Press.

Newton, Iowa, Aug. 5.—The Maytag company this afternoon sent 275 special delivery letters to its workers alleged to have participated in a sit-down strike at the factory recently, informing them of an investigation to assist it "in properly and fairly judging the action it should take."

In explanation of the letters, company spokesmen said:

"We feel that it would be unfair if any individual who has had these things said about him should have no chance to refute those charges."

Meanwhile, George Umbreit, plant vice president, announced that a total of 1,431 employes were working at the factory this afternoon—first full day of operation since it was opened under National Guard protection.

The total is only 97 men short of the total active workers employed there on May 6, last working day before the C. I. O. union walked out in protest of a 10 per cent wage cut.

Company spokesmen said that the men who received the letters were not discharged, and that those of them who came back to work are now working. They said each case would be investigated separately.

Maytag C. I. O. union officials, although instructing union workers to return to work in the washing machine factory, indicated tonight their battle with the firm for a collective bargaining agreement and other concessions was not ended by the resumption of normal operations under martial law.

Philippines Ninth As U. S. Customer In First ½ of 1938

By the Associated Press.

The Commerce Department reported that the Philippines ranked ninth among the customers of the United States.

As an exporter to the United States, the islands moved into fifth place during the first half of the year.

Urbano A. Zafra, of the Philippine Sugar Association, declared today the new figures showed "a marked trend toward equilibrium in Philippine-American commerce, a situation making for ideal reciprocity in trade."

Philippine imports totaled $41,769,000 and $41,511,000 for the first six months of 1938 and 1937, respectively.

Franco Planes Destroy Town In Retaliation

Loyalists Shell, Blow Up Tremp Munition Dumps, Plan New Offensive.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, France, Aug. 5.—The loyalist town of Sort, 25 miles south of the French border in a rocky gorge of the Pallares Mountains, was reported to have been destroyed by insurgent bombing planes today as the government massed troops in the sector for a new offensive.

Gen. Franco's bombers, working in relays, wiped out the ancient town in retaliation for the destruction earlier in the day of insurgent munitions dumps hidden in the forests around Tremp, 30 miles south of Sort in the broad Noguerra-Pallaresa valley.

Loyalist siege guns, brought up to the eastern wall of the valley from the government's Catalonian bases, blasted the munitions dumps to bits in an hour, frontier dispatches said.

The loyalists, said to be preparing another swift offensive along the western boundary of Catalonia in an effort to force diversion of Franco's forces moving upon Valencia, set fire to a wide area of the Tremp forests.

The government's southern forces in the Teruel zone, about 70 miles inland from Valencia were reported to be moving swiftly through the ragged Universales Mountains and to be only 6 miles from Albarracin, a gateway to the city of Teruel on the west.

Defense Impels Limit on Jews, Rome Declares

One of Race in 1,000 of Population to Be Allowed 'Full Life of State.'

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Aug. 5.—Requirements of empire defense form the primary reason for the new Fascist race policy, an officially inspired statement said today criticizing "misunderstandings" abroad of Fascist motives.

It was the first time empire defense rather than anti-Semitism was stressed in interpretations of the new race policy, one phase of which, it was announced, will permit only one Jew for every 1,000 non-Jewish Italians to participate in "the full life of the state."

This limitation was seen as a step toward a law prohibiting non-Jewish Italians from marrying Jews or colonial subjects (African natives).

In trimming down to the ratio of one Jew to 1,000, no persecution of Jews will be permitted, said the statement, which was issued by the Informazione Diplomatica, an official agency.

"Jews in Italy in the home territory number 44,000, according to Jewish statistics which, however, must be checked by a special census which will be held soon," the statement said. "The proposition thus would be one Jew to 1,000 Italians. It is clear that from now on participation of Jews in the full life of the state must be leveled at that proportion."

Escaped Bear Machine-Gunned After Terrorizing Zoo 5 Hours

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 5.—A 350-pound, heat-crazed grizzly bear clawed her way from a steel-barred cage in the Highland Park Zoo today and terrorized residents of the park district for five hours before she was shot and killed.

Bullets from sub-machine guns and high-powered rifles ended the bruin's holiday after she was routed from a cool pedestrian roadway underpass in the 400-acre park where she had "holed up"—away from the hot sun.

Sought by a posse of 30 police and termed "too dangerous to have a name," the bear was discovered in a tunnel. Sergt. Ralph P. Barton drove out the animal with 15 shots from a machine gun.

Wounded and snarling, the bear rushed from the tunnel toward Arnold J. Schaumann, zoo superintendent, who stood ready with a rifle.

The 3-year-old bear reared to her height of 8 feet and charged within a few feet of Schaumann before he fired two shots into her shoulder. She stumbled, fell and rolled down the embankment.

She got up again and started back into the tunnel and Schaumann followed, firing two more shots. Lame and her brown fur torn and spotted with blood, the bear collapsed midway in the underpass.

Policemen, getting in on the kill, fired shot after shot into the carcass with pistols and rifles.

The bear broke three bars and ripped off a wooden roof to escape from an old outdoor cage. Police hurried to the park and closed it to all visitors.

Fearful parents called their children from the streets, but later the youngsters ventured out and jockeyed for vantage points to watch the hunt.

New Offensive Develops Major Nanchang Fight

Thousands of Chinese Flee City as Bombs Kill 60, Wound 200.

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Saturday), Aug. 6.—One of the greatest battles of the undeclared Chinese-Japanese war was developing today north of Nanchang, one of the key points in the southeastern defenses of China's provisional capital in Hankow.

Thousands of additional Chinese civilians fled Nanchang today after new Japanese aerial bombings, which killed at least 60 and wounded more than 200 persons. This air raiding was merely one incident of the offensive.

The Chinese war office in Hankow considered the struggle more important than this summer's big campaign, which resulted in Japanese occupation of Suchow and the eastern and central sections of the Lunghai Railway.

Six New Divisions.

The Japanese had regained offensive positions and were striking with warships, airplanes and huge forces of infantry.

The Chinese reported six Japanese divisions heretofore operating north of the Yangtze River had been thrown into the Nanchang offensive, abandoning the drive from Hwangmei toward Kwangtsi.

They said eight divisions of shock troops plus numerous reserves were attacking the Chinese positions fronting Nanchang.

Japanese warships were fighting slowly up the Yangtze toward Hankow and were shelling Wushueh, 30 miles west of Kiukiang.

"Unceasing attacks by our Eighth Route (Communist) army have forced the Japanese to evacuate Lishih (8 miles west of the Shansi provincial capital, Taiyuan) and we also are reoccupying other Shansi cities," the Chinese spokesman said.

Regarding the Nanchang offensive he said that Japanese columns operating along the roadbed of the wrecked Kiukiang-Nanchang railway were attacking south of Shaho, 10 miles south of Kiukiang, and were "suffering heavy losses."

The Japanese had recruited thousands of Chinese coolies to rebuild sections of the highway to Nanchang which were destroyed by the Chinese.

The spokesman said that Gen. Chiang, supreme Chinese commander, has ordered that Nanchang and all points on Kiangsi-Chekiang railway and the Kiukang-Nanchang railway be defended to the last.

General Kills Self, Wills Pay to Japan

Tokyo, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Yasuyuki Nishiyama, 85, who was decorated for gallantry in the siege of Port Arthur during the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-05, committed ceremonial suicide today so that the government could devote his retirement pay to prosecution of the undeclared wars with China and Soviet Russia. The general left a note with his will saying that he was old and useless and could serve best by permitting his pension to be diverted to war purposes.

Court Rules Baby Has Right to Cry

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP).—A baby has a legal right to cry, it was decided today in suburban Oak Park.

Mrs. Anna Robinson charged her next door neighbor, Mrs. Mary Bickmeyer, with disorderly conduct because her 15-month-old baby cried every night from 9 to 10 o'clock, disturbing the family Robinson, but Peace Justice Thomas W. Barrett, jr., ruled:

"It is not a crime for Oak Park babies to cry. Complaint dismissed."

$45,000 Damage Asked For Theft Accusation

Contending he was assaulted and forced into a store where he was held for an hour, Herschel B. Chappell, 2006 G street northwest, yesterday in District Court filed suit for $45,000 damages from C. H. Johnson, 1948 Calvert street northwest.

Chappell alleged he was walking along F street northwest March 11, when he was accused of the larceny of a book. Because of the detention, the suit stated, he has been permanently injured.

RALEIGH HABERDASHER

Corrigan Sure Of Self as Hero, D. C. Man Says

'Won't Pull Any Boners With Crowd,' Ryan Is Convinced.

Douglas Corrigan, even in private conversations, has "never even remotely suggested" that his tale of aiming for California and landing in Ireland is not entirely authentic.

He says it is a good joke on himself, but "I'm ready to sit down with authorities and go ever all the material and convince them that I was heading for California," the captivating Irishman is quoted by Oswald Ryan, who has just returned to Washington.

Ryan, an Irishman himself, is former counsel of the Federal Power Commission. Prior to becoming a member of the Civil Aeronautics Authority which officially organizes Monday he went to New York with vague plans, his friends say, of going to Bermuda, Halifax or maybe the pine woods of Maine.

Pleased to Meet.

But there was no compass in his luggage, so he went to England. There he met Corrigan at the American Embassy, already charmed by the spontaneous naturalness of the young flier.

They were pleased to meet each other and Ryan, eager to know more about aviation and problems the new authority will have to meet, became a pupil of Corrigan, the wonderful aviator but terrible navigator.

"Corrigan," he said, still enthusiastic about his companion, "has the capacity to become a very influential factor in aviation in this country.

"I am convinced that Corrigan is no flash in the pan. He is a natural friend, and is the kind who will never do anything to spoil his reputation.

No Mistake as Hero.

"Corrigan is as well fortified with wisdom as he is with wit. He is spontaneously natural, but he has too much wisdom to pull a boner while in the difficult role of hero. He's as clever tactful and diplomatic as David Lloyd George. Our popular Ambassador to Great Britain, as Irish as Corrigan, met the flyer and quickly learned that he could take care of himself, needing no lesson in diplomacy.

"The fund of information which Corrigan has is almost incredible. I have seen him surrounded by clever and experienced men. His answers were always spontaneous. But he never answered in generalities—always in detailed accuracy.

"He was never silly, stupid or the clown. I asked how he knew so much, and he said for the past eight or nine years he had no social life, but had read everything in the Los Angeles library on aviation and had then tested it out. Because he was so interested he remembered what he read.

"Absolutely Sincere."

"Lindbergh is his idol. Whenever Corrigan talks about him tears come to his eyes. In fact Corrigan is much like Lindbergh, although he has more sparkle.

"He's absolutely sincere about his interest in aviation. I know he has been high-pressured by big money, as much as $100,000 in 24 hours. But he has gracefully turned them all aside. He says he will take a job in aviation, but will have nothing to do with anything else."

$100,000 Is Sought By D. C. Druggist For False Arrest

Suit for $100,000 damages was filed in District Court yesterday by Max Kossow, druggist, of 5519 Second street northwest, against the Washington Wholesale Drug Exchange, 459 C street northwest, because it was alleged his arrest was caused by the exchange August 22, 1937 "without any justification or excuse."

In his suit, the druggist stated Metropolitan Police arrested him at the behest of the exchange on a charge of receiving stolen property. He was held for six hours before he posted bond, and subsequently, on August 24, the charge was dropped in Police Court.

The grand jury, the suit stated, ignored the accusation and freed Kossow of any charges. Attorneys J. J. Carmody, Michael Keogh, and Peter G. Chaconas represented the druggist.

Appraisal Prize Offered on 'House That Jack Rebuilt'

A prize of $100 will be given for the most nearly accurate appraisal of the "House That Jack Rebuilt," now open to the public at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, the Junior Board of Commerce announced yesterday. The contest will close August 20.

Contestants will assume the house is located on a lot on North Harrison street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets in Arlington, Va., and assume $500 has been spent for a heating plant and a basement. The appraisal coming nearest that of a group of appraisal experts will take the prize.

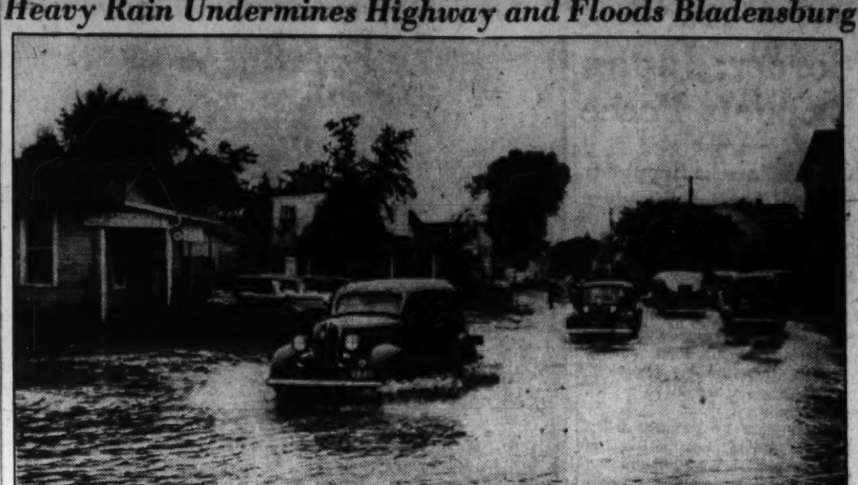

These appraisers are H. G. Hoskinson, president of the District Bankers Assocation; Morton J. Luchs, president of the Washington Real Estate Board, and Fred D. Allen, District assessor. Prizes are offered by the Junior Chamber and George H. Rucker Co., owner of the lot.

Md. Carnival Wire Shocks Boy Badly

St. Michaels, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—Touching an electric wire almost cost the life of 9-year-old Wayne Geid at the firemen's carnival here today.

John Henry, Goodyear, of Elkton, saw the boy holding the charged wire, powerless to let go, and jerked the wire from a connecting plug. He said the child was unable to speak and was "getting blue in the face." Taken to a hospital, the boy was reported in critical condition from the shock.

Crowds in N. Y. Hurt Corrigan In Mad Ovation

Corrigan

He bowled over crowds outside his Broadway hotel in midtown Manhattan and lifted a million people in lower Broadway to a frenzy of roaring applause. He made a pretty little speech in City Hall to Mayor LaGuardia and a jammed council chamber. He captured the hearts of guests at an Advertising Club luncheon.

And he sent the Irish of Brooklyn and all the other nationalities of that borough into raptures of glee in a gigantic parade from Manhattan to Floyd Bennett Field, where he took off July 17 in his $900 crate in the astonishingly wrong flight to Dublin.

It was Corrigan's day all the way, and the grin by which all men now know him never left his face. Himself entranced by the vastness of the celebration, the noise, the color, the unceasing uproar, he never lost his poise. Cool and self-contained in the midst of sweltering thousands, he parried questions about his flight which might have embarrassed one less confident.

"Your achievement," said Mayor La Guardia at City Hall, "attracted more attention than any other accomplishment in the history of aviation. It was so unorthodox—the way you did it. Your deliberate impetuosity finds a responding chord in me."

100,000 at Battery.

He was grinning when, freed from interviewers and others, the police hustled him through the jammed lobby of the Hotel McAlpin and through hatless, coatless thousands, packed with sickening density in the streets outside. The crowds roared from windows, elevated stations, from the street.

Corrigan grinned.

Irish flags were waving, vendors were selling miniature Corrigan crates and buttons, pennants and flowers when he emerged, wearing the worn windbreaker which warmed him against the chilly North Atlantic weather.

At the Battery, where the parade up Broadway started, the police said there must have been 100,000 persons, swarming over the grass, the sidewalks, looking from tall buildings, elevated structures, the steps of the Customs House and Bowling Green.

Nine times that many between Bowling Green and City Hall, crammed along the sidewalks, perched on skyscraper ledges and in the windows, clinging to the fences of Trinity and old St. Paul's—sweltering thousands, but indifferent to the heat and mindful only of Corrigan's grin.

Thousands watching as the clouds of torn paper and ticker tape floated downward on the sultry air, festooning the buildings, tangling on flagpoles, whitening the bright hot asphalt.

De Valera Referred To.

Corrigan rode on the top of the back seat of an automobile flanked by James A. McGurrin, chairman of the mayor's committee on reception to distinguished visitors, and the mayor's secretary, Stanley Howe. In a second car rode his brother, Harry, of Baltimore, and the latter's wife, Anita. In a third car were two friends, Steve and Walter Reich, who helped him service his plane before the flight.

The mayor, facing the smiling Corrigan, remarked that Eamon De Valera, prime minister of Eire, "had only a primitive compass and he, too, landed safely."

And when the crowd roared its applause, Corrigan stood, hands clasped, the perpetual grin on his face, and retorted:

"Talking about setting your compass, the mayor, too, has his compass set for a certain objective, whether he knows it or not, which is not so far from here, if you know what I mean."

Former Mayor Jimmy Walker, perspiring among the onlookers, commented:

"The kid is smart. He's bright. He knows just what to say."

But Corrigan found it difficult to make a speech. The mayor's quad almost floored him, he confessed, and he knew not what to talk about. Nevertheless, he was at his ease, and was even more so after the swift roaring parade to the Advertising Club in Park avenue, where he accepted from Lowell Thomas a silver trophy—a bowl and plate from The Men of Wings, an organization of fliers.

When Thomas said he understood Corrigan frequently had gone the wrong way before, the flier quipped:

"I never expected to be going the way I have been going here today."

Then when Thomas recalled that Corrigan's uncle, the Rev. S. Fraser Langford, had said, "Douglas has never been known to tell a lie," and asked him to comment on that statement, Corrigan said:

"He said 'never been known to tell a lie.' Well, what people don't know, won't hurt them."

The Rev. Mr. Langford, a Baptist minister, injected a piece of his own humor into the luncheon when he remarked that the flight had shown "the north and south of Ireland finally could get together."

"Cardinal Hayes," he added, "said it was all right for me to say that."

A quartette sang about "C-O-Double-R-I-G-A-N Spells Corrigan." The luncheon guests joined in and the room was in an uproar. Corrigan grinned and said the weather must be warm because so many men had their coats on.

And after the luncheon there was the trip to Brooklyn, through the packed streets, crowded with children, to Floyd Bennett Field, then back to Borough Hall, where some 50,000 Brooklynites were gathered and nearly as many more stared from towering buildings and showered the procession with ticker tape.

Corrigan was presented with a compass, and after listening to speeches for 25 minutes said he had never spent such a grand day in his life.

Irishman Barred.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Where the luck of the Irish beamed on Douglas Corrigan, it frowned upon Martin Leo Hill, 30, a native of Cobh, Eire.

Hill was discovered last night on the liner Manhattan which carried Corrigan back home. He had stowed away during a celebration to mark the arrival of a son and to join Corrigan's send-off from the "ould sod."

Immigration authorities denied him admission to the country and ordered him returned home Wednesday on the same ship.

1,800 Tons of Paper Tossed at Corrigan

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Eighteen hundred tons of paper fell on and around Douglas Corrigan during his Broadway reception today, equalling the amount showered upon Howard Hughes and his round-the-world flying companions, the sanitation department said.

Both figures were about 100 tons behind the Lindbergh record.

The weight of the paper is determined after it is swept up.

Trolley Pact Melts Last Obstacle to Md. Dual Highway

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—The last big obstacle in the way of the proposed new dual highway between Hagerstown and Frederick was removed this afternoon during a conference between members of the State roads commission and R. Paul Smith, president of the Potomac Edison Co.

At the conclusion, J. Glenn Beall, chairman of the State roads commission, told a reporter: "We had a very satisfactory conference and the way is paved for construction to get under way in the near future. The Potomac Edison Co. acted in a very magnanimous manner."

The conference, also attended by F. Frank Luthardt, another member of the State roads commission, was over rights of way of the Potomac Edison Co., whose trolley line crosses the proposed new highway at six points.

Work Relief Officials Deny WPA Is a 'Career'

By the Associated Press.

Work relief officials said yesterday their statistics showed that the unemployed return to private industry as rapidly as possible and do not regard WPA as a "career."

The records disclosed that 4,937,286 different individuals obtained work relief jobs from 1935 to 1937, and that only 760,645, or 15.4 per cent, held them throughout that time.

before setting out to guide her across the tortuous network of railroad tracks and freight sheds. At one point, "Babe" leaped across her path and prevented her from walking into an oncoming truck.

"I am free, white and 21," Miss Hurst explained. "I have no bitter feelings about the ministry's refusal to let "Babe" pass quarantine and I feel I have accomplished what I set out to do—not to win sympathy or publicity for the blind but to obtain human understanding and international friendship."

As soon as she returned to the ship, Miss Hurst telegraphed to Ambassador Kennedy, who is vacationing near Cannes, France:

"After all appeals had failed, through your personal intervention you have given me the greatest thing in my life and through me freedom to all the blind, as my guide dog, "Babe," and I have walked with freedom on English soil today and as an exception never permitted before.

"Consul Franklin Gowen, carrying out orders, has helped me. I shall always be grateful to you and to England for this gesture of international friendship."

to be closed to traffic and used as playgrounds.

And with 13 additional playgrounds to be opened Monday, Lewis R. Barrett, co-ordinator for the District public recreation committee, announced that a program of highway safety instruction would be provided at the playgrounds and called upon parents to see their children are safely transported to and from the grounds.

Warning on Intersections.

Last night the Accident Prevention Institute of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce held its ninth weekly meeting at WPDW, radio station of the Metropolitan Police. Members inspected the station and heard Inspector L. I. H. Edwards explain its activities and operations.

Before the tour of WPDW, Capt. Harvey G. Callahan, commanding First Precinct, praised the new regulation which prohibits parking within 25 feet of the building line at intersections. Speaking on "Intersection Accidents," he urged motorists to aproach intersections cautiously, and warned them not to start on amber lights at controlled intersections.

[Enforcement of the 25-foot regulation was suspended by Maj. Brown pending a court ruling on its legality.]

But while these safety efforts gained momentum across the city, William Baylor, colored, 68, became the District's fifty-eighth traffic death victim. He was injured July 30 and died yesterday in Emergency Hospital. Clarence Howell, colored, 42, driver of the car which struck him, will appear at a later coroner's inquest.

Immediate steps were agreed upon to curb child deaths in the Southeast section. The citizens' rally agreed to demand improvement of present playground facilities in the neighborhood and provide for additional play spots.

It was pointed out the entire area is now served by only three playgrounds—two for white and one for colored children. Several unsupervised school yards are also being used.

Condemned as Menace.

A committe was appointed to study present facilities and make recommendations to Julius Hammack, of the Playground Association. The committee included Matilde Williams, of the Southeast Branch Library; H. Stiars, of the Potomac Playground Council; Dr. Homer K. Butler, of the Southeast Citizens Association; Miss E. Fannie Granton, of the Southeast House, and Miss Mary Edith Coulson, of the Council of Social Agencies.

Marion Park, on South Carolina avenue between Fourth and Sixth streets southeast, was condemned as a traffic menace to youngsters. The playground department will be asked to make this park an official play park with adequate supervision both on the grounds and at nearby street crossings.

Similar groups in all parts of the city are planning meetings to recommend methods of protecting children and ridding the streets of death and destruction.

In his "pep" talk to members of the police Traffic Division, Lieut. Pierce called attention to the ages of the girls and boys killed in recent mishaps and admonished his men to "keep on their toes."

"It is a deplorable situation," said Pierce, "and something drastic must be done. Motorists, parents, children and you policemen must share the responsibility of making our streets and avenues safe."

Tells of "Harrowing Sight."

For the benefit of a radio broadcast, Policeman Arnold K. Bowen, of the Traffic Division, described in detail the scene at Casualty Hospital the night Mary Edna Robinson, 4-year-old traffic victim Wednesday, was brought in for emergency treatment.

"She was covered with blood from head to foot," said Bowen. "I stood there and watched her die. It was the most harrowing sight I have witnessed in all my seven years on the force—I hope I never have to go through it again."

In announcing plans for safety instruction at the new recreation centers, Co-ordinator Barrett pledged the "whole-hearted support" of his organization in the police save-a-life program.

"Maj. Brown undoubtedly has centered his attack on the source of these terrible tragedies. Co-operation from the motorist, the police, the parent and the child should reduce these traffic tragedies to a minimum if not wipe them out entirely."

Results of Maj. Brown's proposal to rope off designated streets for the exclusive use of children probably will not be known for several days. The commanders of various police precincts were instructed to select thoroughfares carrying the least traffic and report locations to headquarters.

Meanwhile, Helen Williams, 5, colored, of 1615½ Sixth street northwest, suffered head injuries and a fracture of her left leg last night when she stepped from behind two parked cars, near her home, directly into the path of an automobile driven by Richard Law, 31, colored, of the 600 block of S street southwest.

The child was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where physicians said her condition was serious. The driver was not held.

Earlier in the day a crash occured on slippery streets near Alabama avenue and Beck street southeast. Five persons suffered minor hurts and police held Charles T. Lee, colored, 34, 100 block of L street southeast, on reckless driving charges.

As evidence police are taking their safety instructions seriously, inquiries about child accidents yesterday brought the following response from numerous precinct desk sergeants:

"There haven't been any so far today—thank God."

Dynamite Sticks Found in Tunnel Believed 'Planted'

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—Officials investigating discovery of two sticks of dynamite in the Montebello water tunnel received a report today one of the sticks may have been made up somewhere else and taken to the shaft.

Officials conducting the investigation said one of the tunnel workers examined the stick and said wires were not wrapped around it in the usual fashion. That indicated, they said, the stick had been made up elsewhere, either in another section of the 7-mile tunnel or off the job entirely.

Meanwhile police increased their guard at the tunnel, extending it to the powder magazine in which explosives are kept.

Ten men were killed two weeks ago in a premature blast in the tunnel. Two coroners ruled their deaths were accidental.

m. despite the fact that a near-cloudburst between 5:10 and 7:30 a. m. brought the mercury down to a minimum of 72.

Traffic Delayed.

Actually the total rainfall was 1.45 inches, 1.10 of which fell in 40 minutes, causing the Northeastern Branch at the Bladensburg Peace Cross to flood roadways leading to Baltimore and Annapolis with a foot of water.

Early morning traffic was blocked for more than an hour, and motorists en route to Washington were delayed for even longer, until the waters receded. All fords through Rock Creek Park were blocked, further delaying traffic, until more than an hour after the rain.

Lightning struck the Chevy Chase, Md., home of Burr Tracy Ansell, Washington attorney, at 4010 Leland street, ripping a hole in the roof of the living room where Tracy, 6, Ansell's daughter, was playing. She was uninjured and the Chevy Chase Fire Department extinguished a small blaze in a fuse box.

Ansell said the lightning apparently reached the house along a radio aerial and lead-in. The family had occupied the home only a few weeks.

No relief from the sultry heat was forecast by the Weather Bureau last night. Instead, today will be hot and cloudy, with a possibility of fitful showers.

The same was generally true of the Nation, which faced another hot week-end. The Associated Press reported that sectional forecasts were mainly either "fair and warm," or "fair and warmer."

Crops Damaged.

From Richmond, Va., came reports that the Virginia State Department of Agriculture indicated that the heavy rains since July have caused serious damage to tobacco, cotton and peanuts.

High humidity combined with the heat struck hard throughout the South, Middle Atlantic seaboard and New England. More than 1,000,000 spectators on the southern tip of Manhattan Island to greet Douglas Corrigan dripped with perspiration, according to the Associated Press, and hundreds received emergency treatments in drug stores along the line of parade.

There were local thundershowers, some violent, which lowered temperatures in portions of Indiana, Ohio and northern Kentucky, but the humidity canceled the relief the rain brought.

In the western area of the Great Lakes region there came a "cool" interlude, and in isolated places the mercury receded to the 70s.

However, the West and the Middle West were having relatively dry atmosphere, so, despite the heat, suffering in these areas was not so great.

Ringling Workers Complain 1,200 Were Discharged

By the Associated Press.

The American Federation of Actors, filing charges with the National Labor Relations Board, accused the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus yesterday of having "illegally, fraudulently and discriminately" discharged aproximately 1,200 of its union employes.

The circus firm broke a five-year closed shop contract with the federation, the complaint said, in order to effect the discharge.

Counsel for the union said the firing of the workers occurred after they had gone on strike at Scranton, Pa., in June. The show closed there and returned to winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla.

Despite an agreement to remain closed, the complaint continued, the circus transferred its equipment to the Al C. Barnes and Sells-Floto Circus, and is now on the road as a presentation of the latter concern, a subsidiary.

125 Police Active in Bible Class Started by Inspector Harrison

Dean Kayser, present teacher, and Maj. Brown, vice president.

Number of Firemen Also Attend Congress Street Church Unit Regularly to Hear Representatives, Senators or G. W. U. Professor Speak.

Georgetown residents, especially those living in the vicinity of Thirty-first and N streets, get "reserve" police protection on Sunday mornings, with 125 guardians of the law enrolled in the Harrison Men's Bible Class of the Congress Street Methodist Episcopal Church.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department, is first vice president of the organization, founded in 1926 by former Police Inspector W. H. Harrison. Harrison is first and only president of the class which also has a number of firemen on its active roster of 282.

In spite of the fact that they have only one Sunday in each month free, the policemen and firemen are quite regular in attendance, according to the Rev. Hirl A. Kester, Congress Street pastor and member of the class's executive council.

Chaplain of the District of Columbia Fire and Police departments, the Rev. Mr. Kester is spending the month of August as religious director of Camp Ernest W. Brown, Scotland, Md., where members of the Harrison class met on July 17 to dedicate the cabin they donated to the Police Boys' Club. The men's group also has furnished a room at Westminster Theological Seminary, Western Maryland College.

More than 150 Congressmen have addressed the class during its brief history, and the class tries to get them as speakers whenever possible.

Dr. Elmer L. Kayser, dean of university students at George Washington University, is present teacher. Other class officials—in addition to Harrison and Maj. Brown—are William N. Payne, jr., president of the National Capitol Insurance Co.; J. G. Stevenson, manager of the National City Bank; C. C. Staub, District of Columbia Health Department inspector, and Stephen T. Porter, battalion chief, District of Columbia Fire Department. Capt. Milton Smith, of the Traffic Division, also is an active member.

Rev. John Sadtler To Give Sermon at St. John's Church

The Rev. John G. Sadtler, of Falls Church, Va., will be guest preacher at St. John's Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. The subject of his sermon is "The Transfiguration and the Daily Life."

Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a. m. and 11 a. m.

All Saints'. The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke has returned from his vacation and will preside at the early service at 7:30 and again at 11 a. m., when his subject will be "Be Not Conformed but Be Ye Transformed." There will be Holy Communion at each service.

St. John's, Norwood Parish. The Rev. Joseph G. Williams, rector, has returned from a brief vacation in Maine and will officiate at the 7:30 and 11 a. m. services.

Algernon T. Pyles, Railway Man, Dies

Algernon Thomas Pyles, 72, retired Norfolk & Western Railroad conductor, died yesterday at his home, 5547 Manning drive, Bethesda.

Born near Frederick, Md., Mr. Pyles moved to Blue Plains, W. Va., and entered the employ of the railroad when a young man. He retired two years ago as a veteran of nearly 45 years' service.

Mr. Pyles was a member of Bailey Masonic Lodge at Rock, W. Va., and of Ivanhoe Commandery at Bramwell, W. Va. He had lived in Bethesda since retirement.

Surviving are three sons, Dr. William T. Pyles, of Franklin, Va.; Ralph W. Pyles, of Martinsville, Va., and Edwin D. Pyles, of Bethesda; a daughter, Mrs. B. D. Myers, of Bethesda; two sisters, Mrs. W. E. Disney, of Washington, and Mrs. Sally Price, of Frederick, Md., and a brother, Wallace Pyles, of Urbana, Md.

Christian Science Subject Is 'Spirit'

"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from Ephesians 5:9: "The fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "But as it is written, eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." (I Corinthians 2:9.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is but one spiritual existence—the Life of which corporeal sense can take no cognizance. The divine Principle of man speaks through immortal sense." (Page 72.)

John Doerr Rites Are Set for Today

Funeral services for John Doerr, 59, Southeast Market grocer, will be held at his residence, 1119 S street southeast, at 2 p. m. today, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A native of Marburg, Germany, Mr. Doerr came to America with his mother when he was 10 years old, and after a short stay in Philadelphia, moved to Washington. He operated his store at the market for more than 35 years.

Mr. Doerr died Thursday at Homeopathic Hospital. He was a member of Arminius Lodge of Masons, who will conduct special services, and the Lutheran Church of the Reformation.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Hulda Doerr, and two sons, Paul L. and John D. Doerr.

The Thursday evening service will be conducted by Walter T. Lawton, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Lawton, of this city, a third-year student at the Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

Bethesda. Preaching on the subject of "The Eternal Gospel," the Rev. George W. Griffin, former pastor of this church, will occupy the pulpit at the 11 o'clock service, "The Happy Christian" will be his theme at the 8 p. m. service.

Chevy Chase. The Rev. Frank L. Griffin will preach on "Knowing and Not Knowing" at the 11 a. m. service in the absence of the Rev. Edward O. Clark, pastor, who is vacationing in the Adirondacks. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at this service.

Calvary. The Rev. Frank E. Johnston, jr., minister's assistant, will occupy the pulpit at the morning service, speaking on "At the Lord's Table." Communion Meditation will be followed by observance of the Lord's Supper. His topic for the evening service will be "The Two Builders." Assisting at the evening service will be Miss Winifred Whitney and John Gordon Mein.

Metropolitan. In absence of the pastor, Dr. John Compton Ball, the Rev. Gerald Payne, pastor of the Fourth Baptist Church of Portsmouth, Va., will occupy the pulpit at both services.

At the morning hour his sermon will be "Solemn Advice Given by Satan." In the evening he will speak on "What Will You Do With the Horses?"

Brookland. At a reception starting at 6 p. m. the church will honor two families who have been trusted and important members of the congregation for many years and who are being sent to other cities by the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Government.

Those to be feted are Mr. C. C. Marsh, superintendent of the Sunday school; Mrs. Marsh, superintendent of the Young People's department and a member of the board of trustees of the Baptist Children's Home; Mr. Glen Brumbaugh, who has been church treasurer for 13 years, and Mrs. Brumbaugh, also long active in the Young People's and church school departments.

Not Desirable As Yet.

Senator Burke's proposed constitutional amendment, restricting future Presidents to a single term of six years, would become significant only if President Roosevelt should in 1940 seek election for the third time. Should this happen the Presidential tenure of office would immediately become a vital issue. Otherwise the proposed six-year-term amendment will probably remain of purely academic concern.

At least two powerful arguments can be raised against the change advocated by Senator Burke, and by many other legislators since the early days of the Republic. A six or seven year term might permit an Administration to remain in power a long time after it had lost the confidence of the people. Since the Chief Executive is not responsible to the legislature, elections ought to be frequent enough to confirm his responsibility to the voters. At the same time each Administration should remain in office long enough to give its program a fair trial.

Experience has shown that at least four years are required to establish the policies of an Administration and to test the public reaction. At the end of that period voters are usually in a position to decide whether those policies should be continued or abandoned. A six-year Presidential term would go far to vitiate this popular supervision. Six years is too long a period to retain an unsatisfactory President. And a single term of that length would prevent the electorate from rewarding a deserving Executive.

Amendments to the Constitution should be made only when there is a compelling reason for the proposed change. The fact that the present system of four-year terms—limited by tradition to two for any one President—has served satisfactorily for a century and a half throws all the burden of proof upon advocates of any alternative plan.

It is reasonable to assume, therefore, that the present arrangement will continue in effect, unless it should be abused. In that event, legal limitation of the President's tenure of office will immediately become a necessary safeguard for democracy. In the meantime, however, energy may be more profitably exerted in securing satisfactory operation of the existing system.

Recession In Great Britain.

The latest official figures for unemployment in Great Britain show a total of 1,803,000 insured workers jobless at the end of June, an increase of 24,000 over the previous month and of nearly 500,000 over June, 1937.

The total is well below what it was in 1931-32, and on a proportionate basis compares very favorably with the estimated number of jobless in this country. But it is nevertheless an ominous development that unemployment should be on the increase in Great Britain at a time when rearmament activity is at or near its peak.

To be sure, the British rearmament program was not primarily designed to create work. The impulsion behind it is the disturbed international situation and Britain's desire to strengthen her military position so as to be prepared for all contingencies. At the same time, it was anticipated that rearmament would take up the industrial slack that has been developing in the kingdom. It is now clear that these expectations have been more than offset by other factors, of which the burden of increased taxation, now falling with particular weight on the British automobile industry, is one.

It is interesting to note that the greatest trade decline appears to have taken place in Britain's export industries. The shrinkage of foreign markets, including the extremely important American market, has contributed in no small measure to the decline. It is always so in a nation as dependent on international trade for its prosperity as is Great Britain.

No wonder, then, that the Federation of British Industries, in a recent memorandum, has urged the government to "use the great lever given us by the large purchasing power of our market to secure more favorable treatment for our export trade." And as one of their specific proposals the F. B. I. urges that Great Britain "retaliate" against those nations whose balance of trade with Britain is most "unfavorable" to the latter.

The United States happens to be in this category. But it is exceedingly doubtful whether retaliation would do much to solve Britain's trade problem. It would, on the contrary, be far more likely to intensify that problem by leading to a trade war. Such an outcome would work to the disadvantage of both nations, particularly at this time.

The depression in this country, which now shows signs of lifting, has had an adverse though delayed effect on Britain's economy. By the same token the current improvement in the United States should before long prove of material advantage to Great Britain.

The fact that the economic fate of both nations is linked together should redouble efforts for successful conclusion of the pending Anglo-American trade agreement. And the British industrialists would seem to be in accord with this objective, since they agree, with Secretary Hull, that only by increasing imports as well as exports can foreign trade bring lasting prosperity to any nation.

Evolution In Kentucky.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley's contempt for balanced budgets in his fight for renomination in Kentucky is of rather unusual interest. There was a time, not so long ago, when the Senator regarded an unbalanced budget as an unpardonable sin against the people. Some of the hottest words against governmental extravagance in the annals of Democratic politics have come from his lips. But all that has been forgotten in the Senator's contest with "Happy" Chandler. His closing appeals to Kentucky voters went straight to the pork barrel.

Six years ago Senator Barkley delivered the keynote address before the Democratic National Convention in Chicago. His speech was replete with bitter denunciation of the Hoover Administration for its "extravagance" and failure to balance the Federal budget. Among the pledges he made to the country was this:

> We shall reduce the constantly increasing burdens of extravagance in government by the elimination of all unnecessary and unproductive activities which have grown up without precedent in the history of the world.

When the Senator again occupied the position of keynoter, at the Philadelphia convention in 1936, he sought to minimize the enormous debts accumulated by the New Deal. But his faith in a balanced budget was still strong. He concluded his discussion of that subject as follows:

> We shall balance the budget. We shall balance the books in the Treasury. We shall soon ordain that no discrepancy between income and outgo shall exist. But we shall not do it at the expense of human life nor the degradation of the spirit and morale of our people.

Now even that conditional assurance has melted away in the heat of Kentucky's primary campaign. Gov. Chandler frankly centered his appeal for votes on the claim that he can "get more for you in six years than Ol' Alben got you in 26 years." Tactics of this sort are no novelty in Kentucky. Nevertheless, it is shocking to note the Majority Leader of the Senate lowering his plea for votes to the same crude basis. He is reported to have told an audience at Lowes Crossroads:

> If you want to swap all you're getting now from the Federal Government for a set of balanced budget books down in Washington, then vote for Happy Chandler. But if you want to keep on getting what you're getting, and get some more, too, then vote to keep me in the Senate.

If Senator Barkley is renominated today, and re-elected in November, the Administration will have as its leader in the Senate a man openly pledged to disregard the national credit in order that benefits, subsidies and spoils may flow even more abundantly into his home State. About the only consolation that can be found in this record is that the current pledge of additional spoils at the expense of the Treasury may mean no more than Senator Barkley's hypocritical lip-service to a balanced budget.

Symbolic Pauline.

The middle-aged, already forced to part with so many tender illusions, must now sorrowfully admit that their generation is exposed to at least one peril that even the brave Pauline could not survive. Those who can remember Pearl White in her two-reel heyday were accustomed to think of her as having not nine lives, but nine thousand. No amount of tossing her over precipices, chaining her in the track of approaching limiteds, locking her into cages of hungry lions, prisoning her in tanks of liquid concrete, could make an appreciable subtraction from the total.

It is true that a great wail of consternation often rose to the roof of the little nickelodeon as the final few feet of the installment flickered out into a fly-specked glare and the professor banged out his furious improvisation on the bass of the ancient upright. It was plenty strong meat, even if seasoned with the consciousness that if anybody could get out of a fix like that, it would be Pauline. It was too strong meat, maybe, for those who preferred the infantile glories of Miss Mary Pickford and Miss Marguerite Clark or the cameo beauty of Mr. Francis Xavier Bushman.

But then great ideas are always strong meat. And the philosophers realize that Pauline, in her endless struggle out of one apparently hopeless mess into another, was only a symbol of the human soul in its unceasing struggle against the multiplying evil of the world. The villains gave Pauline neither rest nor peace. Looking back, the greatest wonder of all was not in any of her escapes but in the fact that her mind did not break under a persecution complex.

The real point, however, is that the forces of evil schemed their schemes and laid their traps in vain. They could neither exhaust Pauline's ingenuity nor break her nerve. Would there were more of her spirit in the world today.

Japan Respects Force.

The diplomatic aftermath of the skirmishings which have taken place along the Manchukuo-Siberian border during the past three weeks reveals a significant reversal of roles by Japan and Russia.

At the time of the Amur incident, more than a year ago, it was Russia which first cried quits. After a Russian gunboat had been sunk by Japanese artillery, and two other Soviet vessels put to rout, Moscow suggested diplomatic arbitration of the quarrel over the ownership of the disputed Amur islands. Russia was, at the time, obviously unprepared for war.

It is doubtful whether Russia is more anxious now to permit the recent border clashes to develop into a large-scale conflict. As suggested in these columns when the current Russo-Japanese flare-up began, both sides have been bluffing. But whereas, a year ago, Russia was in no position to talk back to the Japanese, Japan now happens to be in no position to take any chances with the Russians.

That is, no doubt, why the suggestion for a diplomatic settlement has this time come from Tokyo rather than from Moscow. And that also explains why Russia is demanding the execution of prior conditions—principally the withdrawal of Japanese troops from the disputed area—as the price of her acquiescence. Evidently the Kremlin feels that this is the time to win a notable victory of prestige over the hard-pressed Japanese. And with her present tremendous involvement in China, Japan is likely to decide that she can safeguard such honor as is left to her without inviting the risk of Russian air raids on Tokyo.

This does not mean that the danger of war developing from conflicting Russo-Japanese aims and policies in the Far East has been permanently shelved. But it does mean admission by the Japanese warlords that their country is in no position to take on China and Russia simultaneously.

Corrigan's Back.

A joke's a joke and enough's enough, even for Douglas Corrigan. He turned up at the Battery in New York exactly as planned and he rode in the anticipated direction up Hero's Lane—otherwise, Broadway. And, of course, Broadway packed with an estimated million onlookers, immediately became entangled in endless miles of ticker tape, a not altogether unpleasant sensation in view of the stock quotations of the past few weeks.

The mayor made a pretty speech, Corrigan replied in good Gaelic humor, the boats on the river blew their whistles, the crowd forgot the heat and yelled itself hoarse and, after it was all over, along came the street cleaning department to sweep up the mess and determine by actual weight the precise joyousness of the occasion.

In a sense, however, it was too bad that New York couldn't have thought up a more unusual way to greet this very unusual fellow. His stereotyped Broadway reception rather brackets him with channel swimmers, movie stars and all the other run-of-the-Whalen nine-day wonders that periodically distract the city from its grindstone.

Corrigan's a good deal more. The speed of his transatlantic flight is not on the top of the mounting heap of aviation records. But the incidental circumstances of his rash stunt—his ordinary plane, his lack of backing and equipment and his hilarious "mistake"—all will keep his name bright in the minds of humdrum homebodies who dote on Jack Benny and Jack-the-Giant-Killer.

And, by the way, when and if Corrigan comes to Washington, it is to be hoped some one will take him down to the Tidal Basin, where work is just beginning on the Jefferson Memorial. As a "wrong way" expert, he may be able to provide an alibi where one is needed.

"Scientists aren't so smart. Several years ago they all agreed that if an atom were split, the world would go to pieces, and now splitting an atom is a routine experiment," declares an editor. Yes, but isn't the world going to pieces?

"What would you do if, when you made a 5-cent call from a pay telephone and hung up the receiver, six nickels fell into the coin-return slot?" asks a psychologist. We'd play 'em back and try to hit the jackpot.

Summer Down South.

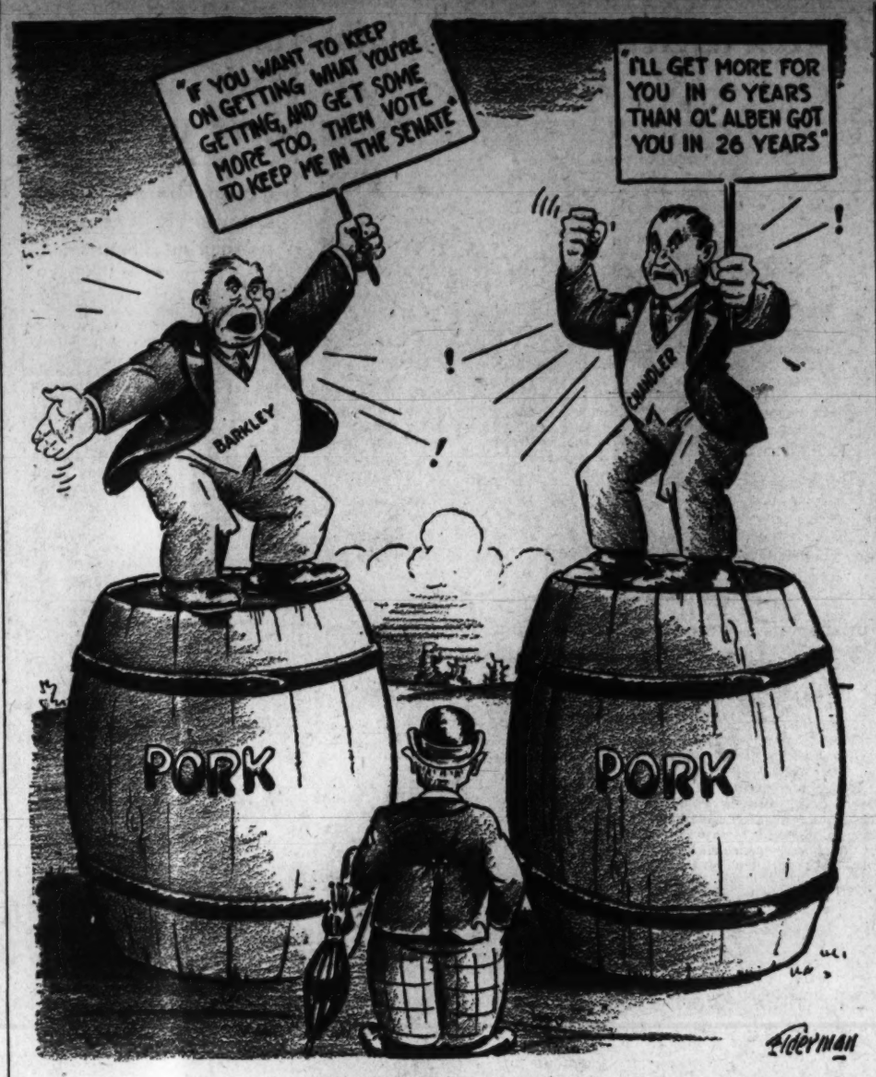

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Hot, humid weather in New England and the North may turn questioning eyes toward the South, where, in popular thought, the mercury is always high in the tube. "How do they stand it?" some may ask.

The fact is that the degree of relative humidity which the Atlantic Coast has been experiencing recently—while varying areas of atmospheric pressure from Canada and the Bermudas have been battling it out over the Eastern seaboard—is not met with regularly in the South, even in hottest summer, except in moist or swampy districts. Most of the South is high and dry, and dry heat is not nearly so discomforting.

Not that the South doesn't have hot weather, and plenty of it! But it is the customary thing, and its people dress for it. Wool suits in the South are practically unknown from June 1 to mid-September. Then, too, the South has learned to move in a more leisurely fashion—and there's sure to be plenty of cool buttermilk and chilled watermelons in the springhouse on the farm.

Oh, yes, the South is hot. We shouldn't have cotton and sweet potatoes and all-season fruits and vegetables if it weren't. And perhaps the climate has something to do with the traditional warmth of Southern hospitality and Southern hearts.

Letters To The Editor

More On Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I was interested in reading in The Post of August 4 a letter from "P. L. R." commenting on Mr. Lindley's article in The Post of August 1, on "Debt of a Nation," in which he questions many of Mr. Lindley's statements.

To the writer Mr. Lindley's article throughout seemed utterly lacking in logic and, I might also say, in common sense. In his effort to prove black is white he goes so far as to state that it is not necessary to pay the principal on the national debt, but merely the interest. I wonder why Mr. Lindley thinks there is such a difference between a public and a private debt. Surely he does not conduct his own private affairs in that manner.

After reading Mr. Lindley's article I began to speculate on how many subscribers of The Post would really profit by reading it. To me it seemed strictly a camouflage from beginning to end. He states that the "total debts of the States and localities have not increased" during the past eight years. This seems rather surprising in view of the many expenditures which they have been called upon to share with the Government. Also he states that "in themselves the figures of any kind of debt are meaningless." They are not so meaningless if there is any intent to pay, and when there is no intent to pay, the "national productive system as a whole," on which Mr. Lindley relies so much, is no protection.

In 1937, he states, the total national income was $70,000,000,000, and in 1938 it may be about $60,000,000,000. Does that look like a favorable time to increase the expenditures by several billions? In another place he states that "Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Mellon were reigning in Washington and nobody was complaining about the Federal debt burden." No, for the very good reason that we were not spending more than our income, and besides were reducing our debt all the time.

But of all of Mr. Lindley's arguments the climax is reached when he states: "So the great Roosevelt debt, about which we have heard so much lamentation during the past five years, has not yet put as heavy a burden on the taxpayer as they were bearing for the five years beginning in 1919." And this statement in the face of the fact that so far not a cent has been paid, even on the interest, not to mention the principal.

Before Mr. Lindley gets too complacent on the light burden the present Government debt imposes upon the taxpayers it might be well for him to wait till a beginning is made toward its payment.

On "Hick Towns."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I am writing this in reference to Secretary Fairfax Naulty, of the reception committee for Corrigan. Secretary Naulty has asked the people not to throw papers and act childishly. He says this is the "Nation's Capital" and not a "hick town."

How well we know this is the Nation's Capital and not a "hick town." We are reminded every day in the year of it. If he would just take a look in the allies, streets and particularly around the Capitol he would find more papers than he could find in a "hick town." Also take a look at the alleys around North Capitol and First streets northwest. So-called "hick town" streets are kept ten times cleaner than the Capital's streets.

Take, for instance, some of our Southern towns. Dallas, Fort Worth, Aiken, Graniteville and Warrenville, S. C., Ellicott City, Md., and even Baltimore have cleaner alleys and streets than we do here. The "hick" factory towns through the South are kept lots cleaner, too.

Question To Mr. Barr.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
I will gladly accede to the wishes of Mr. Barr to discuss additional features concerning the New Deal.

Regarding the 12,000,000 unemployed, it should be remembered that the vested interests of the country have attempted to throttle every effort made by the Administration to spread employment and purchasing power and they succeeded very well in doing so in the case of the NRA. At this point I want to make it clear that I did not subscribe to all of the features of the Blue Eagle. It attempted to do too many things. In other words I am not a 100 per cent New Dealer as Mr. Barr appears to be a 100 per cent anti-New Dealer.

The prime objective of the new wages and hours legislation cannot be tossed lightly aside by such a reference as "claptrap." It seems perfectly fair to me to ask critics of this measure to offer a better substitute when they hurl missiles in its path. I am not so blindly optimistic as to expect anything created by humans to attain perfection but on the other hand I do expect critics of human creations to offer better substitutes when they criticize.

In other words, I should like to ask Mr. Barr (and I believe it to be a perfectly fair question) how he would solve the problem of unemployment?

Support For Garner.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Yes, "Texas Is Texas," but we didn't know we are "wild and woolly," as The Post describes us following the nomination of Mr. W. Lee O'Daniel for Governor.

I voted for Col. Ernest O. Thompson, of Amarillo. I am a Democrat. I took a pledge to support the nominee. And now that Lee O'Daniel is the nominee I shall keep that pledge. I kept that pledge in 1928 from President down to public weigher in my county. I say to you this "wild and woolly Texas" gave to our country the greatest Vice President, John Nance Garner, it has ever known. More than that, we stand behind him 100 per cent for President in 1940.

"Dark And Bloody."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
An article on the August 2 editorial page of The Post, credited to the Dallas News and entitled "Dark and Bloody," is so erroneous I must make exceptions.

William Goebel was a Democrat elected as Governor of, at that time Republican, West Virginia. He was shot ascending the capitol steps in Charleston from an adjacent window. Caleb Powers escaped to a State, I think Indiana, where the Republican Governor never would sign extradition papers for his return to West Virginia for trial and he was never tried for the crime if he committed it.

I don't know anything about Chandler's case, but it seems to be a bit of hooey.

"Slush Funds."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Recent experience in Virginia and Missouri has been discouraging to the primary primers.

No wonder Honeymoon Hal is impatient to have PWA funds accepted quickly. Results so far have shown that if he and the other New Dealers are to buy the elections this year they must spend faster than they have been.

Speed up the slush funds, says Hal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
The recent determination of our city planners to develop East Washington although belated is very urgent. The proposed development of East Capitol street by the costruction of buildings to house exhibits of the industries and resources of the several States is a move in the right direction, but any one who has walked for days through exhibits at our World Fairs sees the fallacy in the details of this proposition.

Exhibits should be grouped by industries rather than by states. The same articles are produced in many States. The building contractor would be worn out before he visited one-half of the State buildings containing marble, or vitrified clay products. Modern life is so complex that the businessman must be able to secure all necessary information in the least time and with the minimum expenditure of energy.

If this permanent industrial exposition were properly planned, the development of our foreign commerce might be transferred from the realm of dreams to that of reality, and Washington might become the business as well as the political center of this Nation.

But the buildings should be located on Route 1 as it enters Washington from the north and east, either on Bladensburg road or Maryland avenue, for business insists on accessibility. The proposed stadium should also be located near the exhibition so that businessmen may combine business and pleasure with the least effort. This permanent industrial exposition would require hotels and service stores close at hand and further develop the Nation's Capital.

Mad Dog Scares.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Genuine rabies is one of the rarest of diseases and exists oftener in frigid regions than in warm ones. Madness in dogs is nothing but ordinary fits, to which the dog, being an exceedingly nervous animal, is peculiarly subject. Indigestion is the most frequent cause, augmented by the heat.

There are several kinds of fits. The most common is when the dog races around, tongue protruding with foam at mouth, caused by the saliva beaten up by the champing jaws. The dog with such a fit will not bite unless the hand is thrust between the jaws, as the motion is purely mechanical.

The writer has owned and raised many breeds of dogs for 40 years, has handled dogs with all kinds of fits, and has never received a bite from a dog with a fit; also I once saved the life of a magnificent St. Bernard which would have been shot (it was foaming at the mouth, blood coming from the eyes), by dashing cold water repeatedly on its head and giving it bromide of potash. The public should not be alarmed and hundreds of harmless dogs destroyed by such untrue propaganda.

Disapproves Of A. A. A.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:
Regarding the position of the American Automobile Association in the matter of the three yellow parking lines, please permit me to say that I am a member of the A. A. A. and disagree emphatically with its position.

I think the regulation a good one and it ought to be enforced. I think also any motorist who says he doesn't know what the lines are for ought not be driving a car. Probably such drivers don't want to know. In the beginning, when there were no markings, I think a court test was proper, but just now it looks as though the A. A. A. is taking a small and childish position.

The Post Impressionist

E. V. L.

THE other day the papers carried the news of the death of one, an Englishman, who I think contributed more to the enjoyment of literature than any other of his contemporary countrymen I could name. Except it be Christopher Morley, there is no one like him in America. He was one of that select company known to their readers by their initials. It is a form of intimacy that seems to betoken a zealous devotion and fidelity.

E. V. Lucas first of all was a humorist, and his humor, along with a bent for literary wandering, led him into many lanes of literature. His books number well over a hundred, including biography, essays, travel, "entertainments," anthologies, poetry, and drama. A good deal of his work appeared first in the journal Punch, and if you are of the type that can appreciate Punch, you like E. V. L. Once Lucas told Ford Madox Ford that the reason why Ford could not appreciate Charles Lamb was that he was not really English, and that he was not really English because he did not appreciate Punch.

But E. V. Lucas did appreciate Charles Lamb. He did more than that: he wrote his biography, he edited the works of Charles and Mary Lamb, he compiled their letters, he worshiped at the Lamb shrine. In a way he was Charles Lamb. A London obituary dispatch that I have before me says: "Mr. Lucas was a born essayist; a twentieth century Charles Lamb. He was neither so robust as Lamb nor so emotional, but had the same curiosity about the seemingly unusual, the same amusingly eccentric type of learning."

About four years ago I sent E. V. L. a clipping of a piece I had written about Charles Lamb in which I repeated the observation that the mantle of Lamb had fallen on E. V. Lucas. Probably he had denied this many times, but he replied graciously:

"Thank you for sending me your very sympathetic article; but you must not say that that mantle has descended on me. Not true."

But, of course, it was true, and now that he is gone, what shall we do for a modern Charles Lamb? What shall we do for an E. V. L.? It is probably true that, as the New York Times obituary editorialized, "his essays had a kind of preciosity, a detachment from reality, and a fancifulness that was utterly out of keeping with our times," but that does not render their kind any less indispensable to a generation gone mad with timeliness. There will always be need, I hope, for those who write for pure delight rather than for the conscious urgency of what they have to say. It is not improbable that the Essays of Elia will live as long as, say, Carlyle's "French Revolution."

I should like to have met E. V. L. But many of those who knew him have given us glimpses that are revealing and that sometime will be studied for a full-length biographical portrait of the man. Ford Madox Ford said of him: "Like all English humorists he was of a mournful and taciturn cast. On the very finest days he carried an umbrella." Arnold Bennett wrote in his journal: "He knows everybody, but I have often wondered whether anybody really knows him . . . The humor of the Lucas essays is sunny and kindly. The humor of Lucas himself is cynically tolerant."

George H. Doran, the publisher, in his book "The Chronicles of Barabbas," describes E. V. L. at some length. "His personality," he says, "was one of his main charms, and only by a real knowledge of the man behind the books could any considerable public become fully conscious of his precious quality. In England he had that public . . .

"Lucas thinks and speaks in terms of writing. His soft-spoken voice flows with a polished essay-like rhythm, and if he is amused, he is subtly humorous in that same mellow tone. His nearest approach to laughter is a soft movement of the lips, and a smile which on a face less classic would become sardonic."

And of all the tributes to E. V. Lucas I have seen this from his friend George H. Doran is the most worthy, especially since it was written while E. V. L. was alive:

"We are about the same in years, E. V. and I. Long may he live, and may we depart this world together, for I should like to be his companion of honor as he does his Wanderer in Eternity; I should like to meet with him those great artists and writers over the centuries of civilization with whom he has such rich acquaintance."

And they, we are quite sure, were glad to greet him.

Fair Enough

Challenge Accepted.

Your correspondent has been taken up on his offer to sculp a better statue of St. Francis of Assisi than that with which it is proposed to deface Christmas Tree Hill in San Francisco or forfeit $100 toward a fund to prevent the erection of Benjamin Bufano's conventionalized drain pipe on one of the most majestic natural sites in urban America. Mr. Bufano, the author of the pipe design, wires that he has posted $100 with the San Francisco Press Club, the walls of which, adorned as they are with some of Mr. Rube Goldberg's early originals, should put the man to the blush. Your correspondent is sending $100 immediately to the barman of the same institution, and the contest is on, although certain minor particulars remain to be adjusted.

For one, it was not necessary for Mr. Bufano to post $100. The proposition was not a wager, but a public-spirited offer to start a fund to prevent an esthetic atrocity. This was plainly stated, but it seems only natural that a man who could spend a long time studying the life, times work and appearance of St. Francis on his home grounds in Assisi and come up with a figure of a man emerging from a culvert could miss the point. However, his $100 should be welcome, because the WPA seems to be financing the conspiracy against San Francisco's skyline, and it is well within the rules of civilized warfare to fire captured ammunition at the enemy.

MR. BUFANO deviates in a more serious particular, however, when he proposes that the loser's taw be forfeited to an outing fund for San Francisco orphans—a worthy charity, to be sure, but no more beneficial in the long run than the original purpose. Outings are but momentary and it should be considered that unless this fund prospers and the purpose be achieved, unborn generations of San Francisco children will return from outings in the hills and on the sea feverish, fretful and colicky from glimpsing a stack 180 feet high affronting St. Francis and suggesting dangerous misadventure. The children's imagination will play with fearsome interpretations. Some will see it as a hold-up victim standing in a barrel, others as Zacchini, the circus performer who is fired from a cannon, still others as a man falling down a cistern.

Mr. Bufano promised to send a sculptor's mallet and chisel, adding with a trace of something that might be unkindness that your correspondent probably needs no teaching in the use of the chisel. He is confused again. Your correspondent has some facility with the mallet, but it needs no saying that those who work on the art projects of the WPA use the chisel as though it grew in their hands.

• • • •

THE DISPOSITION of the money can be arranged by a committee, and it seems best that your correspondent now give a general indication of the statue which he purposes to sculp. It will have sandals on the feet, of course, and wings—if wings are not too hard to do. There will also be a rather large fish, representing the sea, a wheat shock for agriculture, a geared wheel for industry, a sledge hammer for labor, a compass and a retort for science, a car wheel for transportation, a propeller for the merchant marine, a scythe or hourglass, or perhaps just a dollar watch, for the time element, a cornucopia for the Old Deal and a life preserver for the United States Coast Guard. Further details will occur as the work progresses, but this will provide a rough idea.

It would be unfair to place a time limit on your correspondent, who has never had a lesson in his life and hasn't even yet found a suitable rock. Would six weeks be a reasonable period, considering that it took Mr. Bufano several years to design a drain pipe?

There is only one fear in this competition. It seems impossible, but your correspondent might turn out a design more awful than Mr. Bufano's, and in that case the same jury might construe it as high art and place it on Christmas Tree Hill.

Sailor Who Saved 5 Cited By Swanson

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson yesterday announced the award of two letters of commendation to Donald Wynn Brown, quartermaster, third class, United States Navy, for saving the lives of five men.

Brown, who has also been recommended to the Treasury Department for the award of the Life Saving Medal, saved a fellow seaman from drowning last March during maneuvers.

He made the other rescues the following month at Lahaina, Maui, Territory of Hawaii, when four Navy men were thrown into the sea after a motor launch struck a reef.

Now a member of the crew of the destroyer Truxton, Brown is a native of Little Rock, Ark. His mother, Mrs. Dorothy B. Brown, lives at Laguna Beach, Calif.

Early Birds Board Elects Chairmen

The board of the Early Birds Breakfast Club yesterday elected these committee chairman: John B. Thompson, Leo C. May, John W. Roper, Godfrey L. Munter, Edward T. Stafford and Lewis R. Potts.

Heard 'Round The World

Is Japan So Poor?

Is Japan so poor? . . . Japan is self-sufficient in food. How many of the world's countries, except rich America, can say as much about their own food situations? The paddy fields in Japan, intensely cultivated, together with those in Korea and Formosa, produce more than sufficient rice to enable her people to live with three square meals a day. Vegetables and fruits are abundant. Her inshore waters, extending from the cold northern latitudes almost to the tropics, supply sufficient fish. With rice, vegetables and fish in abundance, the chemistry of the Japanese stomach can produce enough energy to keep on fighting forever.—Herald of Asia, Tokyo.

Definition.

Fascism gives birth to a radiation of perpetual vitality; it is a fountain of irresistible attraction. It is the dynamo of a stupendous civilization, the fulcrum of the people of tomorrow. It has no need of propaganda committees nor of secret emissaries. It marches, it expands, it conquers by the driving imperative of fate. Powerful and uncontrollable, like the essential and primitive forces of nature, it smashes the bulwarks of the old order and creates the history of a new century.—Giuseppe Villaroel in Regime Fascista, Cremona.

"And One Obeys . . ."

When we cast a comprehensive glance over the world today and see other peoples at grips with grave economic, social and political crises; when we see this world calling itself democratic, stigmatizing our regime as authoritarian and dictatorial, we can well reply that here (in Germany) we govern and one obeys. And when envious foreigners complain and pretend there is no more right to criticize with us, we reply: there is right to criticize, only it is not subordinates that criticize their superiors but the chiefs who criticize their subordinates.—From a speech by Propaganda Minister Goebbels at Dessau.

Frankness.

We must show the people that happiness cannot be found in our artificial modern life; they must seek it in individual adaptations to their environment; I know that the poor can never make themselves completely happy. For the solution of the problem I have just stated, I rely on the reduction of education, a careful selection of what is to be taught, the protection of the country districts from evil influences and the depopulation of the towns . . . In the newspapers I often read this pitiful sentence: "The people must be taught to read," and I say to myself, "What shall they read?" It is education and undesirable literature, these are our enemies.—Premier Oliveira Salazar of Portugal.

Paris Letter

Although Reassured By British Monarchs' Visit And By Morale Shown On Bastille Day, France Is Upset By Finances.

By Jacques Kayser.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Paris.

BASTILLE DAY, July, 14, was celebrated this year with unprecedented enthusiasm. The military parade which marched before the members of the government and a vast cheering crowd of Parisian spectators was a comforting spectacle to all who witnessed it and to all France.

A certain measure of uneasiness and pessimism has recently characterized the attitude of the French people on the subject of the republic's military might. The July 14 review demonstrated the strength of the French army, its free and happy discipline, its animation. The event helped to reestablish French morale, which has been further helped by the visit of the British King and Queen. This last not only gave witness to the world of the stability of the Franco-British entente but also of the power of the democracies.

More and more the fact is being appreciated in France that fascism refuses to disarm, that despite all the words of Mussolini fascism is becoming an "article of export," and that the hour has come for the democracies to resist encroachments or face dissolution.

Financial Problems Still Beset Daladier.

WHAT CAN the Daladier regime do? It is assailed by a host of problems, with the eternal problem of finance in the forefront.

Every time that hopes have arisen that, at least, this problem has been solved, new difficulties arise to prove that it has not been solved at all. No sooner, for instance, does the budget appear balanced, than increased expenditures or decreased income or both tend to unbalance it more than ever.

"Every unnecessary or superfluous expense has been eliminated," said Premier Daladier the other day at a banquet tendered him by his compatriots of Provence. Yet what do the figures show?

Receipts in the ordinary general budget have mounted to 54,700,000,000 francs, those of the amortization fund at 6,058,000,000 francs—a grand total of 60,758,000,000. At the same time expenditures for ordinary purposes are expected to amount to 54,700,000,000—capital expenditures have risen to 14,200,000,000, the costs of war pensions to 2,500,000,000 and the amortization fund now amount to 5,440,000,000, making a grand total of 76,840,000,000 francs. In other words, the government will find it necessary to borrow 16,082,000,000 francs.

Optimists Pin Hopes On Decree-Laws' Yield.

THE MORE optimistic argue that the recent decree-laws issued by the Daladier government will bring in additional revenue to the tune of 3,700,000,000 francs, but it is very difficult to base a reasonable financial policy on such calculations, for they are dependent on a revival of industry which may or may not take place.

The return of capital, a noticeable improvement in the commercial bank balance (largely the result of devaluation) and the improvement of the stock market are obviously favorable elements. But the steady and rapid increase in expenditures for national defenses is not. I know very well that the first national defense loan was enthusiastically oversubscribed; but it was necessary soon after to float a second. Was that not a mistake?

Many cabinet members favored the second method and there can be little doubt that, had it been tried, it would have proved a success, with a minimum of 20,000,000,000 francs likely to be obtained in that way. But the minister of finance and his collaborators, warm partisans of the most orthodox methods, hesitated to put such an idea into practice. They placed their faith in small loans floated at recurrent intervals. Events may prove that their timidity did the nation no good.

For France the financial problem remains exceptionally difficult because of the enormous burden of expenditures for national defense and for debt payment. At the same time the national income has shown no equal capacity to rise. In 1929 it amounted to 245,000,000,000 francs; by 1935 it had fallen to 172,000,000,000, and while it has since risen—to 220,000,000,000 in 1937—this was in no small measure the result of two devaluations. Actually, therefore, the national income, reckoned in terms of purchasing power, has probably declined by 20 per cent.

In contrast, public expenditures have, using the same basis for calculation, gone up by 29 per cent. In 1929 the state absorbed about 25 per cent of the national income. In 1937 it absorbed about 27 per cent, but to this must be added an additional 16 per cent representing the indirect burden imposed on the French people by devaluation and governmental borrowing.

Three Months' Work Needed To Meet Taxes.

THESE FIGURES have led one French economist to make this categorical assertion: At the present time every Frenchman is spending a quarter of his earnings (three months of labor) to take care of two-thirds of the public expenditures.

Several details can be furnished which throw light on the true aspect of the French financial situation. The two bases of the fiscal system are, in first place income taxes, in one form or another and, in the second, taxes on property, patents, etc. In 1937 the income taxes brought in a little more than 5,600,000,000 francs, while the property and other levies brought in 9,280,000,000.

Income taxes are paid on incomes in excess of 11,000 francs. Out of more than 40,000,000 Frenchmen, 1,652,537 in 1937 were liable to the tax. Among them 746,093 declared an income of less than 20,000 francs. There were 1,400,000 Frenchmen whose income was reported at less than 40,000 francs. Thus there were only 40,000 Frenchmen whose income in 1937 amounted to more than 100,000 francs and only 402 who admitted an income of more than a million francs.

France is essentially an agricultural country. There is a tax on receipts from farms. But only 98,528 were, in 1937, subject to that tax and this levy which should be among the most important brought in only 23,898,493 francs.

All these figures show, on the one hand, that the French fiscal system is far from being perfect, and on the other hand, that external developments and the economic crisis weigh heavily upon it. They establish the fact that the only effective remedy is one which combines internal order plus the return of decent international conditions. But this obviously does not depend alone of the wishes of Frenchmen.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Britons Coming To Judgment.

London, August 5.

I WENT to England having been told by all sorts of men who are supposed to hear things at first hand that the British ruling class had made up its mind to give Hitler a free hand for the conquest of Central and Eastern Europe and to give Mussolini and Hitler a victory in Spain. This view is, I understand, the one held by many official observers. Much evidence can be adduced in support of it, for example, the private but outspoken remarks of highly placed members of the British government after the resignation of Capt. Anthony Eden.

It is supported also by argument. Thus it is said that Hitler in his book "Mein Kampf" declares that Germany must not again go to war with Britain, and that, therefore, by letting him satisfy his ambitions in eastern Europe, the empire can be made secure. It is said that the British ruling class believes that another war would destroy it, and that it must concede anything in Europe, except of course Belgium, in order to avoid war. And it is said that the function of Mr. Chamberlain is to arrange an orderly retreat and that the function of Lord Runciman is to pick the bones of Czechoslovakia so that the Germans may eat it without choking.

• • • •

HAVING BEEN to England again, I have come away convinced that if this conception of Britain is believed in Berlin, it is perhaps the most dangerous delusion now current in this feverishly deluded world. For it may lead the Germans to make once more the tragic error of Bethmann-Hollweg in 1914 when he, too, believed that Britain was divided, was pacifist and would never intervene with full force in a quarrel originating in a little Slav state in Central Europe. And the observers who make so much of Lord Londonderry's visit to Gen. Goering, and of the so-called pro-Germanism of the "Cliveden Set," do not, I think, understand very well the process of the British mind in the presence of supremely great issues.

The British today are confronted with a supremely great issue—only thrice before, at the time of the Spanish Armada and at the time of Napoleon and in 1917, have their possessions, their position in the world and their ideals been challenged so fundamentally as they are today. They know it. There is no doubt whatever that they know it. To suppose that they do not know it is to mistake dinner table conversation, the correct and conventional phrases of diplomacy, and the immensely discreet language of their great newspapers, for the real thoughts of the men who will in the end decide Britain's destiny.

FOR WHAT the world thinks is the British attitude is something very different: It is the British policy of the moment. And that policy is the ancient policy of an experienced ruling class beset by great dangers. It is the Fabian policy of delay, of avoiding and postponing the issue by every device, by delay not only for the sake of strengthening their army but of delay in the hope that negotiations might succeed, in the hope that it may be possible to make contact with the more moderate elements that still exist in Germany, or delay because the British do not stir themselves to a supreme effort until their own moral scruples are thoroughly satisfied.

The danger of misunderstanding the British today lies in thinking that their Fabian policy represents their final and fixed conviction, that because they seek to avoid decisive issues, they will never reach a decision. The contrary is, I am sure, the truth. This Fabian policy is not the expression of their final convictions about Europe; it is the experience in which their final convictions are being formed. Therefore, however badly the British think of the Nazi record inside Germany, they have refused to prejudge Hitler's ultimate purposes. They are studying Hitler as they studied Napoleon and they have not at the present time fully completed their study. But if I am any judge of opinion, I would say that they have reached a point in their studies where, though they will still give him the benefit of every doubt, the margin of their doubts is getting very thin. There is something left, but not nearly so much as there was, to which Hitler can still appeal in order to convince them that there is room in the same world both for the British civilization and the Nazi philosophy.

WE ARE so used to seeing the fate of nations decided by the arbitrary impulses of a single man that we have almost forgotten what happens when a free people goes through the agonizing process of making up its mind. That agonizing process is now under way in Britain, and it is likely to prove to be the most momentous occurrence in modern history. For when a Hitler continues to force upon the British the conviction that they cannot negotiate with him and that they cannot live with him, he is conjuring up out of the depths of a reluctant but most tenacious people a force which is incalculable.

The temper of England today is ominous to anyone who saw the British collect themselves in 1914 and sees again the signs appearing of their terrible anger when their profoundest moral convictions are completely outraged and fully aroused. It is ominous if the Nazis fail to understand this, and what Hitler needs to send to London is not an agent who knows what he thinks, but some one who is capable of making him comprehend the process by which the British make up their minds as to what they think.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Letters To The Government Free Clothes Board.

Gentlemen: I am through with the Democratic Party. The suit I got from the Government $10,000,000 distribution of surplus clothes was two sizes too small and only skeleton lined. I wrote Washington about alterations, but got no answer. A VOTER.

• • • •

Dear Sirs: I am a woman voter and always voted for Roosevelt and the New Deal. What am I to think, then, when with $10,000,000 worth of men's clothes at your disposal you stuff my husband into a green suit with pink stripes and with pants four inches too short for him? He looked funny enough. WIFE.

• • • •

Gents: Knowing that the Government had bought $10,000,000 worth of clothes from the clothing industry to promote recovery, and that it was going to give these clothes away, I went down to the bureau and asked for a light gray with pencil stripes, as my wife says I look best in that kind of a suit. The bureau said it was all out of them and made me take a brown suit with no stripes at all. I have always been a Democrat, but I have just found that the man across the street got a gray suit with pencil stripes from the Government and is a registered Republican. Do you call this justice? ELMER.

• • • •

Gentlemen: You should see that suit I got from you last week. It was a pretty tight fit, anyhow, but the first week-end I wore it I got caught in a heavy rain and you should see it now! I wish you would tell Mr. Roosevelt I am going to demand that Mr. Hoover run again. UNHAPPY.

• • • •

Dear Uncle Sam: I asked for a blue raglan and the Government sent me a pair of golf pants and the coat to a blue business suit. I am accustomed to confusion in Government bureaus, but my patience was exhausted when I sent back the clothes, notified the clothes distributors of the error and got back a straw hat, two pairs of rubber boots and a sports sweater.

I tell you, the Democratic Party will lose thousands of votes this way. NUDE DEALER.

• • • •

Gents: That suit you fitted me to was okay until I got home and looked in my own mirror. All I can say is that I hope the Republicans win the next election. DISAPPOINTED.

Texas Democrats' Governor Choice

W. LEE O'DANIEL, whose victory in the Lone Star State primary is discussed by Mark Sullivan on this page today.

The O'Daniel Victory

By Mark Sullivan

The Texas Surprise.

ANY careful estimate of the outcome of these current primaries, in various parts of the country, is likely to say that a change is taking place in the mass mood of the people. It is too intangible, and as yet not sufficiently crystallized to be assayed by the diligent takers of questionnaires and polls. It is emerging as a surprise.

The most striking expression of it, the event that called attention to it, was the action of the Texas electorate in giving the Democratic nomination for governor (equivalent to election) to a man who had never been in politics before, who could not even vote because he had not given attention to paying his poll tax, who entered the race only 40 days before the primary and whose leading opponents were long experienced in politics, in office-holding and in association with the political organization.

• • • •

POLITICIANS and observers, in Washington and everywhere, are giving intent thought to this Texas development, what caused it and what it portends. The day after Mr. O'Daniel's victory, I suggested it might be a clue to what is in the minds of the people. And I suggested that "some writer or other person in Texas who can see beneath the surface ought to tell us carefully and accurately what it was in the minds of the Texas voters that led them to elect as governor this extraordinary figure."

• • • •

I HAVE received some illuminating letters. It is clear that an essential factor was the acquaintance Mr. O'Daniel had built up with the Texas people by several years of radio broadcasts of his business as a flour manufacturer. He had the record for radio fan mail in Texas. The Texas folks had come to know Mr. O'Daniel's personality, and they liked him. I quote from a thoughtful letter written by Mr. A. W. King of Wichita Falls:

"For several years Mr. O'Daniel has been on the air daily in a commercial broadcast, and each of his programs has been humanized, featuring the home, religion, sobriety, safety on the highways, honesty and decency. His programs have been consistently along these lines, and it is my opinion that when he announced for Governor he had a tremendous number of people who believed him to be a clean-cut, level-headed man of high morals, and this impression spread as though carried by mental telepathy. . . ."

• • • •

ASSUMING this judgment about the public mood is current, and it is borne out by other events in other parts of the country, the development has importance in national politics.

As to what Mr. O'Daniel, as candidate for Governor, stood for, there is light in some passages from his campaign speeches. The following sentences, or the spirit of them, was repeated by Mr. O'Daniel over and over. It was the keynote of his campaign:

"We can't legislate ourselves out of this depression—we can only work our way out of it. Let us adopt a program of more and harder work in Texas, and maybe other States will get the idea . . . What have the politicians ever done for business except kick it around, to restrict it, and to burden it with taxation."

Further light on Mr. O'Daniel, and on the Texas mood that took kindly to him, is contained in some sentences which I detach and condense from an obviously well-informed article in the Texas Weekly:

"The half a million people who voted for him represent an accurate cross section of the people of Texas. They include all classes, rich, poor, and middle class, executives of big corporations, laborers and tenant farmers. This fact invalidates all the other explanations of his election, especially the one which attributes his success to the novelty of his campaign methods. The real explanation is that a situation, and the right man, were brought together in his candidacy."

• • • •

THE LAST sentence has much meaning. It implies that the people generally have come to see one of the most fundamental of all economic truths. That is that prosperity, contentment, well being can come only as a result of production, work. Failure to grasp this truth accounts for the economic fallacy of the New Deal, expressed in its monetary experiments which assume that wealth can be created by changing the yardstick of money, and its agricultural program, which deliberately sets about decreasing true wealth by limiting production.

One swallow does not make a summer. And one State, even as big a one as Texas, does not make a country. But there is additional evidence, buttressing the Texas event, to suggest that the mass mood of America may be passing through a momentous change.

European Reactions

By Barnet Nover

Because Russia Stood Firm.

THE latest turn in Russo-Japanese relations bears out the proverb that tea is never drunk as hot as it is brewed.

For three weeks tensions between the two nations have steadily been rising. During that time hardly a day passed without a bloody encounter between Japanese and Soviet troops along the disputed boundary dividing Siberia from Manchukuo on the one hand and from Korea on the other. The situation appeared to be heading toward a spectacular climax. What is now in prospect, however, is an anti-climax.

In Tokyo on Friday a spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Office said that "prospects are bright" for a peaceful settlement of the dispute over the unsettled border. And this, he added, is "what Japan has sought from the beginning." Since Russia, too, has no desire to embark on a large-scale war at this time the presumption now is that the two nations will now patch up a truce of some kind in the region where fighting has taken place.

• • • •

Thus the Changkufeng incident promises to go down in the troubled history of the Far East as just another frontier brawl. No fewer than 400 such cases of frontier fighting between the Soviet Red army and the Japanese forces in Manchukuo have occurred during recent months. And the probability is that there will be more of them.

Yet while Changkufeng and its highly publicized hill may soon be forgotten, the repercussions of the incident may prove lasting. For what was involved in the Russo-Japanese fighting of the last three weeks was more than a question of which of the two nations was to be left in possession of a strategic spot. From the very beginning this struggle involved and was ultimately overshadowed by the question of prestige. The determination of that question may have a bearing on events very far removed from Changkufeng.

IT IS A CONVENIENT myth of the mapmakers that Europe and Asia are two continents. Actually Europe and Asia constitute one great land mass of which Europe is merely the western peninsula. In diplomacy, too, Europe and Asia are one and have been for a long time. What happens in Asia has its instant repercussions in Europe and what happens in Europe has a definite and not infrequently decisive bearing on what takes place in Asia.

Thus, when Japanese troops began to overrun Manchuria in 1931, the political geography not merely of Asia but also of Europe and Africa was changed. The Manchurian incident led directly, if after some delay, to the Ethiopian war and the collapse of the system of collective security established after the World War. And that, in turn, helped make possible the disappearance of Austria.

Conversely, the circumstance that in the summer of 1937 Great Britain and France were preoccupied with the Spanish problem and a dangerous state of affairs in central Europe undoubtedly predisposed Japan to embark on her undeclared war against China at the time she did.

• • • •

DURING RECENT years there have been two great enigmas in world politics. One has been the role which Great Britain would play in European affairs, and the other has been Russia's ability to carry out a policy which, unlike Britain's, was fairly specific and clear cut.

The successive purges that have occurred in the Soviet Union have created the impression that Russia is rotten with internal dissension and incapable, therefore, of playing an active role in world affairs. Certainly Japan banked on that very circumstance last year. Having tested out Russia's will to war and found it lacking, the Japanese army chiefs decided that they could safely go ahead and fight China without fear of attack from the Red army.

In losing prestige in Asia, Russia also lost prestige in Europe. The presumption grew in certain quarters in France and Great Britain that Russia could not be depended upon. But there was no unanimity on this point, which is why the efforts made by the Third Reich to smash the Czech-Russian and the Franco-Russian alliances have not succeeded.

• • • •

THESE LAST WEEKS have seen a new testing of Russia's readiness to fight, and again by Japan.

Had Russia again backed down the impression of internal weakness in the Soviet created by the chronic purge and by the Amur episode of last year would have been deepened. By that token it would probably have meant a strengthening of those elements in the European democracies that have argued that Russia as an ally is more of a liability than an asset and who favor a deal at almost any price with the Fascist dictatorships. But, as it happened, Russia held her ground; it was Japan which backed down.

If this means anything at all it means that, for the time being, Russia does not have to worry much about an attack from Japan. She is, therefore, in a position to play an even more active role in Europe than she has heretofore.

The Czechoslovak problem appears to be entering another critical period. What Germany will do; whether the strong British stand of May 20, will be repeated if the threat of war arises again; how determined France will side with its little ally—these are questions that the future alone can answer. But it is safe to say that the incident at Changkufeng and its outcome will have a definite bearing on these momentous issues.

Charlie Hamilton, Washington's oldest newspaper correspondent (and who also does press work for a Government agency) is writing his memoirs, and these should be revealing, to say the least. Hamilton's press card to the Senate gallery was issued and signed by President Grover Cleveland, and he is one of the last few charter members of the National Press Club. He is now corresponding for the Buffalo paper that sent him to Washington 50 years ago . . . WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins finds each morning on his desk every local press clipping concerning his agency, and the column, "Over the Coffee," by Harlan Miller. The column is the only piece of nonpolitical writing which Hopkins requires for his desk . . .

The Indian Bureau requires as much diplomacy as the State Department—for the Indian is as delicate a problem as any controversial treaty. Just when the bureau people thought the Thunderbird situation was adjusting itself in North Dakota, there came the explanation for another twisted situation in New Mexico. The bureau had wanted to build a hospital in a village of the Zuni Pueblos, but the Indians objected. The officials were puzzled, and chose a site three miles distant from the original one. Now comes the explanation of the objection: The Indians felt that too many witches flew over the first site and that the patients would be jeopardized. And there's something or another like this to be dealt with all year round . . .

Agencies and departments have been "reasonable" so far in the number of positions they want excluded from the civil service. This is seen in such replies as have come from the commission's query for data on the situation. It is our impression that the employes will bring great pressure on their supervisors to bring them under civil service. The administrative heads may want to exclude some jobs here and there, but we suspect the employes involved will kick in every instance. They want civil service. They like the feeling of security it brings—whether or not there is any real security under it . . .

Fisheries Commissioner Frant T. Bell sailed from San Francisco this week for Hawaii to investigate fishery needs. With him is Elmer Higgins, chief of the bureau's division of scientific inquiry . . . Now in Puerto Rico, is Daisy Reck, Interior press section's most popular girl. She probably will be in the West Indies until November . . . Nearing Alaska is Secretary and PWA Director Ickes, who won't have to attend Dr. H. C. Byrd's PWA conference at College Park Wednesday. The Secretary was on the invited list—and since the meeting already has created a controversy, the Secretary is probably glad he won't be here . . .

C. F. Orton writes in that the District Department, A. F. G. E., is sponsoring a boat trip on the S. S. Potomac at 8:45 p. m. Tuesday . . . There are two things the Government won't stand for any monkeying with, one being the mails and the other the Nation's elks. Game management agents recently pounced upon a citizen who had a store of elk meat and the judge plastered a $250 fine and a 15-day jail sentence. Unable to pay the fine, the jail sentence was stepped up to 100 days. This stout activity by the law doesn't mean that elk are diminishing . . .

And ill-betide that pipe smoking gentleman in WPA who has turned the tables on us. It was our habit of sending to him all our friends who came to town looking for Federal jobs. Now, the unsportsmanlike fellow that he is, he is sending to us all of his friends who come to town looking for jobs. This results in a constant stream of job-seekers criss-crossing the town.

We were serious in suggesting the other day that the WPA establish a project to inform Americans that there aren't any jobs in Washington. A lecture tour with an itinerary of every city, town and crossroads, would be helpful in the situation. The project could afford employment to several job-seekers who came looking for work and couldn't find it. Several of them have lectured eloquently to us on the subject, and their oratory, if put on the road, would undoubtedly convince thousands that there aren't any jobs in Washington.

Union Asked to Guard U. S. Accounting Office

The General Accounting Office Lodge of the American Federation of Government Employes yesterday asked the national officers to make "an energetic and aggressive" protest against any law that would curtail the office's activities, imperil its independence or tend to reduce the number of its employes.

The request was in a resolution to be introduced at the A. F. G. E. convention in Chicago September 12. The employes have been on guard since the recently-defeated reorganization bill which contemplated drastic changes in the Accounting Office.

Capital Hiking Club Will Tour Gold Mine

The Capital Hiking Club will conduct a tour of the gold mine and prospecting area in the vicinity of Great Falls, Md., tomorrow afternoon, meeting at 1416 F street northwest at 2 o'clock.

On the three-mile trek the group will see the shafts, bunkhouses and crushing machinery which date back to the War Between the States. A stop-over at the Falls is planned, with an alternate trip to Bear Island.

A Breezy Bill Registers Hit At the Capitol

'Gateway' and Stage Show Provide Enlivening Entertainment.

"GATEWAY." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story of Ellis Island cofeaturing Don Ameche and Arleen Whelan, with Lyle Talbot, Gregory Ratoff, Binnie Barnes, Gilbert Roland, Raymond Walburn, Marjorie Gateson, George Barbier, Sidney Blackmer, Maurice Moskovitch, Harry Carey and E. E. Clive. Directed by Alfred T. Werker. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Mary Harris. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

The Ellis Island theme is a happy one. It gives ample scope for color, incident, contrasted types, ranging through simple peasants with a new baby not in the quota scheme; political refugees, gangsters wanted by the income tax sleuths; a platinum-plated international siren. There are some of the completely phony sequences so dear to movie directors' hearts, but the picture has a generally sound ring. It's smartly paced, too, with never a lag all the way, until it hits the wire.

Don Ameche again demonstrates his right to be rated one of Hollywood's fastest-working leading men. Playing opposite him is an interesting young person, Arleen Whelan, who seems to be headed for the summit. Arleen is pretty mavourneen, but then she's supposed to be a real Irish girl. Then, too, she's wistful, sweet and, thanks be, definitely unglamourish. We'd say she had "elfin charm" if we didn't detest the phrase. Anyway, she's refreshingly unpatterned and she looks like Arleen Whelan and nobody else.

Parties Bring Trouble.

The story finds Don Ameche as a home-bound war correspondent on a luxury liner. Looking over the first-class deck he spots Arleen on the second-class deck and lures her, sub rosa, up to the first-class parties. She turns out to be a little miss from Eire on her way to meet her fiance, Lyle Talbot, who, naturally turns out to be an awful dope when he goes up against Mr. Ameche.

Arleen's sneaked first-class parties wind up with an awful back-fire when a traveling fireman tries to pitch "woo" with her. In the ensuing wrestling match he falls on his silly head and all is blamed on the little visitor from the second-class. Her fiance demands explanations and in detail. Not receiving the reassurances his finicky mind desires, he leaves her flat on Ellis Island—awaiting deportation.

Binnie Barnes steals all scenes when she appears. Again cast happily as an international beauty who knows all the answers, Binnie is soignee, sharply and smoothly witty. May we look forward to a picture tailored for her particular talents, giving her the complete lead her talents rate? After all, the public is pretty well fed up on bread-and-butter misses. If anyone ever plays the Duchess of Windsor, it should be Binnie. Too bad that Director Alfred Worker felt he had to drown Binnie to get her out of the picture.

Character acting that rates the adjective gorgeous is contributed by Gregory Ratoff, John Carradine and Raymond Walburn. Gregory's make-believe prince, Raymond a make-believe important leading citizen, John a non-make-believe bit of gutter scum who leads a break of criminals from Ellis Island. Gilbert Roland is a gangster.

Stage Bill Is Tops.

Charles Carlile, radio's favorite, displayed fine voice and perfect control in a group of popular numbers, including "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" (which, ho-hum! he named as his favorite song) and winding up with "I Married an Angel."

Best showman of the show, Carlton Emmy, and his Mad Wags which turn out to be a flock of assorted fox terriers and unclassifiable doggies, but all smart and happy as all get-out. Mr. Emmy's dog act tops all dog acts.

Jack Powell, best drummer in the business, drums all over the Capitol stage and out in front, too. You'll love his rat-a-tatting and fake shock when he reaches those gilded figures at the side of the stage.

Joe and Jane McKenna offer manna for those who have suffered from a surfeit of adagio. Their kidding of adagio is rough-and-tumble, but too comical.

Two of the finest precision dance numbers ever seen in Washington are offered by Chester Hale's Texas Comets. One is Hawaiian with monster leis, the other a parcel of color trickery, through lighting.

The Capitol Theater orchestra has reformed this week and offers Offenbach's "Orpheus" overture.

Palace

Young Mr. Andrew Hardy's social difficulties will continue to regale the Capital's discriminating theatergoers through a second week of school proms, shady automobile deals, tangled love affairs and an eventual triumph of the younger generation. Which is to say that "Love Finds Andy Hardy" is being held over at Loew's Palace Theater, as it richly deserves.

"Love Finds Andy Hardy" is concededly the best to date of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer series of domestic comedy-dramas involving the spirited family of Judge Hardy. It is dedicated principally to the juvenile members of the cast, but does not slight the robust and kindly character of the judge. Lewis S. Stone, however, must take second place in this subject, to the exceptional talents of Mickey Rooney, in the title role, and Judy Garland, as the 12-year-old visitor next door, who comes to his rescue and salvages a desperate situation. The assertive Master Rooney proves himself a fine actor and a natural comedian in this one and Miss Garland is not only a splendid singer, but a talented little actress, as well.

They are supported in youth's fling at romance by others of almost equal capability, including Cecelia Parker, Ann Rutherford and Gene Reynolds, one of the most precocious of the little fellows to come along in recent months—as will be corroborated when you see him with Robert Taylor in "The Crowd Roars." Fay Holden continues as the mother and Raymond Hatton appears in a minor role.

The supplementary features of a fine bill also are being retained.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Harold Lloyd in 'Professor, Beware,' Frances Langford, on Stage, Earle Hits

Screen and Stage Combine to Form an Excellent Summer Bill.

"PROFESSOR, BEWARE." Paramount release of Harold Lloyd's picturization of a story by Crampton Harris, Francis M. Cockrell and Marian B. Cockrell, adapted to the screen by Delmer Daves, starring Harold Lloyd, with Phyllis Welch, Raymond Walburn, Lionel Stander, William Frawley, Thurston Hall, Cora Witherspoon, Sterling Holloway, Mary Lou Lender, Montagu Love, Etienne Girardot, Christian Rub, Spencer Charters, Guinn Williams, Ward Bond, Wright Kramer, Charlotte Winter, Clara Blandick and George Humbert. Directed by Elliott Nugent. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

No further classification seems to be necessary than to say that "Professor, Beware" is a typical Harold Lloyd comedy, executed in his liveliest and best manner.

BELL.

Devoted to a fixed form of comedy construction through the years, Lloyd has achieved extravagant success in the role of the harassed young man who finally reaches his coveted goal by overcoming obstacles that are increasingly ominous in their implications—each a little more hazardous than the one encountered immediately before. That is the plan of the present subject. In essence, "Professor, Beware" is one long, glorified cross-country "chase" that begins in California and traverses the desert, the Midwest and the East, ending in a cyclone of action on a New York dock only after expansive pauses for laughter have been made in Kansas, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

All this is inspired by the conviction on the part of a youthful Egyptologist that he and the handsome young woman he has met by accident on the road are the reincarnated spirits of two hapless lovers who had lived persecuted lives 3,000 years before, according to his incomplete archaeological research and translations. Eventually, through a magnificent hoax, he becomes convinced that his deductions are completely bogus and that he is a superman whom no power on earth can conquer. What happens then comprises one of the most cyclonic climaxes any Lloyd picture ever has had—and he gets the girl.

Many Hilarious "Gag" Sequences.

Punctuating this frivolous tale, with cumulative comic effect, are a series of "gag" sequences that keep action at high pitch and laughter detonating continuously. It always is a futile task to attempt to translate the fun of a Lloyd feature into terms of cold type, but it seemed to me yesterday that the most original and most ridiculous episodes were those involving the race on top of a freight train, to avoid being trapped in a gaseous, low-clearance tunnel; the chicken incident with the sheriff, in which Lloyd is compelled to impersonate a ventriloquist to conceal a pal's theft from a poultry yard; the peregrinating tent, used as a shield from the police, and the fight aboard the yacht in New York Harbor. They are howls in any language, especially the cinematic.

In the swift interpretation of all this flippant fol-de-rol, Lloyd—who, incidentally, seems to be immune to the passage of time—is aided by a cast of superlative comics. Phyllis Welch, his new leading woman, gave the impression of being a genuine "find." She is conspicuously attractive, without being a "glamour girl," and reads her lines expressively with a clear and faultness diction that persistently suggests Ina Claire. If Miss Claire should ever require the services of a carbon copy understudy, Miss Welch deserves to be it.

Entering the picture well after its start are Raymond Walburn and Lionel Stander, as two resourceful knights of the road, who play an important part in Prof. Dean Lambert's life from then on. The gravel-voiced Mr. Stander may not be at his funniest, but the bombastic Mr. Walburn never has been better than in the role of Judge James G. Parkhouse Marshall. Then there are William Frawley, Thurston Hall, Montagu Love, Cora Witherspoon, Sterling Holloway, Guinn Williams, Ward Bond, Spencer Charters, and all the others named in the small-type paragraph preceding these ruminations who contribute their full quota to the tickling quality of the latest feather in Mr. Lloyd's cap. And included among these, too, should be Elliott Nugent, who directed "Professor, Beware," with fine skill and rapid pace.

An A-1 Stage Bill.

The Earle's stage bill also is out of the top drawer this week. Eddie White, the elongated singing comedian, already well known to Washington audiences, acts as a glib master of ceremonies, and, of course, chips in with his own interval of humor and song. It is his pleasant duty, among other things, to introduce Frances Langford, the singing star of stage, screen and radio, as headliner of the program.

Miss Langford's deep-throated voice seemed particularly effective yesterday afternoon in such popular ballads as "A Secretary's Week-end Vacation," "Night and Day" and "Music, Maestro, Please" and she made her triumph complete by introducing Jon Hall, her husband, remembered for sterling work in "The Hurricane," who confessed that he appeared only because he and Miss Langford are celebrating their eighth wedding anniversary—eighth week! They could have been out there yet on any reasonable basis of audience demand.

The vaudeville goings-on are opened by the Three Samuels and Harriet Hayes, among the best of the tap nad acrobatic dancers, and closed by the Six Anteleks—four girls and two men—in extraordinary feats of gymnastics and pole balancing. In between comes Gali-Gali, Egyptian magician, whose baffling tricks are executed with unusual speed and dexterity, plus a nice sense of comedy.

Jo Lombardi's Schubert overture, with Freddie Clark impersonating the composer on the stage, and the Paramount News round out a bill that no one with a laugh left in his system will want to miss.

Again Conquers All for the Girl!

HAROLD LLOYD,

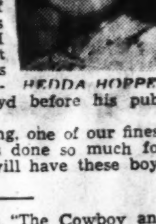

who returns to the screen after a long absence, at the Earle this week, in his latest Paramount release, "Professor, Beware," a typically hilarious, feature-length Lloyd comedy, based on the timidity motif. The principal feminine role is expertly played by Phyllis Welch, a new leading woman.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Aug. 5.

Erroll Flynn will have to look to his acting laurels in "Dawn Patrol." He's been given the toughest competition he's ever been up against. He'll have Basil Rathbone, David Niven, Donald Crisp and the new English actor, Morton Lorter. I believe Lorter is married to one of the Banarto family. If he's as good as they claim, I would suggest he change his name to something like Lloyd before his publicity goes out.

HEDDA HOPPER

Eddie Goulding, one of our finest directors, who's done so much for women stars, will have these boys in hand.

Onlookers on "The Cowboy and the Lady" set are so amused at Merle Oberon's play for attention from David Niven, who doesn't seem to know she's on the set. Incidentally, David is in love with a young English girl, who doesn't know about pictures.

For those film stars who go silly-silly on us, remember it took a diamond zipper to put the Duchess of Windsor back on the front page. She got there, but she zipped for it.

The biggest news in town since Heddy LaMarr's sensational success in "Algiers" is John Garfield in "Four Daughters," which hasn't been seen yet, except at a sneak preview by a select few. It's the same old story. His test, which was made in New York over a year ago, was shown to every mogul in town. Everyone, except Hal Wallis, said: "Yes, he's a good actor, but he has nothing for the screen."

Why, they wouldn't even make another test of him. And before his first picture could be seen and his worth realized, Warners put him in a "B" picture, "Blackwell's Island." And I understand there was quite a juicy battle about that when Wallis came back from his vacation. The budget was upped and it now has an "A" standing. Garfield's next is to be "The Sucker." Swell story. Hope they change that title, it's horrible.

They must do something about the title "Tough Angels," one they're doing about air hostesses. We think of "Dead End" kids as tough. Those girls flying above us are tough only in endurance and amount of service passengers call for. "Angels With Wings" would be more fitting.

The Buster Collier baby is to be named Constance after Constance Collier.

It's taken a long time to do it, but the John Barrymores are cashing in on publicity given them when she was chasing him. They do a scene for "Hold That Co-Ed" which they did in real life.

Marjorie Upstill and Dottie Green, two secretaries on the 20th Century-Fox lot will be Annabella's guests in Paris, and she's promised to show them the town. Nice going, girls.

Seventy-five hundred dollars was the reason they changed "Ellis Island" to "Gateway." That's what the man demanded who wrote a story about it once.

Charlie Richards, of Selznick Studio, is racing his car in my home town, Altoona, Pa., on Labor Day.

"Young in Heart" was sneak previewed the other night. And it was so good they decided upon a few retakes to make it better. They're having fun rounding up members of the cast. Doug, jr., is dinning for Gunga on location at Lone Pine, Janet Gaynor doing "Three Loves Has Nancy" at Metro, Roland Young Laguna beaching it. And Minnie Dupree will be airmailed back from rocky coast of Maine.

I would like to thank all you fans for writing in your frank opinions of Norma Shearer as Scarlett. I'm sure she will too, for it's kept her from making one of the greatest mistakes of her life. And now, after this experience, might I suggest that you lay off casting "Gone With the Wind" and let the company which is going to produce it carry on from this point. They've proven they can digest criticism and will abide by it.

Pity poor Cecil B. DeMille and his assistants who are writing script of "Union Pacific" on his yacht.

The midgets, on going in for fittings for "Wizard of Oz," frightened the life out of the desk girl. She heard voices but saw no one—until she got up and leaned over the desk, and looking down found three midgets.

When Jean Hersholt was asked what he does with his old first editions, he said: "What do you think?"

Nonparent Finds It's-a-Boy Thrill

Boris Karloff has never been a father but now he knows how it feels when the nurse says "It's a boy!"

He learned all about expectant fatherhood when he helped rush Mrs. Mickey Marigold, wife of his still photographer on "Devil's Island," to the hospital.

The "call" came at 6:30 p. m. Together Karloff and Marigold paced hospital corridors for 13 long hours, waiting for the baby to be born.

Marigold wanted to name his child after the actor, but Karloff insisted that a first-born son should be named after his father. The result—Patrick Michael Marigold.

Father, mother, son—and Karloff—are all doing well.

Laboratory Gamut.

Stanley Ridges' screen career is taking him from laboratory to laboratory. Recently completing his doctor role for "Yellow Jack," he is now working in a police laboratory in "No Way Out."

Up in the Air.

Elmer Dyer, Hollywood's famous aerial photographer now working on "Wings of the Navy," has spent more than 10,000 hours in the air shooting flying scenes.

Singer's Portable Real Music Room

Miliza Korjus, opera star, who makes her screen debut with Luise Rainer and Fernand Gravet in "The Great Waltz," possesses the most unusual portable dressing room in Hollywood.

It is a sound-proof room on wheels, the walls of which are composed of 2,000 narrow niches containing symphonic and operatic music records.

Between scenes of the picture, Miss Korjus enjoys herself by playing the recordings of famous opera stars or uses the dressing room to rehearse songs for the picture. The walls of the room are so well sound-proofed that her voice or the recordings cannot be heard on the set and it is possible to rehearse even during the shooting of scenes.

Stair Dancer.

Chin-Scraper.

Prize Picture Is Revived at Metropolitan

"IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT." Columbia picturization of the story by Samuel Hopkins Adams, adapted to the screen by Robert Riskin, costarring Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert, with Walter Connolly, Roscoe Karns, Jameson Thomas, Alan Hale, Ward Bond, Eddie Chandler, Wallis Clark, Harry Bradley, Maidel Turner, Arthur Hoyt, Blanche Frederici and Irving Bacon. Directed by Frank Capra. Reviewed Friday afternoon (revival) by Dorothea Lewis. At the Metropolitan Theater.

Our old and well-loved friend, "It Happened One Night," shows no signs of age except some slightly dimmed photography. This Peter Pan of pictures is just as much fun, just as human, just as delightful as it was in the year of its glory—remember all those "Oscars" it won back in '35, academy awards for picture, director, actors and we believe the adapter, too.

Surely you remember the story, because surely you saw it once or twice, at least. Remember Ellen Andrews, spoiled brat of a rich girl, and Peter Warne, reporter par excellence, and remember the buses they ride on and the tourists camps they sleep in and the fights and the fun? Surely you do—the dunking and pig-a-backing and hitch-hiking. And remember the love story that is so very warm and real and gives the nonsense considerable heart?

If by any chance, you belong to a younger generation of movie goers grown-up in the last three or four years, the Met is your meat this week. If you're an older generationer, you know that without being told, for this is a picture notable for many things.

It is the picture that started cycles and the picture to which all the newer ones have been compared. On a re-seeing, it suffers not at all by any 1836, '37 or '38 comparison.

Gable at His Best.

Then it is a picture to be acclaimed for possessing one of the very best Gable performances of all time—a real gem, and for all his likableness, there are not too many acting gems in this boxoffice king's crown. This one's of "purest ray serene."

It deserves another hand for a really sincere and engaging Colbert appearance (Claudette's been a little disappointing lately), and amusing jobs in the singing highwayman of Alan Hale, the harassed father of Walter Connolly, and poor, poor Mr. Shapely, who quivers in the hands of Roscoe Karns.

Director Capra, having acquired the eminence of front-page portraiture on Time Magazine just today, needs little kudos from us, but so much of the charm of this most charming picture belongs entirely to him that we just have to mention it. There are bits of business and moments of pantomime and smooth shiftings of sequence that are entirely his. Bet he likes "It Happened" as much as we do.

Subsidiaries include the newsreel and a nicely colored but definitely confusing short, apparently fashioned to "clarify" science. It's called "Mechanix Illustrated." We might add, "But Not Explained."

Columbia

The wonder child grows older and in her current picture displays her maturing talents in acting, singing, dancing and handling contacts with adults who should know better than to attempt scene-stealing with her on the premises. Shirley Temple is still tops at the boxoffice, even though this "Little Miss Broadway," playing a repeat engagement at the Columbia, is not an entry in the Academy sweepstakes.

Trite to the point of being dull is the plot—something about an orphan who brings sunshine and incredible prosperity into the lives of her adopted family, which includes a full vaudevile troupe. What makes the set-up believable is the gusty humor with which the actors-playing-actors trot through their paces. Our favorites are the midgets, El Brendel, with his pet penguin, and Jimmie Durante, with his jazz band.

George Murphy dances with Shirley, and that right well. Edna Mae Oliver presents some lemon-flavored sniffs in her best brittle manner. It all adds to a fair presentation of the best boxoffice attraction in the movie industry. Shirley is growing up with grace and dignity.

There is a comedy which has a female pretending to be Beatrice Lillie. She isn't. J. B. Priestly talks through a short which starts out to be vivid, appealing through its absolute newness, but bogging down halfway and petering out to yawning boresomeness. The newsreel has shots of England's rulers in Paris and some really amusing comments from the incorrigible Corrigan. Worthy of a laugh or two is the cartoon, "The Last Indian," which would imply that wooden figure before the cigar store might tell a thing or two—if.

Fawn, Puma Added To Singer's 'Zoo'

When Nelson Eddy returned home from song rehearsals for "Sweetheart" he discovered in his back yard a raccoon, a duck, an owl and a malamute dog.

Dr. Edouard Lippe, his teacher and friend, is writing an animal scenario. To ascertain habits of animals, Dr. Lippe began collecting them several months ago. He assembled two tame skunks, two mountain lion cubs, owls, trained dogs, raccoons, weasels, a trained duck, assorted dogs, taught them to live together in a corral in perfect amity, and began watching them to observe their natural actions for his story.

O. O. Dull, assistant to John W. Considine, jr., who produced "Sequoia," sent Dr. Lippe a fawn and a puma cub.

"There isn't room for all the animals now," read a note accompanying the consignment to Eddy. "Will you let these few have the run of your back yard until we can rent more space for them."

Eddy's menagerie seems perfectly happy in its new home, and already the children in the neighborhood are flocking to see it.

Meat Bill.

The Post's New Yorker

New York, Aug. 5.

PAUL GRAETZ, the famed German comic who appeared in "Mr. Cohen Takes a Walk," and who now is in Hollywood, has a young niece who was extremely fond of listening to Richard Tauber's phonograph records. At their home in Berlin, the 4-year-old girl kept playing those records over and over again . . . A few months ago, in London, Graetz was invited to a reception at which Tauber would be present, and so the little girl accompanied him. Tauber heard of the little girl's admiration for his singing, and so arose—and sang four songs . . . The youngster made no comment, but sat there sadly. Then she whispered her disappointment into Graetz's ear. "Uncle Paul," she sighed, "he's only a man. I thought he was a record . . ."

BOB CROSBY, brother of Bing, sat in a cafe where celebrities were being introduced. Everybody of any importance was introduced to take a bow, but nobody paid any attention to Bob. "I guess," he said, "Bing must be slipping!"

* * * *

THE EMINENT GENTLEMAN known to Pittsburgh's gamblers as "Mutzick" was seen coming out of a notorious gambling house there. "Dope," Mutzick was told by his friend, "people see you coming out of there and know right away you're a gambler." . . . "Izzat so?" the sportsman replied. "I suppose if they see me coming out of a stable they'll think I'm a horse?"

* * * *

JIMMY SAVO last year received messages wherever he went informing him that if he'd phone the number provided the caller would be deeply appreciative. Jimmy paid no heed to the messages. "I don't want to see any photographers," he explained, especially this one named—Max Rein . . . Reinhar . . . Reinhardt" . . . Realization came several weeks later, but Savo never was able to reach the famed producer until last Saturday. "I'm extremely flattered," Savo confessed, "but tell me—where did you see me act?" "I saw the picture you made for Hecht and MacArthur," Reinhardt told the man whom Chaplin has called the world's greatest pantomimist, "and I think you're the greatest dramatic actor I ever saw. Tell me—have you ever done comedy?"

AT BILL'S GAY NINETIES can be found the originals of objects closely identified with the old New York . . . Last week Bill purchased one of the hurdy-gurdies banned by the mayor, and sent an assistant scurrying in search of a typical Italian hurdy-gurdy operator . . . Bill reasoned that the feature-editors positively would go for this stunt . . . The assistant searched Little Italy for five days, until he located just the man needed—a stout Latin, wearing worn clothes, an old peaked hat, and along flowing mustache. "Here's $20 to bind the bargain," the new employe was told. "You start to work tomorrow" . . . The next day the hurdy-gurdy player appeared. His clothes were new, his old hat replaced by a new one—and his mustache had been shaved off in keeping with his new elegance. He had used the $20 to become a fashion-plate!

* * * *

AN IMPOVERISHED MOVIE PRODUCER played his final hand last week. He tendered a cocktail party to an influential friend he wished to impress for the purposes of borrowing the money needed for continued operations. The arrangements included a special dinner service . . . Champagne first was served, and the friend indulged to a great extent. Then the party adjourned to "21"—where a pleasant feast, together with the finest of wines and delicacies had been ordered. Thus did the producer spend the last of his money in this great impressive splurge . . . The next morning he phoned the influential one . . . "Whew, what a hangover," the latter moaned, "weren't we supposed to have some sort of a dinner?"

DUDLEY FIELD MALONE, the attorney, returned from a month's vacation in Bermuda and went to Jack & Charlie's, where he stationed himself at the bar. "You've gotten awfully stouter, Dudley," said Jeff Machamer, "or have they enlarged the bar here?"

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Amiable Girl Is Frequently Misjudged by Men Who Offend With Unwelcome Overtures. What to Think?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 22, a university graduate and have been going with boys for nearly six years. But, like "Confused" in your column of July 24, I still don't know what constitutes "proper social behavior between men and women." My chosen field of study was one which few girls follow. Most of my professional associates are men, therefore. A great many of my friends are men.

• • • •

I'll relate a specific incident to illustrate the difficulty. One evening I went with two men whom I worked with and knew very well to one of the most popular of the campus spots, where soft drinks and beer are served and where everyone smokes, particularly the girls. Because one of the men had just passed his preliminary examinations for the doctorate we felt like celebrating, so we ordered beer. The undergraduates were all celebrating, too, rather noisily, because exams were over.

• • • •

Two men who were friends of my companions, but who were merely acquaintances of mine, joined us. Both were in the same science as I, but in a different branch. I shall call one of them X. They sat one on each side of me in the booth and because of the small space, each put an arm behind and around me. We all drank beer. I had one bottle and the men smoked pipes and I had two cigarettes. We talked about lots of things.

• • • •

Eventually some personal remarks were made about various professors and several risque stories were told—at which I did not laugh. Then one was told about the work we were doing. It was very funny to me, and I laughed, but not hysterically, loud or long. I decided it was time to go and said so. X said he would like to take me home. As we walked out, leaving the others, he took hold of my hand.

• • • •

"This is very collegiate," I remarked, intending to discourage him. It was in a gay tone of voice, however, and he didn't take the hint. Music was loud and lots of couples were milling about on the sidewalk. We skipped and danced for about a block, until we were away from the crowd. Then we slowed down to a walk and I pointed out a detail in the architecture of one of the buildings. He said he hadn't noticed it, but obviously wasn't interested.

• • • •

He slipped his arm around my waist. I said, "This is a little bit too collegiate," and took the arm away. He was very sober the rest of the way home. I shook hands with him at the door and thanked him for walking home with me. The next day his roommate told me that X had labeled me a "teaser" and thought I ought to be told. It's a horrible accusation and one I don't think I deserved. (X's father is headmaster of a boy's school.) I've never had any trouble with the "pay-off" which "Confused" speaks of, but incidents like this mentioned above have happened more than once. What am I to think? MUDDLED.

Law of Averages.

DEAR MUDDLED: When incidents of this type occur, it means simply, that you have run afoul of a heel. By the sheer law of averages any woman whose work brings her in contact with many men is bound to collide with such vermin now and again. Obviously, Mr. X was a prurient-minded man who confused the signals and thought (the wish being father to the thought) that he was on the verge of some kind of easy conquest. When he discovered the error in his calculations, he was cat (or cad) enough to try to put the blame on you.

• • • •

Under decidedly trying circumstances which definitely were not of your creating, it seems to me you conducted yourself about as well as could have been expected. If you made a mistake, it was in laughing at the one risque story pertaining to your field of work. However, the men at the table were considerably more at fault in continuing to reminisce in such vein after your failure to laugh at the earlier stories. Had there been one man present of genuinely well-bred instincts, he would have taken it upon himself to steer the talk into other channels, with unmistakable intent, once you had registered tacit disapproval of such conversational offerings.

• • • •

For the time being, you were presumably under the protection of, and entitled to a minimum of chivalrous consideration from, the two men who escorted you to the cafe. The least they might have done would have been to protect you from the possibility of being coarsely misjudged by a stranger. When they offered no such protection, you would have been wiser in turning a deaf ear and an expressionless countenance to the stag stories; or, better yet, in breaking into them with an obviously faked recollection of another engagement which you must rush away to meet.

If such episodes are common in your experience it may mean that you are not yet a sufficiently good judge of character to know when to relax your guard and when to keep it up; and that you haven't yet acquired the technique of self-government which would enable you to register a particular facet of personality on a given audience. In one's social interchange with the rank and file, the all and sundry, one is required, in very self-protection and as a matter of diplomacy, to be different things to different persons. And one of the worst possible social errors a girl can commit is to be complaisant in permitting herself or her sex to be treated lightly by any group of men—well known or little known—with whom she happens to find herself. Yet that is just what she is tolerating when she gives ear or applause to risque stories, which usually, if not always, are based on a lewd or mocking concept of the sexes in relation to each other.

M. H.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendenning, M. D.

Have You Lumbago?
Here are Causes, Cure

I have been asked by a Southern correspondent to discuss lumbago.

Lumbago derives its name from the lumbar muscles—those massive and powerful muscles in the back on either side of the spinal column. Strictly speaking, it is a pain in these muscles, but the name is applied to any pain in the back.

So in a larger sense a discussion of lumbago would be a discussion of backache. Which is too big a subject for us to take up here.

It is important, though, to know whether you have simple lumbago or backache due to other causes. There are many structures close to the lumbar muscles, and your "lumbago" may be due to arthritis of the spine or other disease of the bones thereabout, or to kidney disease or to spinal cord disturbance. Mr. Schmeling, at the date I am writing this, undoubtedly has a "lumbago" due to having come into violent contact with a swiftly-moving body.

Most cases of lumbago, however, are simple and are due to changes in the lumbar muscles themselves. We say they are simple, but that doesn't mean that lumbago doesn't hurt. On the contrary, it may be one of the most painful and annoying and crippling afflictions you can have. I have known cases to last for a year to 18 months.

The causes are:

(1) Sprain—lifting or twisting, with the formation of little hemorrhages in the muscle, or tearing of small muscle fibers, or both.

(2) Cold—and especially a combination of cold and wet. Swimming in too cold water will do this. It is an iceman's disease, from carrying blocks of ice on the back.

(3) Infection lighting on these muscles from a faraway part of the body, as an infected or dead tooth on tonsil. This is the commonest cause.

In treatment, it is obvious from reading the list of causes that the paramount consideration is rest. Rest to allow the hemorrhages to be absorbed and rest to allow the torn muscles to heal, if injury or sprain is the cause. Rest to allow the inflammation to subside if infection is the cause.

Rest is especially important at first. Efforts to massage or rub out the pain during the first few days may prolong recovery indefinitely and add insult to injury.

After rest, heat. Any form of external heat. This gives relief from pain and also promotes healing. One of the best forms of heat is the hot domestic flat iron. The patient is laid face down. The skin is anointed with vaseline, then a flannel is laid down over it and an iron as hot as can be stood moved up and down over the sore area.

Match Accessories to Give Dress Distinction

Autumn Costume Accessories To Be More Colorful Than Ever

All Should Be Co-ordinated Around the Basic Color in the Dress, Generally Brown, Beige, Black, Gray and Blue; Begin With Hat.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

ACCESSORIES this fall will be more colorful than ever. You can either blend or match the colors with two or more accessories. And the simplest way to co-ordinate your accessories is to begin with the hat. Match the gloves to the hat, pocketbook, belt or shoes.

All accessories should be co-ordinated around the basic colors in the dresses, generally black, brown, beige, gray and blue. Colors that may be blended or harmonized effectively in two or more accessory accents are:

Wine shades—smart with black, navy, light blues, beige and gray costumes.

Bright red or blue—excellent for sharp color accents in gloves, scarfs, hats, handbags and costume flowers. More than three of either red or brown should not be worn with one costume.

Dark brown accessories should be worn with black only when the dress itself combines the two colors, or when a brown fur coat is worn with a black dress.

A belt and bag may be of the same fabric and color. Gloves and bag may harmonize with hat. Or the shoes and hat may blend with bag and gloves.

Trio ensembles, composed of brief jacket, handbag and hat of the same material, are very effective when worn as contrast to the dress. Another possibility is to have a muff and hat of the same material. A matching scarf and turban is another way of co-ordinating two accessories.

Jewelry, handkerchiefs, costume flowers, hosiery and blouses provide other means for co-ordinating accessory ensembles. The flower of the dress and the band of the hat may harmonize in color. Also a gold belt or gold bracelet may match a gold clip or initial on the handbag.

Here are three ways in which you may harmonize your accessories with either old or new fall outfits.

Match them to each other in contrast to the costume. That is with a black costume you may wear wine shoes, gloves, bag and belt.

Have a single accessory which contrasts with the costume, at the same time matching some trimming on the costume. A wide alligator belt and alligator bag is one possibility. Or scarlet gloves worn with a black costume. The black hat may be trimmed with a scarlet feather or other scarlet accent. Also, scarlet gloves may be matched to an unusual scarlet ornament.

Match accessories to each other and to the costume. Example: For a green costume have a hat, gloves, pocketbook, shoes, belt and jewelry in one copper tone.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 5.

THE GEE-GEES are galloping at Saratoga, and "somewhere bands are playing, and somewhere hearts are light." New York's sullen millions simmer in their own juices. And Mrs. Ella Boole, immortal foe of The Demon Rum, has just celebrated her eightieth birthday, still full of spunk and fight for all her eight decades! In fact, when I saw Aunt Ella she was on the point of leaving for the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, in San Francisco, of which she is world president.

ALICE HUGHES

Mrs. Boole, when not battling booze on all fronts, lives in a pleasant white stone house over in Brooklyn with her daughter, Florence, as her right-hand woman. On her way to the Coast she stopped at Van Wert, Ohio, where she was born and where she rates as No. 1 native daughter. Two dates blaze in the life of this sturdy old woman who has struggled with "the old enemy" for 50 years. The great day of her life, naturally, was January 16, 1920, when the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution went into effect, and liquor was an outlaw. Her black day, it follows, was December 5, 1933, when "the noble experiment" became a legal dud, and liquor flowed back in torrents. This blow might well have killed a less stanch and faithful soul. But to Aunt Ella it was a "setback."

"We were temporarily halted by repeal," she told me, hazel eyes bright behind gold-rimmed specs, "but not discouraged. We're going forward with a campaign of education that cannot fail." You just have to bow to an old fighter who never hollers "uncle," and Mrs. Boole never has. And she was lucky to see her cause win, even though it blew up after 14 years. Few of us get even a draw!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—There's a life and death struggle going on in the courtyard outside my Murray Hilly window. In this corner — an unknown pianist. In that corner, the "Liebestod" from the late Herr Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde." Every morning at nine the fight starts, and is resumed after lunch. Whether this lady learns the piece properly or not, I am getting so sick of this magnificent music that I fear I'll never be able to bear it again, even with Flagstad and Melchior swinging it at the Metropolitan.

Well, the newest Atlantic liner is always the most stylish, and reigns until another chugs in. Now it is the new Dutch Nieuw Amsterdam, and she's carrying fancy crowds right now. I went aboard her to see my pal, Miss Tobe, the fashion counselor, off for that Paris, and found a gay, pretty boat with the interior done in light maple, and still smelling ickily from fresh paint. The Dutch boats tie up over the Hudson in Hoboken, but folks will make that trip—if the ship is new and, therefore, "smart."

One of our afternoon papers has been polling notables on their favorite acting performances, and who won but little Helen Hayes, with 81 votes in a list of 150. Katie Cornell was second with 58, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne teamed drew 52, and Jeanne Eagles, 43, on the strength of one great performance alone in "Rain." Maude Adams and the late Mrs. Fiske also made the varsity. Six ladies, in all, were in the first ten. Right good!

Last week, with the mercury at 84, I stumbled into Ritz crystal-garden and saw a Christmas tree ablaze with lights. I swooned of course. When brought to with champagne in the face, I found that a cosmetics baron was just introducing his new line of face-goo for the Christmas trade. But it was a nasty shock.

Hot news of the week—this four-column headline ran on the garden page of a local paper—"Watercress Has a Fascinating Background." Sounds like scandal! Tell me more!

Every summer style people scream that bright color is in—and by August 1 they are falling back on the same perennial axiom that sheer black dresses are getting the biggest play this year. Never fails. Good old black sheer! In crepes and chiffons, they are dominating the fashion scene here right now. Navy blues and deep wines get place and show money—but sheer black is so far out in front that it passes the judges' stand at a crawl.

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

By Ida Jean Kain.

But if you will only stop to think about it, you will know that you are wrong, because there are plenty of girls of 16 and 18 with dreadful figures, and women of 40 with slim young figures. Youth has little to do with it; it's mainly exercise.

For example, Susan Hayward has one of the most perfect figures in Hollywood. Her measurements are: Bust, 33 inches; hips, 35 inches; waist, 24 inches; thigh, 20½ inches; calf, 13½ inches. She is 5 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs 115 pounds. Now, these measurements are not due to youth, nor are they an accident. Miss Hayward exercises. I have watched her go through her routine and she is as limber as any acrobat. Odd as it may seem to you, she actually enjoys exercise.

Exercise All-Important.

Granted it is easier to keep lovely proportions when you are young and all your activities tend to keep you supple, when you come right down to it, the important thing at any age is whether you get enough exercise. You can tell by your measurements. If you do not exercise enough, there will not be an 8-inch difference between your bust and your waistline, and there will be more than a 3-inch difference between the hips and bust.

Your waistline is usually the first measurement to wander from symmetry and you can gain an inch there in 30 days—but you can take off an inch in just two weeks with such exercises as the following:

You can take an inch off your waist in two weeks with the exercise shown today.

MOVEMENT: Twisting at the waist, reach back and touch the back of the left knee with the left hand. Stretch up again, then touch the right knee with the right hand. For a better twist at the waist, stand with the legs wider apart, and reach back and touch the back of the right knee with the left hand, the left knee with the right hand. Begin with ten times, increasing gradually to 25.

Keep up your exercise and you can have a slim, youthful figure at any age.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

(Editor's Note—Names used in this column at all times are purely fictitious. A reference to a "Mrs. Darby," in an item published Wednesday, was not directed either by intent or implication toward anyone of the numerous Mrs. Darbys in Washington.)

European Muddle.

MRS. SPRINK—Honestly, all this war talk—oh, wait; I didn't get one of those little ribbon sandwiches—just makes me sick.

MRS. GORFY—I just don't read the headlines any more.

MRS. McPISH—The papers ought not to print so much about it. There oughta be a law—

MRS. TINKLE—Well Raymond says —

MRS. PERCH—Marie Babb, have you got a new dress?

MRS. BABB—THIS? Why it's old as the hills!

MRS. PERCH—Why it is NOT!

MRS. ZIPPER—I never saw anybody have so many clothes!

MRS. TINKLE—Well this is what Raymond says about Hitler—

MRS. VAN ZANY—Hitler makes me sick.

MRS. ZIPPER—Mussolini's just as bad. Have you girls had any olives?

MRS. BLOKE—Yes, and Stalin. No thanks . . . well I will take one of those little pickles.

MRS. CHUMLEY—Aren't those little chocolate cakes cunning?

MRS. SMACK—Well all I say is we ought to keep our boys at home.

MRS. RIPPLER — Well, Arthur knows a man who's just come back from Europe—say, isn't that the darlingest bracelet she's got on? I'm mad about it. Well, anyway this friend of Arthur's said that when he was in Vienna he met a man who had a friend who was close to a lot of the big men over there, and this man said that this other man said that Mussolini—

MRS. VAN ZANY—I haven't a bit of use for Mussolini!

MRS. PERCH—I can't stand Hitler's pictures—

MRS. SMACK—We've got no business mixing in over there.

MRS. McPISH—Well how can we help it if Hitler comes over here and takes Mexico?

MRS. SPRINK—Have you girls tasted these little sausages. They're the most marvelous things—

MRS. CHUMLEY—Say I want the recipe for those chocolate cookies—

MRS. TINKLE—Raymond says it's just all red propaganda.

MRS. BLOKE—Charlie's simply rabid against Stalin.

MRS. SPRINK—WHERE did you get your permanent, Mrs. Perch?

MRS. PERCH—Oh, I've got the grandest new woman—

MRS. CHUMLEY — Elmer says you can't believe half you see in the papers anyway.

MRS. BABB—I do wish Hitler and Mussolini would settle down and behave!

MRS. RIPPLER—Arthur said that this man said that this man in Vienna said—what adorable mints!—well anyway he said that Hitler was going to take Rumania —

MRS. McFISH—I don't care if he does. I've never had a bit of use for that Carol.

MRS. SMACK—I think he's perfectly disgusting.

MRS. CHUMLEY—Yes, and that woman—

MRS. VAN ZANY—Say, I wonder whatever happened to Hitler and Greta Garbo?

MRS. ZIPPER—It wasn't Garbo. It was—who was that woman?

MRS. SPRINK—Well, it was some actress, anyway

MRS. GORFY—No, that was the woman that shot Mussolini.

MRS. BABB—She didn't shoot Mussolini!

MRS. GORFY—Well, she shot somebody—did you ever taste anything like these cocoanut balls?

MRS. McPISH—I read in a book where it said that England—

MRS. ZIPPER—I oughtn't to do this but I'm going to take another sandwich.

MRS. McPISH—Well, this man in the book said—

MRS. PERCH—Girls, don't miss these candied cherries.

MRS. GORFY—Well, I saw where a man in the paper said—

MRS. SPRINK—I've just quit reading. It mixes me up too much.

MRS. CHUMLEY—Me, too. I can't be bothered.

MRS. TINKLE—Well, listen here. Now Raymond says that this is the whole thing that's back of it—oh wait a minute! I didn't get any of those salted nuts!

How to Double Your Charm

HAVE you been fooled by that witches' tale that you're born magnetic or the opposite—and that ends it?

You're gaining or losing charm every day. Charm's just the sum of appealing traits and you're constantly adding to your share of those traits—or choking them with unattractive ones.

Find your charm rating as it stands today. Make a chart. List your good and bad traits.

Maybe you're polite, poised, neat. But people don't warm to you? In large parties no one notices you?

Perhaps you're a bit of a wet blanket. You need to cultivate that spark that makes a person fun to be with.

Start today to be stimulating! Stir friends into enthusiastic talk by asking about their hobbies, their vacation good times. Put your family into a smiling good humor by telling them an amusing story. And do a kind-hearted thing—such as sending a card to a friend who is ill.

Magically—as you practice these little arts—you find people warming to you, delighted to see you.

As for those who never notice you—perhaps your clothes keep you from making an impression. Maybe they're nice clothes but they don't suit you. They quench you, make you look mousy to the attractive people you'd like to know better.

Try on everything and anything until you strike the colors and styles that light up the new stimulating you.

With our 40-page booklet, "Charm," you can easily develop your best self. Pointers on talk, social graces, posture, dress, men—help you win friends, love, success.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Charm," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Net Ensemble.

Paris (U.P.)—A charming black coarse silk net dress and jacket is made by Patou for all sorts of informal occasions. The dress skirt is accordion pleated and attached to a bodice whose tiny vertical tucks simulate accordion pleats. A short loose jacket is of matching black net so that the dress belt of embroidered ribbon shows through. To complete the outfit Patou suggests a broad-brimmed black straw hat worn off-the-face and banded with the same embroidered ribbon that is used on the dress.

Diplomats to Continue Exodus From Capital

Only Sir Ronald Lindsay and Secretary Hull Lack Vacation Plans as Others Take to the Country to Cool Off.

The dean of the Diplomatic Corps and the Secretary of State are still holding down the fort in Washington, even though most of their contemporaries long since have either gone vacationing or completed plans to leave this month. Sir Ronald Lindsay, according to word from his office yesterday, has no idea when he will sail for his homeland, though he still has hopes of getting away before the summer sizzles to a close.

Secretary of State Hull, on the other hand, isn't counting on getting away at all, and if he does manage to work a vacation into his schedule, it will be a brief one. Meanwhile, however, comings and goings continue to make most of the social news in both the Diplomatic Corps and Cabinet circles.

The Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel de Freyre y Santander, is still enjoying the breeze at Eagles Mere, Pa., where he has spent his summers for a number of years. He is not expected back until October.

The Argentine Ambassador, Felipe Espil, is spending the week-end at Narragansett Pier, R. I., where Senora de Espil has taken a house, and where she has been most of the summer.

Little Change In Summer Schedules

As has been their custom all this season, the Chilean Ambassador, Manuel Trucco and his daughters, Senoritas Marta and Rebeca Trucco, will entertain at a luncheon tomorrow at their place in Bluemont, Va., where they are spending the summer. In the company will be several members of the Chilean Embassy staff.

At their cottage near Annapolis are the Charge d'Affaires of the Soviet Embassy and Mme. Constantine Oumansky, who spend each wek-end in the country. The Assistant Military Attache, Col. Ivan Leontovich Okunev, and Mme. Okunev, also have a summer home near Annapolis and are there this week-end.

Still in Hot Springs, Va., are the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Saito, who are expected to return to Washington after Labor Day. Back from the Virginia resort recently came Mme. Munir Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, who expects to be in Washington the remainder of the summer.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Polish Embassy, Witold Wancowicz, has decided, it seems, that if he has to stay in Washington through the dog days, he is going to have as pleasant a time as possible. He will entertain on Wednesday evening at another of his informal supper parties—very small and very informal.

Wek-end guests are on the calendar for the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Los Rios today and tomorrow. They are entertaining at their country home, near Annapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Barnet Nover.

Now on a motor tour in their homeland are the German Ambassador and Frau Dieckhoff, who are not expected to return to Washington until October. The only other news this week-end from the German Embassy revolves around Herbert Scholz, First Secretary, who is at Hot Springs, Va., for the week-end. Frau Scholz has been there for several weeks and will remain until after Labor Day.

Now on his way to Europe is the French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint Quentin, who sailed on the Normandie Wednesday. He will got first to Paris, then to Aix-le-Bains to stay for several weeks. He expected to return the first week in October.

French Naval Attache Leaves for Vermont

The French Naval Attache, Comdr. Pierre Benech and Mme. Benech left yesterday morning for Craftsbury Common, near Montpelier, Vermont. Accompanying them was Countess de Gramont, wife of the Attache of the Embassy. The trio will go directly to the Hearthside Inn where the three sons of Count and Countess Gramont—Sanche, George and Patrice, are spending the summer with their governess, as are also the two Benech daughters, Claire and Anne.

Countess Gramont will return on Tuesday, but Comdr. and Mme. Benech expect to remain in Vermont for two weeks.

Miss Ida Allen Wed To James Lockwood

Bride Is Graduate of Maryland University.

Of interest to her friends in Washington is the announcement of the wedding on Thursday of Miss Ida Mae Allen, of West Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y., to James William Lockwood. The bride, the daughter of former State Senator Mark W. Allen, and the late Mrs. Allen, was a student at Maryland University. The ceremony, performed by Canon Pascal Harrower, took place in Trinity Methodist Church in West Brighton. Canon Harrower was assisted by the Rev. Joseph Blessing.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Allen wore a princess gown of chantilly lace over cream-colored satin. Her bouquet was of roses, orange blossoms and gypsophila. Miss Florence A. Mecca, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was the maid of honor, while Miss Betty L. Allen, sister of the bride was the bridesmaid.

Mr. Lockwood is a son of Norman B. Lockwood, of Keyport, N. J., and the late Mrs. Lockwood. His best man was his brother, Robert R. Lockwood.

After a motor trip through New England, the couple will make their home in Atlantic Highlands, N. J.

In addition to her degree at Maryland University, Mrs. Lockwood also is a graduate of Pratt Institute. Mr. Lockwood is an alumnus of Rutgers University.

Farley Party En Route Home

Postmaster General Farley, accompanied by his two daughters, Misses Betty and Ann Farley, is making a leisurely return from his trip to Alaska. After visiting Lake Louise and Banff, in Canada, they motored to Glacier National Park in Montana.

Mr. Farley and his daughters will arrive at Duluth Monday and then will go to the Mackinac Islands, in Michigan, where they will be August 11 and 12. That much of the trip will be by motor. There they will entrain for New York and are expected to arrive in that city by August 15.

Mrs. Farley has been at Malibu Beach, Calif., but returned to New York Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Holcomb And Wife to Take Two-Week Cruise

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, who manage during the summer to get in a short cruise every week-end on their yacht, "Slowboat," will be off for a slightly longer trip this time. They will most likely pull in the anchor tomorrow for a two weeks' jaunt down around near Leonardtown on the Eastern Shore.

For the first week, Col. and Mrs. Henry L. Larsen, of Quantico, will be their guests, and for the second week Col. and Mrs. Holland Smith, of the Marine Barracks here, will cruise and fish with them.

Capt. Ezra G. Allen, recently appointed budget officer of the Navy, and Mrs. Allen were passengers on the "Slowboat" last week-end. The Allens, who came all the way from the West Coast, have finally found a house, and are now nicely settled. While still in the throes of home hunting, they divided their time as guests alternately between the Holcombs and Admiral and Mrs. William D. Leahy.

When Franklin Holcomb returns from Europe on September 4, his parents, Gen. and Mrs. Holcomb, will go up to New York to meet him. He has been taking a course at Heidelberg in Germany in connection with his studies at the Georgetown Foreign Service School.

Elizabeth Jett Becomes Bride

Wed to George Boisclair in St. Matthew's Rectory.

St. Matthew's rectory yesterday afternoon was the scene of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Ann Jett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jett, to George Boisclair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Boisclair, of Milton Mills, N. H. The Rev. R. J. Rroelich performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white lace and net made with a fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil of white tulle was held in place by a crown of lilies of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies. The bride's only attendant was her cousin, Mrs. W. J. Nelson, who wore a gown of apple-green marquisette with rows of small pink bows on skirt and sleeves, and a veil that fell from a spray of vari-colored flowers in her hair. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The bridegroom's nephew, Mr. Albert F. Bobick, jr., was best man. A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Alice R. Collins. Receiving with the bride and bridegroom was the bride's mother, who wore a gown of blue lace with a hat of white lace and straw, and a corsage of gardenias.

Ropers Due Home Early Next Week

The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, who have been making a brief visit to London, England, are now on their return voyage.

They are expected to reach Washington not later than Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

James Conlon Festival Guest

Hibernian Head Will Be Honored on Next Tuesday Evening.

James Conlon, president of Ancient Order of Hibernians, an organization that will have a big part in entertaining Douglas Corrigan, will be among honor guests of the Summer Festival committee next Tuesday evening for the eighth program at the Washington Monument. A number of officials of the Gas Light Company also have been invited.

Beginning at 8 o'clock, the evening's entertainment will begin with several selections played by the Gas Light Company Band. The Langley Lambs Club, assisted by the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group, will take part on the program.

Guests of Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, chairman of the Summer Festivals, will include Mr. and Mrs. C. Melvin Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Quinn, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, with Dean Doyle and a party of drama lovers.

Kent Dyer will act as master of ceremonies, which will feature the revival of one of the most famous Irish melodramas ever written, "Colleen Bawn." In connection with the diverting play there will be a number of Irish songs, dating as far back as the early eighteenth century. These will be given under the direction of Estelle Wentworth.

Mr., Mrs. Sidney Lust Mark Silver Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lust who are spending much of their time this summer in their cottage at South Haven, Md., celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary there Thursday evening when a number of their friends joined them for an informal party.

Their daughter, Jerry Lust, left a few days ago to visit in Swan Lake, N. J., and will go from there to New Hampshire, returning to South Haven next week. Their son, Bernard, is spending the summer with his mother in the Maryland cottage. Mr. Lust joins them on week-ends.

Brennans Will Stay in Capital Is Latest News

Irish Representative Will Be Assisted by a New Secretary.

Will Robert Brennan, the Secretary of the Irish Legation, remain in Washington? Will he and his family be sent somewhere else in a new diplomatic shift? These and more questions have been going the rounds for months ever since the former Irish Minister, Michael MacWhite, left in a blaze of glory for an appointment elsewhere.

Now comes the news that Mr. Brennan will definitely continue to hold his post here as Charge d'Affaires and that M. Garth Healy, the new secretary of the legation, arrived in New York Wednesday on the Manhattan. He is expected to come to Washington either Monday or Tuesday to take over his duties under Mr. Brennan.

Staying in Washington through the hot spell, the Brennans have not as yet made any plans for the remainder of the summer.

Morgenthaus Summer Abroad

Secretary and Wife Expected Back Here Around End of Month.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., who are enjoying a summer vacation at Cap d'Antibes, France, are expected in Washington around the latter part of this month. It is thought they will go to their home in Fishkill, N. Y., immediately upon their return, and come to Washington from there.

They are due to arrive in Juneau on August 10. As Secretary Ickes is on an official inspection trip, they will visit all the important places that are open or passable for travel. They are expected to return to Washington around the end of the month.

Dr. and Mrs. McCue Leave for Canada

Dr. and Mrs. J. Douglas McCue will leave today by motor for a month's vacation on Prince Edward Island, Canada, where they will be the guests of Dr. McCue's sister, Mrs. Emmett Shea, at the old family homestead in Pleasant View.

Before returning to Washington, they will spend a week with Dr. McCue's brother, Dr. James P. McCue, and his sister, Mrs. Robinson Griffin, at their summer homes in Swampscott, Mass.

Drocks, Married Wednesday, to Live in Capital

Bride Was Miss Mary Howe Winder, Daughter of Mrs. George Howe.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Donald Drock, now on a Northern wedding trip, are expected to return the latter part of this month and will make their home in Washington.

Mrs. Drock formerly was Miss Mary Howe Winder, daughter of Mrs. George Howe, of this city. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Drock, of Miami.

The ceremony at which the former Miss Winder became a bride took place at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Howe's Cleveland Park home before an improvised altar decorated with palms, white gladioli and tall white tapers. Canon Anson Phelps Stokes officiated.

Mother Gives Bride in Marriage

Miss Helen Marjorie Wakefield played the wedding music and Miss Truziana Marinelli sang before the ceremony. Escorted to the altar by Howell Price French, the bride was given in marriage by her mother. The bridal ensemble included a wedding gown of periwinkle chiffon, fashioned with a fitted bodice and a slight train and trimmed in cream lace. With this was worn a periwinkle chiffon and net periwinkle hat. A bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley completed the costume.

Mrs. Howell Price French, matron of honor, was gowned in pale blue organza, trimmed with velvet orchid ribbon. Her bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses.

Frank Roudybush was best men and ushers were William Herrin, Alfred E. Mennell, Don McGovern and Howell Prince French. Following the ceremony there was a reception at which the bride's mother was hostess. Her frock of black net was trimmed in floral chiffon applique and she wore a black net picture hat and a corsage of gardenias.

Recording Made Of Wedding Service

An unusual feature of the wedding was the recording of the wedding music and ceremony.

Mrs. Drock was educated at the Cathedral School of St. Mary's, Garden City, Long Island; the Castle School, Tarrytown-on-the Hudson, and Columbia University. The bridegroom attended Vanderbilt University, the University of the South, and the Georgetown Foreign Service School. He is now bursar of the American Council of Learned Societies.

Secretary Wallace Returns to Capital From West Tour

The Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, returned to Washington on Thursday from a speaking tour in the Midwest. His itinerary included Iowa and Minnesota and the States of the famous "corn-belt."

He expects to be in Washington for the remainder of the summer. Mrs. Wallace, however, who is spending the season in Colorado, is not expected back in the city until after Labor Day.

Mrs. Russell Returns.

Mrs. Lindsey Russell, who has been visiting Mrs. Rushmore Patterson at her estate, Carmore, near Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and other friends near Tuxedo Park, returned to Washington recently and expects to be here for the remainder of the summer.

Clan of Nicholas Ickes Will Mark Homecoming

Mrs. Lelia Dromgold Emig Will Direct Program at Ickesburg, Pa., Next Saturday and Sunday for Patriot's Descendants.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Lelia Dromgold Emig, wife of Major Clayton E. Emig, of this city, will have charge of the program next Saturday for the Old Homecoming celebration to be held at Ickesburg, Pa. It will mark the homecoming of descendants of Nicholas Ickes, who founded the town in 1816.

Among the descendants of Nicholas Ickes' 18 children is Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, who is now on a trip to Alaska but who has sent a message to be read on the occasion.

It was at the suggestion of Mrs. Emig that the homecoming was planned. She is much interested in genealogy and has just completed a record of "the descendants of Nicholas Ickes," whose name is one of a long line of Revolutionary ancestors whom she has to her credit as a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She has long been anxious to devise a way of honoring the memory of this soldier, who entered the Army at 16 as a substitute for an older man. He enlisted in Limerick, Montgomery County, Pa. Later he moved beyond the Susquehanna River to Perry County, where he bought several tracts of land and founded the town of Ickesburg.

Clan to Gather From Many Sections

August 13, his descendants from all parts of the country will gather there for the celebration. Scott S. Leiby, of Harrisburg, will preside at the public meeting and introduce speakers of prominence, among them Henry Adams Ickes, of Washington, who is the historian for "The Ickes Family of America."

MRS. CLAYTON E. EMIG.

Perry County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will unveil a bronze marker at the original home site of Nicholas Ickes. This marker has been presented by members of the D. A. R. who joined bn his Revolutionary service.

On Sunday, August 14, the Ickes family reunion will be held at Emanuel Reformed Church where descendants will hold a program and conduct a special service at the grave of the Revolutionary hero.

Mrs. Emig has arranged the programs for the events of both days and will leave for Ickesburg early next week to assist the committees in charge.

Others from Washington who plan to attend and participate in the ceremonies are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hench, Mrs. Martha J. Junkin, the Misses Mary and Virginia Junkin, Mrs. Lelia Emig Endicott, Miss Rosemary Endicott, who will assist in unveiling the marker, and Perry Doing, who will be the official bugler.

Mrs. Emig has long been active in club work in Washington, having served as a State officer in the Daughters of the American Revolution, Women's Christian Temperance Union and Federation of Women's Clubs. She founded Abigail Hartman Rice Chapter of the D. A. R. and the Gov. Thomas Welles Society, Children of American Revolution, which was sponsored by Mrs. William Howard Taft, then First Lady.

Mrs. Hoffman Plans Talk at Meeting

Directly applicable to such work as Mrs. Emig is sponsoring is a reference by Bethe Campbell, staff writer for the Associated Press, to the fact that "modern women are tackling the job of preserving historic shrines with the same zest their great grandmothers did. In a constantly enlarging field of activity they are carrying on the tradition established 85 years ago when Ann Pamela Cunningham, shielding her identity under a nom-de-plume, 'The Southern Matron,' called on the women of America to save Mount Vernon.

Her article continues: "Mrs. Cordell Hull, busy wife of the Secretary of State, has agreed to head a committee wanting to buy The Manse, Woodrow Wilson's birthplace at Staunton, Va.

"I was born in Staunton, too," said Mrs. Hull. "Naturally, I'm interested in making a national shrine of the home of one of Virginia's most famous statesmen."

Mrs. Hull also has been interested in the restoration of Stratford Hall, in Westmoreland County, Va., birthplace of two signers of the Declaration of Independence and of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Purchase and restoration of Stratford to the status of a working plantation, in progress since 1929, has been directed entirely by women, representing all parts of the country.

Daughters of the American Revolution have furnished the surrender room at Moore House in Yorktown, where terms of Cornwallis' surrender to Washington were drawn up. Local D. A. R. chapters have marked thousands of historic sites, and many other women's organizations have sponsored restoration projects.

Many of the leaders say their work is inspired by that of Miss Cunningham, the invalid who organized the Mount Vernon Ladies Association in 1853 and raised $200,000 to purchase the estate.

Business Girls Going Today to Kamp Kahlert

Another Junior Group to Leave Monday for Y.W.C.A. Spot.

A large group of members of the industrial and business girls departments of the Y. W. C. A. will leave this afternoon for Kamp Kahlert, on West River, Md., to spend the week-end. Swimming, hiking, tennis and picnic suppers will be among the diversions.

The regular campers are now in the midst of preparations for a water pageant and a gypsy day, which will be held next week as special programs. Girls who have won their life saving bades will participate in the water pageant.

Monday another group of juniors will go down to spend from two to four weeks. Those going for the longer period will stay through to the closing of the camp early in September. They will be the last group of junior campers to enroll there this season. Other groups of seniors, however, will go for week-ends, and the camp facilities will be used for outings for special groups during the fall, as in previous years.

The party of seniors going today includes: Miss Dale Aylesworth, Miss Winifred Cross, Mrs. Esther Cookman, Miss Louise Duncan, Miss Esther Edell, Miss Olga Dorosh, Mrs. Julia Herrell, Miss Marjorie James, Miss Maurine Johnson, Miss Ella Kaubler, Mrs. Lily Lewis, Miss Jean McIntosh, Miss Marie Puhr, Miss Eunice Robinson, Miss Evelyn Toye, Mrs. Ernestine Wonder, Miss Emma Wulff and Mrs. Zella Childs.

Mrs. L. G. Sasscer To Be Guest at Tea

The Sasscer-for-Governor Club of the Chillum District, Prince Georges County, tomorrow will give a tea in honor of Mrs. Lansdale G. Sasscer, wife of Senator Sasscer, one of the candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Maryland. The tea will be held from 3 to 5 p. m. at Margaret Brant Hall, University of Maryland campus, in College Park.

National and Department Committee Heads to Confer

MRS. A. H. HOFFMAN (below), national chairman of constitution and by-laws for the American Legion Auxiliary, will be a guest of honor at the department convention Friday and Saturday at the Carlton Hotel. Miss Frances Youngblood (right) is department chairman of the same committee.

Gamma Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, To Open Season September 13

Irene Stevenson, President, Will Have Charge of Meeting in Y. W. C. A. at Which Sorority Will Welcome New Members.

Gamma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority is preparing to open its season September 13 at the Y. W. C. A. with a welcome to new members. The president, Irene Stevenson, will be in charge.

The sorority, composed of young business and professional women, was founded in 1931 and since then has established chapters in all States but Vermont. Mrs. Ellis Logan, the "mother" of a number of clubs and societies in the District, was sponsor for the local chapter, instituted in March, 1932.

The program of the Washington group next season will follow that outlined by the national organization on the general subject of "Happiness." The programs will deal with such topics as self-analysis, personality development, travel, literature and home planning. The evenings devoted to literature will include reviews of new books.

There will also be social functions such as were arranged last year. There was a dance in December, near the Christmas holidays, and the annual spring dance both at the Willard Hotel. There was also a tea honoring the new members, given in March and a Mother's Day tea in May. The Founders' Day Banquet was the outstanding event of the season with Mrs. Vachel Lindsay, an honorary member, as guest of honor and speaker.

Officers of Gamma Chapter in addition to Miss Stevenson are: Mildred Vetton, vice president; Margaret Frazen, recording secretary; Alice Roberts Koch, corresponding secretary; Edna Steinbarger, treasurer; Bonnie McKeith, historian; Mrs. E. B. Sunday, educational director; Mrs. Logan, sponsor.

Ruth Cate Hill was elected recording secretary of the eastern area of which Gamma Chapter is a part, at the art conference held here in June with the local chapter acting as hostess.

New members of the sorority, who have recently come to Washington from other chapters over the country include: Helen Buzzell, Margaret Frazen, Elsie McClanahan, Alice Roberts Koch, and Eloise Dettman, from Illinois; Frances Harper and Dorothy Ryno, from Missouri; Gladys Aitcheson, Indiana; Nadine Krause, South Dakota; Mildred McKirgan and Elsie Errichson, Iowa; Ella Mae Massie, Oklahoma; Enid Rasmussen, Wyoming.

Many of them joined the local group as soon as they arrived in Washington. One of these was Mrs. Koch, chairman of the program committee for the coming year. Serving with her are Helen Buzzell, Frances Harper and Marjorie Burton. Ella Pharoah is chairman of the social committee and Ruth Gilbert, chairman of ways and means.

Other members of the chapter are: Anne Ambrose, Alice Gene Carver, Jeanne Cassil, Gertrude Cave, Lucille Embrey, Mildred King, Margaret Miller, Lucile Sullivan, Peggy Thorne, Frances Zumpano, Victoria Strauch and Betty Zaloker.

Madame Chairman

Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, writes an interesting account of the motor trip North she is making with Mr. Haig and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Green, jr.

They left just a week ago and drove to New York and then over to Summit, N. J., where they were entertained at dinner by Mrs. William A. Becker, past president general of the D. A. R., and Mr. Becker. Other guests were Mrs. William H. Pouch, president of the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, Mr. Pouch, and Dr. and Mrs. Mockridge.

* * * *

After the dinner, at which coffee was served in the official Coronation cups and saucers which Mrs. Becker brought back from England last year, Mr. Pouch showed moving pictures of his trip with Mrs. Pouch to the West Indies, Hawaii and Norway.

* * * *

Mrs. Haig said their sightseeing in New York included a visit to Coney Island. They took the new highway along the Hudson out of New York when they started for New England, going to Yonkers and then across Westchester County into Connecticut and on to Stamford, 40 miles without a crossroad. From Bridgeport they continued their journey along the shore of the Connecticut and stopped Sunday night at Madison, Conn. They were charmed with the quaint little towns through which they drove, such as Saybrook, Mystic, Westerly and Wakefield.

* * * *

They stopped a short time in New London on Monday morning and arrived in Providence in time for lunch. In the afternoon they reached Plymouth, where Mrs. Haig, as a D. A. R., took particular interest in the rock on which the Pilgrims landed and other historic landmarks.

* * * *

In Boston, Concord and Lexington, she and her family continued their tour of places of historic interest and, Tuesday night stopped in the quaint old fishing town of Gloucester. "Fish and the odor of fish," she remarked after a description of the beauties of the village, and added that her son-in-law had turned fisherman for a day and had caught one fish weighing 12 pounds.

Wednesday all the party went out five or six miles in the bay for a fishing trip. The day was hot and the sun practically merciless, she said, but mentioned nothing as to her own success as a fisherman.

From Gloucester, the Haigs and Richards go to Portland and then on to the White Mountains.

Mrs. Henry R. Pyne To Entertain for Club's Social Unit

Mrs. Henry Rogers Pyne will entertain the sub-committee of the social section of the Twentieth Century Club at her home Monday with Mrs. George O. Gillingham as co-hostess.

The group, which meets regularly in the winter season to fold bandages for the Montgomery County Hospital, continues its informal gatherings with monthly luncheons in the summer time for those who are not away on vacations.

Monday Mrs. Pyne, who is widely known as a concert singer, will present a program for her guests, with Mrs. Adele Bush as her accompanist.

Before coming to Washington, she concertized extensively in this country, Canada and Europe, but has done little professional singing during her residence in the Capital. She has been heard, however, on a few club programs including that of the Political Study Club two years ago when Mrs. Roosevelt was guest of honor. Last season she presented a Wagnerian evening for the German Literary Society. She expects to devote her time chiefly to teaching next winter.

American Legion Auxiliary To Seek Constitution Changes

District Group to Make Revisions at Convention Opening Next Friday at Carlton Hotel; Plan to Remedy Outgrown Provisions.

Changes in the constitution and by-laws of the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion Auxiliary are to be made at the annual convention which will open at the Carlton Hotel next Friday night. The revisions, according to Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper, who is retiring president of the District organization, are designed to remedy certain outgrown provisions.

Mrs. A. H. Hoffman, of Des Moines, Iowa, national chairman of the constitution and by-laws committee, will be a guest of honor at the convention and will confer with Miss Frances Youngblood, chairman of that committee for the District of Columbia Department, in final preparation of amendments to be submitted to the convention.

Mrs. Hoffman, in a recent issue of the National News, published by the American Legion Auxiliary, says of necessary changes in the national constitution: "If, as we grow in responsibility and in numbers, there are parts of our constitution and by-laws that are not now workable, or which we have outgrown, it is your privilege to bring these rules to the attention of your national constitution and by-laws committee.

Suggests Study of State Constitutions

"Since our national constitution deals with fundamental organization principles, much latitude is given to departments in writing into their own constitutions their own particular needs and adaptations for their own particular environments. The constitution and by-laws of the various States could and should be a source of inspiration and study.

"The smooth-working machinery of a department that contributes 100 per cent to each national activity may be due as much to the plan of organization as to the fine spirit of co-operation within the department. It will be the purpose of your constitution and by-laws committee to bring to your attention before the year is closed some of the outstanding rules of various departments that you may use these as a measuring stick for your own department.

"Within the department," she continues, "freedom is allowed for various forms of district, county and unit constitutions and by-laws, each one bowing to the authority under which it is organized and upon which it depends for existence, and, above all, the constitution of the American Legion, to which we conform and which has given to us our preamble."

The department committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Youngblood, proposes to present to the coming convention revisions which will be in line with the changes suggested by the national organization and also to propose a uniform constitution for the various units of the district. This, it is believed, will be a means of bringing about closer cooperation between the different groups comprising the department.

Modern Women Lead Movement

Mrs. Hoffman is to be the speaker at the luncheon to be held Saturday in connection with the convention and will also participate in the dedication of the department colors.

Committee chairmen in addition to Miss Youngblood who will present their reports on the opening night of the conclave will be Mrs. Dorothy M. Blake, on permanent organization; Mrs. Irene Arnold, credentials, and Mrs. Zelda Mulvey, on rules. Mrs. Harper will preside at the sessions as department president.

This year will be the first in which the auxiliary has held its department convention at the same time as that of the American Legion. The legion meeting will be at the Mayflower, beginning at 9 o'clock Thursday night, with auxiliary members as official guests at the opening session. They will also participate in the legion parade, with Mrs. Helen Mahoney as parade chairman.

Bedtime Stories

Striped Chipmunk Was Right

To have it proven you are right
Can hardly fail to bring delight.
—Striped Chipmunk.

Striped Chipmunk was finding it so. As yet no one of his neighbors in feathers and fur had discovered his new home. Many had looked for it and failed to find it. Striped Chipmunk was missed in his old haunts. Somehow the Old Stonewall didn't seem the place it had when he had been living there. Some of his friends were afraid that he had been caught and carried off by some hungry enemy. In fact, they felt sure that this must be the case. After the visit of Shadow the Weasel they were sure that Striped Chipmunk was no more about the Old Stonewall. They couldn't think of any reason why he should have moved, so they decided that he must have been caught and killed and they were sorry. Then they forgot all about him.

Meanwhile Striped Chipmunk was enjoying his new home and was freer from worry than he had been for a long time. "I knew I was right," he declared to himself. "I knew I was right here is the entrance to my home right out in the open where no one would dream that I would think of coming, so no one had looked for me here and I'm living in greater peace than I had known for a long time. By this time everybody probably thinks that I have been caught so no one is looking for me. I never was more right about anything than I was in choosing this place for a home."

He had heard the racket the birds had made when they had seen Shadow the Weasel on the Old Stonewall and he had known just what it had meant. He had guessed that Shadow was looking for him, and oh how glad he was that he had moved when he did. He felt safer here from Shadow than ever he had felt in the home under the old wall. The only thing that bothered him at all was the distance he would have to go to lay in his food supplies. It would be much farther than before, and you know that for little people like him the farther they have to travel the greater the risk.

And then something wonderful happened. Every day he was visited by Sue and sometimes by Sammy. At least they came over near his home hoping to get a glimpse of him. They seldom did, for he always ducked out of sight when he saw them coming. Always when they left and he ventured out when the way was clear he found not far away a handful of seeds or corn or grain or nuts which he could put in his storerooms, and often some other tidbit to be eaten right away. Never were they left beside his hole. Sue had wanted to put food there but Tommy had warned her that that would be the surest way of letting others know the secret of the entrance to that home.

"Don't leave food too near it and don't go over to it," warned Tommy. "Some one with a keen nose will follow our trail out of curiosity, and if it leads to Striped Chipmunk's hole of course they will find that."

Of course Striped Chipmunk now and then went back to the Old Stonewall. The first time he reappeared there he was soon discovered and there was great rejoicing among his friends, for Striped Chipmunk is such a cheerful little fellow that he is much liked. So there was much rejoicing because you see they had thought him dead and here he was his jolly little self. Then they wanted to know where he had been and if now that he had returned he was going to stay.

"No, thank you," cried Striped Chipmunk.

"And have Shadow the Weasel come back looking for me? No, thank you!" cried Striped Chipmunk.

But when they wanted to know where he was living they got no satisfaction at all. Some one saw him scampering toward Farmer Brown's house, but this was all that they found out for a long time, and every day Striped Chipmunk would think how right he had been in his choice of a situation for that new home. It was in such plain sight that no one could see it. He chuckled every time he thought of this and this was many times a day.

New York Gives 'Wrong-Way' Corrigan Tumultuous Welcome

Warm Day, Warm Welcome

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

MERELY A VACATION.

Endless piffle is rampant about President Roosevelt's "purge" safari across the continent, and about his endorsements of New Deal candidates during the trek . . . I doubt that he intended any purge when he left Washington, or that he planned definitely to boost any candidate substantially except Barkley in Kentucky.

Sen. Elmer Thomas . . . faint praise

Only two speeches were written in Washington before his departure, the Marietta, Ohio, speech, and the one he delivered at the Latonia race track in Kentucky . . . It is fairly obvious that if Roosevelt had planned any purging, or plugging of his favorites, he would have prepared in advance at least half a dozen more speeches.

* * * *

But his other speeches (except possibly the non-political San Francisco speech) were either hastily dictated or scribbled on the train or delivered extemporaneously by rear platform inspiration . . . The absence from the other speeches of specific data or statistics which would have had to be prepared in advance, and which was not available on the train, was palpable. As purger or campaigner, F. D. R. was just full of vacation lassitude.

"—the prayer to Allah"

When the "endorsement" of candidates began beyond Kentucky, by casual friendly mention of a man's name, the President's reluctance was obvious, and the endorsements ranged from lukewarm to warmish.

* * * *

This situation began to reach comic and historic heights in Oklahoma . . . The rumor spread through the train that mimeograph copies of FDR's Oklahoma City speech would not be made until just before arrival there, so the Senator Thomas coterie on the train would not have time to see how lukewarm was the Presidential blessing.

* * * *

But there was pressure for the mimeograph copies; some of the newsmen wanted to do a little advance work on the story. Half an hour before Oklahoma City the copies fluttered through the train. The Elmer Thomas men read the speech and were instantly a woebegone lot. "He's let Elmer down!" they said. The pressure began for more Presidential enthusiasm about Elmer.

* * * *

This pressure converged on Marvin McIntyre and Steve Early, the President's secretaries, and flooded back into the rear car . . . As the train pulled into Oklahoma McIntyre and Early spread the warning that Mr. Roosevelt would change his phraseology about Senator Thomas a little. The reporters watched the text as FDR spoke. (By that time a secret report came in that Thomas was in the bag anyhow.) Sure enough, there was an extra sentence or two about Elmer, something mild about how helpful Elmer's advice had been to F. D. R.

All through the week-end in Texas half a dozen Representatives and Senator Connally mooned about with half-concealed nervousness, seeking assurances that they would be praised. Maverick wanted a Presidential statement issued about the money he had obtained for his district; there was no great urge to give it to him. When the verbal accolade finally came—near the northern border of the State, on the way out—it was so mild that to say less were churlish.

* * * *

Most comical of all—or tragic; it depends on your point of view—was the McCarran incident in Nevada. Senator Pat was certainly not in favor with the White House advisers; he had been on purge lists. But he hung around amiably and brassily, gave FDR a mess of trout, and so susceptible is the President to propinquity that he finally and amazingly gave Pat as warm a mention as more ardent New Dealers.

* * * *

Propinquity propinks; it worked again in California, where Senator McAdoo and his young bride were at the President's elbow for two days . . . After what he had said for other candidates the President, who is something of a sentimentalist, could scarcely refrain from blessing his colleague of the war days in Washington . . . A bridegroom in front of his bride, at that!

* * * *

No; it was not purges or praises that dwelt in Mr. Roosevelt's mind on his transcontinental journey; it was the hurdle facing his More Abundant Life program in 1940.

Incidentally, as Kentuckians go to the primaries today it is significant that the Gallup surveys stand for Barkley, 61 to 39; and when the margin is that great, the learned Dr. Gallup estimates that the chances are 75 to 1 against an upset.

Eastern High Playground Able to Solve 'Play Safely' Problem

The campaign to remove children from hazardous streets to the safe confines of playgrounds where they can play safely with organization and supervision finds a willing co-operator in the large Eastern High School Playground. While 400 children attend the playground regularly, the center can accommodate many more children, officials said. District Lists $10,448,497 in Welfare Bids

Money for Employables Is Not Asked, Pending Relief Inquiry.

Public welfare estimates of $10,448,497 were submitted to the District Commissioners yesterday as officials began making their bids for 1940 appropriations.

While 50 per cent above current appropriations, the estimates fell almost $1,000,000 short of last year's estimates because no funds were requested for destitute employables. The report explained that this request was being held up pending the outcome of the relief inquiry authorized by Congress.

For aid of unemployables the board asked $1,493,822 as compared with the $500,000 appropriated for this year.

Restrictions Hit.

Congressional restrictions on administrative expenses of the public assistance division and the per-family relief allotments were hit by the board. The current supply act limits administrative expenses to 8½ per cent and relief doles to $60 a month or $75 where there are dependent children.

Large sums for new construction and improvements at the penal institutions and the District Training School are asked and new buildings for the Children's Receiving Home and the Industrial Home School, which would be moved from Wisconsin avenue to Muirkirk, Md.

Some further changes are expected before the estimates are submitted to the budget bureau as a result of a child welfare study just started this week.

The new construction program proposed for the workhouse would cost $759,000 and would include a dormitory, an administration building, a recreation and library building, and a mess hall. The reformatory would get a dormitory, a chapel and school and a tuberculosis hospital.

New School Asked.

The District Training School asked for a new school, four new dormitories, and a variety of minor buildings, boosting its total estimate to $902,815 as compared with current appropriations of $231,710.

A new receiving home for children, which the House last year tried to move to the House of Detention, was asked at a cost of $160,000.

The board requested $15,000 to draw plans for a complete new Industrial Home School for white children, which would cost ultimately $500,000.

The estimate for old age pensions is $58,000 above this year's appropriation to take care of an expected 400 additional pensioners.

Several score additional employes are requested by the board, including 74 for the jail and four for the Parole Board.

Parents of Slain Girl Laud Police In Landis Case

The parents of Mrs. Blanche Beckert Landis, for whose murder her husband, James L. Landis, 23, former District rookie fireman, is serving life in Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, yesterday praised Washington police for their work in solving the crime, in a letter to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

They wrote of the "splendid work" and "the courtesy and kindness shown by your men for us and our family through this trying ordeal." They asked especially that Detective Sergts. William Liverman, Robert Barrett, John Wise and George W. Thornton, Precinct Detective James E. Ennis and Privates Otho L. Blackwell and Albert K. Frank be commended.

Maj. Brown sent copies of the letter to officers of Detective Bureau and Twelfth Precinct, with this indorsement:

"The major and superintendent joins with Mr. and Mrs. Beckert in commending the outstanding and efficient services rendered by members of this department in the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Mrs. Landis."

Social Service Co-ordination Urged at Security Act Dinner

Celebrants of Law's Third Year Hear Regional Director Kilcoin Admit Its Imperfections, Laud Its Accomplishments.

Co-operation between public assistance agencies and Old Age Insurance agencies is necessary, while co-ordinated effort of unemployment compensation agencies, the Employment Service and Old Age Insurance offices is essential, William L. Kilcoin, acting regional director of the Social Security Board, asserted last night.

Kilcoin addressed 158 men and women from various groups and agencies gathered at the Y. W. C. A. to celebrate the third anniversary of the social security act. His territory includes the District, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and West Virginia.

"Although we are all working on different phases of the program," said Kilcoin, "we have a common objective to relieve distress, to think we can take quiet satisfaction not only in a job well done, but in a job eminently worth while doing."

The dinner-meeting was sponsored by the Washington field office of the board, the District Unemployment Compensation Board, the District Unemployment Center, the District Health Department and the Board of Public Welfare. Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen presided and introduced the speakers.

Prior to the passage of the social security act, only very limited funds were available to the health department for maternal care services, Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department, said in another address.

Results Cited.

"The use of social security funds has enabled the District Health Department to increase its activities greatly in this field," she stated. She then sketched advances made since the passage of the act.

Benefits derived by State departments of health from Social Security funds have been largely reflected in the improvements of local health services and the training of personnel, observed Dr. Robert Olesen, Assistant Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service.

Other speakers included Victor Sadd, manager of the Washington Field Office; Daniel J. Callahan, a member of the District Unemployment Compensation Board; C. E. Lamson, director of the District Unemployment Center; Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, assistant health officer of the District; Dr. Henry J. Cresson, vice chairman of the Board of Public Welfare; Miss Alice M. Hill, director of the Public Assistance Division; Miss Doris Andrews, case supervisor in that division, and Miss A. Madorah Donahue, director of the Child Welfare Demonstration Unit.

Admits Imperfection.

It is a truism, he continued, that the act and its administration are not perfect, "and that we can improve our technique and procedures."

"It is probable that legislative changes will be made," said he. "Considering the fact, however, that the program is relatively new, I assist the needy aged and to provide a measure of protection against the hazards and insecurity of old age."

Church Will Fete Two U.S. Workers, Shifted From City

The congregation of the Brookland Baptist Church, Sixteenth and Monroe streets northeast, will tender a reception tomorrow night to two of its members, Federal employes who are being transferred to new field offices.

C. C. Marsh, who will leave for the new income tax unit in Chicago, and Glen Brumbaugh, who is going to the new office in San Francisco, are being transferred as a result of the decentralization of part of the income tax unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Brumbaugh has served as church treasurer for 13 years, and his wife also has been active in Sunday school and young people's work. Marsh has been superintendent of the Sunday school for four years, while Mrs. Marsh has acted as head of the young people's department, and has been a member of the board of trustees of the Baptist Children's Home.

'Corrigan-Complexed' Girls Pass Destination

Two young Pennsylvania girls with a "Corrigan complex" arrived in Washington yesterday after they had set out from Williamsburg (Blair County), Pa., to hitch-hike to Baltimore.

The girls, Barbara Meyers, 12, and Helen Lorse, 15, said they had left for Baltimore Thursday and did not know how they got here. After they were picked up by Twelfth Precinct police, while asking directions, they were sent to the Receiving Home.

'Go' Sign Given On $2,800,000 In D. C. Works

PWA Contracts Sealed, Architects Get Busy on 3 Buildings.

The District Commissioners yesterday gave the "go" signal to the municipal architect's office after signing the first PWA contracts on three building projects involving $2,800,000 in loans and grants.

Architects and draftsmen who had been engaged tentatively for the special work began occupation of scattered rooms over the District Building in preparation for rushing plans for a new Municipal Court building, a Juvenile Court building, and a medical ward at Gallinger Hospital.

Receipt of the PWA contracts by the commissioners was the first official notification of Secretary Ickes' approval of a portion of the $18,150,000 projects requested for the District. Additional contracts for approximately $3,500,000 additional in loans and grants are expected shortly.

There were indications also at the PWA that more District projects may be approved within a few weeks. There have been reports that an armory for the National Guard and a unit of the Municipal Center will be included.

Under the PWA contracts as signed the District may spread its repayment of 55 per cent of the PWA loan-grant over 25 years.

The Municipal Court will cost $1,500,000 to build, but the District will repay only $825,000. The Juvenile Court will cost $550,000, but the District will repay but $302,500. While the Gallinger Hospital ward will cost $750,000, the District will owe the PWA only $412,500.

Bridge Plunge Puts Man in Hospital

A man tentatively identified as Roy Stone, 40, address unknown, early this morning leaped or fell 40 feet from the eastern end of the Eleventh street bridge to an old spur of the B. & O. Railroad. Rushed to Casualty Hospital in an ambulance, he was found to have a fractured jaw, possible skull fracture and multiple cuts from glass which littered the earth where he struck.

Louis Hessen, of 1826 Potomac avenue southeast told Eleventh Precinct police he saw the man climb to the railing along the bridge, poise a moment, then topple forward. Stone was unable to talk because of injuries.

Nettle Just Can't Understand; That's Why He Stings, 'Tis Said

Don't get mad next time a sea nettle stings you while you're frolicking in the breakers. They just can't help it.

Students of these glutinous denizens of the salt water say the pests which take all the romance out of beach bathing are equipped with tiny barbs which do the stinging. They add that the nettle doesn't thrust this barb into his victim's hide out of pure vindictiveness; the barb goes off automatically by muscular contraction when the nettle touches anything its none-too-well-developed intelligence fails to comprehend.

Simple as it is in the biological scale, the nettle manufactures formic acid (the same stuff a bee annoys you with) and carries this acid on its barbs. So you get an itchy dose of this stuff when you're stung, and you may relieve it with diluted household ammonia, baking soda or a salve compounded of equal parts of petroleum jelly and bismuth subnitrate.

Accompanied by His Wife and Children, He Will Sail From San Francisco August 31 to Direct Seventh-Day Adventist Hospital.

Dr. A. W. Truman, for 13 years directing head of the medical department of the world's general conference of Seventh Day Adventists, with headquarters in Takoma Park, Md., will go to Shanghai, China, as medical superintendent of the Shanghai sanitarium, it was announced yesterday.

Accompanied by his wife, who was Miss Daisy Ethel Nary, and two of their five children, he will sail from San Francisco August 31.

The Rev. Frederick C. Gilbert, secretary of the Jewish department of the general conference, with headquarters also in Takoma Park, will sail on the same ship for India, Colombo, Siam and other sections of the Far East, on a mission tour that will continue at least 15 months.

Although the $400,000 Shanghai sanitarium was badly damaged during the war in China, it has been repaired and is again in operation. It was built under supervision of Dr. H. W. Miller, formerly of Takoma Park and now in Hankow.

Many wounded soldiers have already been cared for in this and sister institutions. During the coming autumn council of international leaders of the Adventists in the Battle Creek (Mich.) Tabernacle in October, plans will be formulated for sending more physicians to the hospital.

Dr. Truman was born in Mulvane, Kans., March 13, 1884, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Truman. He attended elementary schools in Kansas. He completed one term at the Keene Industrial Academy, of Keene, Tex., now Southwestern Junior College. He was a student of the Battle Creek (Mich.) College for nearly four years, and then entered the State University of Colorado, graduating with the degree of M. D. in June, 1908.

Dr. Truman soon after graduation entered the College of Medical Evangelists in Loma Linda, Calif., as a physician and instructor, where he remained until 1918. During his stay in Loma Linda, he was made medical superintendent of the Loma Linda Sanitarium, while continuing as a teacher in the medical college.

During 1919 and 1920, he was connected with the White Memorial Hospital in Los Angeles as medical superintendent and instructor. Later he went to the St. Helena Sanitarium, near St. Helena, Calif. He then accepted an invitation to go to the Rest Haven Sanitarium, on an island near Victoria, British Columbia, Canada, where he acted as medical director for one year, and then came to Takoma Park as secretary of the medical department of the general conference.

It was in 1928 that he accepted the medical directorship of the Washington Sanitarium in Takoma Park, Md., in addition to leading out in the medical department of the general conference. He remained with the Takoma Park institution until 1935, then, after spending another year with the medical department, he engaged in private practice in Bellflower, Calif., where he has been for the last two years. He was ordained to the gospel ministry by the Rev. A. G. Daniells, former president of the general conference, in Kansas City, Mo., in 1926.

Border Dispute Goes to Court

Cafe Operator Seeks to Block Virginia Levy at Highway Bridge.

The long-disputed boundary line between Washington and Virginia at the south end of Highway Bridge may be definitely decided in District Court as the result of a suit filed yesterday by Harry J. Riganis, of Takoma Park, operator of a restaurant near the Washington Airport.

In an injunction suit, Riganis said the State of Virginia and Arlington County were attempting to assert the right to tax certain items in his cafe. Last July, he was informed licenses for his cigarette and music machines were due Arlington County. The petition also set forth Riganis is about to erect a gas pump near the cafe and he has been notified that he must not cover up the electrical wires leading to and from the pumps until they have been inspected and approved by the Arlington electrical inspector.

Named as defendants were Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue; Ray Cogswell, electrical inspector; Lawrence W. Douglass, Commonwealth's attorney, and Sheriff Howard Fields, all officials of the county.

Riganis stated he had been advised that unless he paid taxes to the county he would be liable to criminal prosecution.

He said he had been informed, however, that the jurisdiction of the District extended to the high water mark on the Virginia side of the Potomac.

According to the suit, Riganis operates the property on a three year lease from H. Rozier Dulany and R. Walton Moore as trustees. James M. Earnest attorney for Riganis, said the owners have been paying taxes to Virginia.

Sale-Income Unified Tax Sought Here

District Officials Seek Plans to Equalize Levy System.

Indicate Real Estate Is Bearing Burden at Present Time.

By James D. Secrest.

A combination income and sales tax that would evade the ticklish problem of tapping the salaries of Federal employes was one of many revenue proposals discussed yesterday at the first meeting of the District tax advisory committee with Congressional experts.

Colin F. Stam, counsel for the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, said the income tax would be restricted to businesses and investments and the sales tax would reach the thousands of salaried workers in Washington.

The committee authorized Dr. Chester Pond, who is making the tax study, to delve into the revenue sources of various States in a search for a more balanced tax system in the National Capital.

"We are aiming at a broad tax structure," Dr. Pond explained, "in which the tax burden will be spread rather than concentrated."

Slight Various Classes.

He indicated real estate has been carrying a disproportionate share of the load in recent years and that the District tax system has failed to take into account the ability of various classes of Washingtonians to pay.

Dr. Pond said until Auditor Daniel J. Donovan completes his forecast of District revenue needs for the next few years he will be unable to make any definite recommendations to the advisory committee. This revenue forecast is expected to show a rising operating cost of the District government that will require a tax plan capable of growth or expansion.

The tax investigator said he could not predict at this time whether his report could cover fiscal relations between the Federal and District government and the lump sum payment.

"Of course, we will assume Congress intends to continue making some payment to the District," he said, "but I am not prepared to say whether my recommendations will cover that phase of District revenue."

More Gas Tax Discussed.

The committee discussed the current business privilege tax but briefly yesterday, and the consensus appeared to be that this levy should be abandoned or sharply modified.

Increased gasoline taxes and possible diversion of this revenue from the highway fund also was discussed, it was learned. This mode of raising revenue has been urged frequently on Capitol Hill during the last few years, but organized motorists and a clique of Congressmen led by the House Roads Committee have resisted every move in that direction.

Last session Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, sponsored a provision in the 1939 tax act which is intended to make any diversion from the highway fund to the general revenue account illegal.

At any early meeting of the advisory committee, Stam will present legal opinions on various suggested taxes, including an all-embracive income levy, and Dr. Pond will give a factual analysis of their revenue potentialties.

'Ugly Duckling.'

The scene was Benning in the crisp air of an October morning, 1929. Down out of the horse pullmans into the ramp at the railroad siding frisked a detachment of Harry Payne Whitney yearlings. Across the track, beyond the judges' decadent stand that was a last lingering relic of Benning's former glories as a race track, the string of juveniles was led to the Whitney barn. They were being stalled in Winter quarters.

POVICH.

A liver-colored chestnut colt, undersized and scraggly, elicited the derisive "humphs" of stable hands. Among the lot were truly beautiful specimens of horseflesh, by famed Whitney stallions out of famed Whitney mares. With practiced eye, the grooms noted conformation and well-formed legs. Here was a yearling consignment to gladden the hearts of horsemen.

All except the liver-colored chestnut. His was not the same handsome head of the rest. Spindly legs did not betoken either the speed or driving power of the others. He was short—"close coupled" the handlers called it. He was the ugly duckling of the batch.

'Balance' Motif.

As yet, the yearlings were unnamed. That would come later when Mr. Whitney would advise his trainers how he would have them designated. One thing they knew, the Whitney yearlings would be named on the "balance" motif, indicative of their breeding. Mr. Whitney was partial to the "balance" theme. His stables had boasted such names as Swing, Pennant, Scales, Balance, Level and one "Cito," Italian for swing.

The yearling trial that fall at Benning developed nothing startling among the batch. The liver-colored chestnut was still regarded skeptically, however. The following spring, the string, in charge of Trainer Freddy Hopkins, took the track again. There were no hopes that Hopkins would turn up anything smacking of a sensation. The best of the Whitney brood had been consigned to Saratoga for New York racing under the veteran Jimmy Rowe.

By that time, the liver-colored chestnut had been named, "Equipoise" they called him. It was out of sentiment that he had been given into Hopkins' charge. The second-string trainer of the stable had trained the colt's dam, Swinging.

Colt Had Speed.

Hopkins' stop-watch soon revealed what the appraising eyes of stable hands had failed to note. Equipoise, the ugly duckling of the string, had speed. The son of Pennant—Swinging was turning in the fastest times of the 2-year-old batch. He commanded a new and solicitous interest among the Whitney handlers.

"Ekky" was a headstrong colt. Hopkins' first-string riders were finding it hard to stay on his back. The young trainer looked around for a lad with powerful arms. His glance fell on a stocky youth who had but lately joined the Whitney Stable. Sonny Workman was told to try his hand with "Ekky."

Together they began a meteoric rise across the turf firmament—Equipoise and Sonny Workman. Stake after stake fell to the unhandsome little 2-year-old and the powerfully limbed rider. Harry Payne Whitney never lived to see Equipoise blossom as one of the great 2-year-olds of racing history or to realize that he had in the ungainly colt a horse that would be second only to Sun Beau in money winning.

Kelley Gets Him.

At his death that summer, the stable passed on to his son, C. V. Whitney. The latter, recognizing the talents of "Ekky," advised Trainer Rowe to take him to New York with the best of the Whitney string. There the heavyweight division of the stable was being campaigned. But Rowe, in deference to Hopkins' success with "Ekky," counseled against such a move. "Freddy brought him out, let him keep Ekky," replied Rowe. "It wouldn't be fair to take him over now."

And so "Ekky," virtually en route to New York, was remanded to the charge of the No. 2 Whitney trainer. For "Chew Tobacco" Mike Kelley, as well as Hopkins it was a pleasing decision. Kelley, foreman of Hopkins' string, had been the first to detect the speed of "Ekky" with that indefinable horse sense that only certain horsemen boast.

Countless were the stakes that fell to Ekky. As a 2-year-old, he won eight of his 16 starts. As a 4-year-old, he won 14 out of 16. The National Stallion Stakes, the Eastern Shore Handicap, the Pimlico Futurity, the Stars and Stripes Handicap, the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes, the Arlington Cup, the Havre de Grace Cup and the Hawthorne Gold Cup fell to his prowess. His earnings for the Whitney stable totaled $338,610.

Broke All Records.

In 51 starts, Ekky finished in the money 43 times. He broke all records for the mile when he ran the distance at Arlington in 1932 in 1:34 2-5 over a "pasteboard" track that imparts a terrific sting to a horse's legs. By many turfmen he was compared to Man o' War. He raced five years longer than "Big Red" and accepted high imposts without apparent harm to his speed.

But the Equipoise victory that horsemen like to remember best was the Pimlico Futurity on November 5, 1930. That day he was pitted against Twenty Grand, Mate, Aegis and three others.

Seeds' Blow Trips Bucs For Giants

(A Wirephoto action shot of yesterday's Pirate-Giant game appears on Page 16.)

By Drew Middleton.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Aug. 5.—That best remedy for the ills of a ball club, the home run, came to the Giants' aid today when Bob Seeds plastered one high into the leftfield stands to beat the Pirates, 5 to 3 for the New Yorkers and reduce the Pittsburgh National League lead to four and one-half games.

SEEDS.

Seeds' clout came with Mel Ott on base in the seventh and broke a 3-3 tie the Pirates achieved when Lloyd Waner singled home Pep Young in their half of the frame. Waner's single ended Cliff Melton's return on the mound, for, after he had walked Paul Waner intentionally, Walter Brown came in to blank the Pirates and receive credit as the winning pitcher.

If Seeds' home run won the game, Mel Ott's twenty-fifth of the season off Bob Klinger, making his first start since July 24, kept them in the fight. Ott hit his in the fifth and made it 15 straight games in which he has hit safely.

A crowd of 18,535 turned out to see the Giants whip Klinger for the first time in four starts against the rookie this season.

Melton, recently reinstated by Bill Terry after a suspension, had plenty on the ball. The Bucs hit him for a run on singles by Lee Handley and Paul Waner in the third, but the Giants got their second run when Johnny McCarthy's hit drove home Bill Cissell, who had opened the third with a single.

The Pirates' second run was the result of Johnny Rizzo's fourteenth homer of the season in the sixth. Then in the seventh the Pirates came up and got Melton out of there with a walk and two hits.

Klinger got two out in the seventh and walked Ott. Then he gave Seeds a high, fast one and the Pirates were licked.

Allison, Parker Gain Net Finals

Toronto, Aug. 5 (AP).—Wilmer Allison, 34-year-old veteran of the courts, and 22-year-old Frankie Parker eliminated their last Canadian rivals today to reach the final round of the Canadian tennis championship.

Allison, who won the title ten years ago and now is in a comeback campaign, routed Bobby Murray, Canada's No. 1 player, with rushing net tactics to win 6—0, 6—1, 0—6, 6—1.

Parker, Canadian champion six years ago, when he was 16, outplayed Ross Wilson, of Toronto, 6—1, 6—2, 6—1.

Together Allison and Parker advanced into the doubles final with a 6—2, 6—3, 8—6 victory over Carl Fischer and Bob Madden, of Detroit. They will oppose Murray and Watt, who defeated Phil Pearson and Bill Pedlar, of Vancouver, 7—5, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3.

Jockey Nichols Hurt When Horse Falls at Bel Air

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fair Grounds, Bel Air, Md., Aug. 5.—Johnny Nichols, of Leesburg, Va., who fell several days ago with Itsamaid, then remounted to win the steeplechase race, suffered a compound fracture of the collar bone today when Carl's Choice, owned by Louis Leith, of Virginia, fell in the Fallston Steeplechase. Nichols is resting in the Harford Memorial Hospital in Havre de Grace.

Today's steeplechase saw Mrs. G. C. Everhardt's Gold Sweeper win only to be disqualified for bothering W. G. Merion's Justa Bud who received the purse.

It was learned from a reliable source today that Jockeys Sammy Palumbo, Buddy Root, Bill Smith and Ed Scott, who were suspended for infraction of the rules, will be restored to good standing in time to ride during Cumberland's tenday meeting, which opens at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

The stewards suspended Roy Fisher, who rode Gold Sweeper for the remainder of the meeting and referred his case to the Maryland Racing Commission.

Bosox Rally to Defeat Detroit in 10th, 9 to 8

Successive Doubles by Cramer, Vosmik Clinch Decision After 'Grand Slam' Homer by Cronin Deadlocks Score.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 5.—Tallying five runs in the ninth to knot the score mainly because of Joe Cronin's homer with the bases full, the Boston Red Sox picked up another run in the tenth to down the Detroit Tigers, 9 to 8, today. It was the third straight defeat for Detroit.

Successive doubles by Roger Cramer and Joe Vosmik brought home the winning run.

JOE CRONIN.

Robert Moses Grove, veteran Sox southpaw, made his first start since July 14 when his arm went dead while hurling against Detroit at Boston. He worked the first six innings, allowing five hits and four of the Tiger runs.

St. Louis Browns Defeat Macks

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Aug. 5.—The St. Louis Browns eyed seventh place today after taking the first of a four-game series with Connie Mack's Athletics, 9 to 2.

But to hoist themselves out of the American League cellar Gabby Street's lowly crew will have to sweep the remaining three games.

Griffs Idle, Gain Ground

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Without moving a muscle, the Nats moved another half-game ahead of the fifth-place Detroit Tigers today. The Washington club's scheduled game with the White Sox was rained out, and the Tigers' defeat by the Red Sox at Detroit increased the Nats' hold on fourth place to two full games.

Emil Leonard, knuckle ball ace of the Nats' staff, who was originally scheduled to oppose the White Sox today, will get the assignment tomorrow. He will have as his pitching rival the veteran Ted Lyons, long-time nemesis of the Washington Club.

For one member of the Nats, at least, the excursion into Chicago is far more pleasant already than previous trips here. Zeke Bonura, who was warming the bench when the Nats last invaded Chicago, is now firmly reinstalled in the Washington line-up.

The big first baseman, whose recent hitting sprees have won him the renewed confidence of Manager Bucky Harris, will disport at first base throughout the series here.

A single game is scheduled today with a double bill tentatively listed for Sunday. The White Sox halted the latest of their slumps when they won a double victory over the Athletics on Thursday.

Rosedale Boys' Team Captures Playground Swimming Meet

Winners Score 71 Points; Georgetown Is Second With 55, Takoma Third With 39.

Scoring heavily in each of six weight classes, Rosedale Playground's crack tank brigade won the boys' team championship yesterday in the finals of the public recreation city-wide meet at McKinley Pool. The Rosedale swimmers piled up 71 points. Georgetown placed second with 55 and Takoma third with 39.

McKinley followed with 17 and Anacostia was fifth with 5. East Potomac and the E street Y. M. C. A. team trailed in last with 1 each.

Despite threatening weather, a large crowd turned out to witness the hotly contested races. For a time, the Georgetown swimmers held their own with the Rosedale team, but in the heavier classes Rosedale pulled away.

Leaders in the Rosedale drive for top laurels were Matthew Flanagan, winner of the side stroke and relay anchor man in the 70-pound class; Don Bradley, who scored in the free style and relay races in the 85-pound division; John Thomas in the 115-pound class, and John Quick in the 135-pound class.

One of the afternoon's big surprises was supplied by Al Hamm, of Georgetown, in the 135-pound breast stroke competition. Hamm swam under water the entire length of the pool and was completely overlooked by the judges as the field neared the finish. Suddenly, as another was about to be named second, Hamm stuck his hand up out of the water and touched the end of the pool, a close second to Mike Shaffer, of Takoma, the winner.

With a fine corps of officials from the Department of Playgrounds, Welfare and Recreation Association, Red Cross, Community Center and National Parks Service co-operating under Max Farrington's supervision to run off the events, the big meet was staged in 1 hour and 55 minutes, easily a record for this size meet in Washington.

Francis took first prize in the colored playgrounds meet at Banneker Pool with 84 points. Banneker placed second with 57, and Dunbar was third with 29.

6 More Redskins Arrive in Town To Await Drills

Six more Redskins arrived in Washington yesterday, bringing the total number of ball players here ready to begin practice next Wednesday to 12. Four arrived Thursday to join Riley Smith and Charlie Malone, who have been here all summer.

The new arrivals, all rookies, were:

Jim (Jackrabbit) Abbit, of Elon; Hal Bradley, also of Elon; Leroy Campbell, of Western Maryland; Dick Tuckey, of Manhattan; Charlie Payne, of Detroit, and Russell Martin, of New Hampshire.

Ray Sears Named Butler Track Coach

Indianapolis, Aug. 5 (AP).—Ray Sears, nationally known distance runner, was appointed today as track coach at Butler University. Sears, a Butler graduate, succeeds Lawrence Holmes, who resigned.

Sears set a new national indoor mark of 9:07.4 for the 2-mile run in 1934. This time was beaten later by Don Lash, of Indiana University.

Bump Hadley Allows Only Five Safeties

Feller's Wildness and Gordon's Homer Are Turning Points.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—The Yankees collected only four hits today, but Joe Gordon whacked a homer and young Bobby Feller kindly walked 11 batters to give the New Yorkers a 6-to-1 decision over the Indians in the opening game of their important three-game series. A crowd of 62,773 turned out for the battle.

The victory, achieved behind fine 5-hit pitching by Bump Hadley, sent the Yanks 3½ games in front of the Tribe in the American League race, the biggest edge Gehrig & Co. has enjoyed this season.

GORDON.

Feller just couldn't find the plate. In fact, he was the best man the Yanks had on the field. He had runners on base in every one of the seven innings he worked, twice walked three batters in a row, and once walked in a run, as he lost his sixth game of the season. For Hadley, it was the fifth victory of the year, compared with three setbacks.

Bill Dickey Out.

The Yanks played without the services of Bill Dickey, their ace catcher, who was sidelined with an ailing leg, but Joe Glenn, who handled the receiving chores, filled in capably. His two-bagger in the second, scoring Twinkletoes George Selkirk, who had walked, gave the Yanks their first run. In the third, a hit batsman, a walk, a double steal and a fly gave the Yanks their second—and winning—run.

Tribe Caves In.

Cleveland's lone tally came in the fourth on Jeff Heath's triple and Ken Keltner's infield grounder, but that was the only time the Tribe proved dangerous. In the seventh, with two out, Lyn Lary and Bruce Campbell singled in succession for the only other frame in which a Tribe runner got as far as third base.

The Yanks made their second hit of the game in the fifth, Joe DiMaggio starting off a two-run rally with a single, Lou Gehrig, Selkirk and Gordon walked in order, forcing in one run, and Glenn Drove in another with a long fly.

Gordon's fifteenth homer of the year, coming after Selkirk got his third pass of the afternoon, wound up the scoring in the seventh. Frank Corsetti stole three bases during the game.

Calvin Griffith Escapes a Fine

Durham, N. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—Calvin Griffith, manager of the Charlotte Club of the Piedmont League, didn't have to pay a fine in recorder's court here today, but he must buy Durham's public safety director, William J. Croom, a new pair of shoes.

Manager Griffith admitted charges of assault and battery and resisting an officer, and recorder William Murdock suspended judgment in both cases, decreeing, however, that Griffith must buy the shoes and pay the director's medical bill.

The costs amounted to $15.70 and the shoes and doctor's bills to about $17, which means that Griffith's part in the June 29 baseball melee here will cost him in the neighborhood of $33.

The Charlotte manager, according to the charges, planted a set of heel spikes on the shoe of the safety director, in civilian clothes, and the spikes cut through and gashed Croom's foot.

By Richards Vidmer.

Monologue by Mushky.

Mike Jacobs got out of the car at Forty-eighth street, leaving me alone with Mushky Jackson and the chauffeur.

"Well, so long," said Mike, grinning. "I have to leave you here. Musky will tell you anything you want to know about Henry Armstrong, or the fight, or anything."

VIDMER.

"Sure," said Mushky, leaning back like a millionaire. "I'll tell 'im."

We threaded our way through the city traffic, crossed the George Washington Bridge and settled down to the long, pleasant ride to Pompton Lakes, where Henry Armstrong is training for his fight with Lou Ambers. It will be a very important fight, for if Henry wins, he will be the first man ever to hold three world's championships at one and the same time. Of course, Bob Fitzsimmons won three titles, but he never held them all at the same time. So here was the prospect of history in the making.

But Mushky was thinking about history already made.

"Did you ever hear about my first trip in an aeroplane?" he asked suddenly. "No?" Say, listen, this is good. I'm standing around the Hippodrome one day, mindin' my own business, and not botherin' nobody, and pretty soon the phone rings, see? And somebody says I'm wanted. California is callin' me. What th' hell, I says. Who do I know in California? But I gets on the wire and it's Tommy Laird.

"'You're fightin' out here on a benefit Friday night,' he says. 'It's a benefit for Frankie Campbell's widow! (You know, the guy Max Baer killed in the ring.) Bring that guy Poreda out here to fight a four-round exhibition with Max,' he says.

"'Sure,' I say. After all a couple of bucks is a couple of bucks. Then I asks him what's in it.

"'Eight hundred dollars and two transportations,' he says. Then he goes right on talking and says it's aeroplane transportation and the tickets will be at the airport next night. And before I can catch my breath he hangs up.

* * * *

No Rest for the Wary.

"Well, there I am. I never been in no plane in my life. But what can I do? So I go over to Jersey and I get Poreda and I tell him he's fightin' on the Coast for eight hundred bucks. 'That's fine,' he says. 'When do we go?' I tell him we're goin' the next night—in an aeroplane.

"'Not me!' he says. 'I ain't goin' nowhere in no aeroplane.'

"Well, I have to argue with him. 'Look at me,' I says. 'I ain't never been in a plane in my life. I gotta go, ain't I? You don't hear me squawkin' do ya?' I tell him eight hundred bucks ain't tin and after awhile he says he'll think it over. 'Never mind that thinkin' it over stuff,' I say. 'You be at that airport tomorrow night.'

"I'm talking big, see? but I'm scared to death. I can't sleep all night. I'm sick, see? but what can I do? Me a married man, too. So I go through with it, and when I get to the airport there's Poreda and all his brothers and sisters and his girl all tellin' him goodby and there I am all alone. Nobody to tell me goodby even. So I grabs the phone and calls up Joe Jacobs and I says, 'goodby' Joe. This is Mushky and I'm goin' to California in an aeroplane. Goodby, Joe. Tell all the boys I said goodby; and then I have to go because the plane's ready.

"But before I get in I says to the pilot, 'look here! I says. 'Do you konw who this is? This is Stanley Poreda and he's goin' to fight the heavyweight champion of the world. He's goin' to fight Max Baer,' I says. 'And if anything happens to this plane between here and California, you're goin' to get fired,' I says. 'He's fightin' the heavyweight champion of the world.'

"I keep givin' him that heavyweight champion stuff so he'll be impressed. I don't say nothin' about it bein' a four round exhibition on a benefit card.

"Well, I get out of the plane first and I'm walkin' like this, see? And Tommy Laird is there and he comes running up to me and grabs me and says, 'what d'ya mean gettin' off the plane drunk?'

"'Drunk?' I says. 'I ain't drunk,' and just then Poreda comes out and he's walkin' like this. And Tommy bawls the hell out of me. 'You're both drunk,' he says. 'Now look, you gotta get that bum down to the gym this afternoon to workout. They got to take pictures.'

* * * *

One Clown Too Many.

"Well, before the fight I tell Poreda, I say, 'Now listen, this guy is goin' to let you stay, see? He ain't goin' to knock you out. But don't get fancy. Let Baer do all the clownin' he wants. That's his way, but don't you get fancy. Just go in there and do the best you can and he won't knock you out.'

"So Stanley says Ok, and he gets through three rounds all right. Baer is just clownin' around and havin' fun with the crowd. But in the fourth, Poreda feels he's pretty good. He's lasted three rounds with the champ, so he lets one go. Well, Baer blocked it and the next thing you know Poreda is flat on his back.

"I run around the ring and yell at Baer, 'Pick him up. Pick him up!' Max gets it and picks Poreda up and starts waltzing with him. Then I grab the timekeeper and yell, 'Ring that bell!' And he rings the bell, although the round is only a minute gone. So there's my guy without being knocked out, the bell saving him. And we get a fight with Charley Retzlaff the next week."

Mushky sat back and chuckled at his own business acumen.

"How did Poreda make out with Retzlaff?" I asked.

"Oh, Poreda gets knocked out in one. But what th' hell, we make a few bucks."

Wins $2,500 And Estate By His Feat

Despite Rain, Blisters He Covers 35 Miles to Settle Dispute.

By the United Press.

Olympia Fields, Ill., Aug. 5. J. Smith Ferebee, hustling young La Salle street broker, raced around 144 holes of Olympia Fields' sprawling tournament courses in 15 hours 5 minutes today to collect one of the strangest golf bets ever made.

Plunging through two separate thunderstorms in his dawn-to-dusk marathon, the 31-year-old golfer negotiated eight consecutive rounds in under 95 strokes each and won personal wagers amounting to $2,500 and, more important to him, full rights to an old Virginia plantation.

Down in Princess Anne County, Va., Ferebee and Fred Tuerk, another young broker, own a plantation valued at $30,000. Disagreement over management of the property and Ferebee's boasts of his golf prowess led Tuerk to bet his share of the plantation that Ferebee could not tour 144 holes in a single day—and how he did it!

Twice he was drenched to the skin. Less than half the time the four soggy courses he played were even in fair condition. He wound up with blisters on both heels. His clothes chafed him. Lumbago settled in his back and he could barely move across the eighteenth green.

"Everything Hurts!"

"Everything hurts," he moaned as he holed his 687th stroke on the 144th green he putted. "But, boy, I won! We Ferebees had that plantation in the family a long time and it's here to stay."

The bet stipulated that each round must be 95 or under. Only once, on the first round he started in virtual darkness at 4:03 a. m., was he even in danger. He shot 90 on that one.

Round one, course 4, 46, 44—90.
Round two, course 4, 40, 42—82.
Round three, course 1, 45, 37—82.
Round four, course 1, 40, 42—82.
Round five, course 3, 42, 45—87.
Round six, course 3, 42, 45—87.
Round seven, course 2, 42, 46—88.
Round seven, course 2, 42, 46—88.
Round eight, course 2, 47, 42—89.

He Slows Down.

Ferebee ran out his first seven rounds at high speed. His fastest, the second, lasted only 1 hour and 19 minutes. But on the eighth, his drenchings and the long walk caugh up with him and he began to ache in every bone.

His last round, finished in semi-darkness, took 2 hours and 5 minutes. Of his total elapsed time, 97 minutes were spent under a shelter and in the club house dodging the two terrific storms.

His rounds produced no amazing scores—as golf scores go. For the circuit he was 119 over par. But pars didn't bother Ferebee. He shot for even fives and played eight rounds in a single day as any other 10 handicap player would shoot them in a week's time.

The young broker had little to eat all day—two sandwiches, a candy bar, orange juice occasionally and several bottles of beer. He changed shoes five times, once during the storm slipping spiked rubbers over his sodden golf shoes.

Long Rest Urged.

As Ferebee emerged from his shower, Dr. William E. Conde, Chicago physician who set a local record by marathoning 153 holes in 1923, examined him briefly and recomended a long rest.

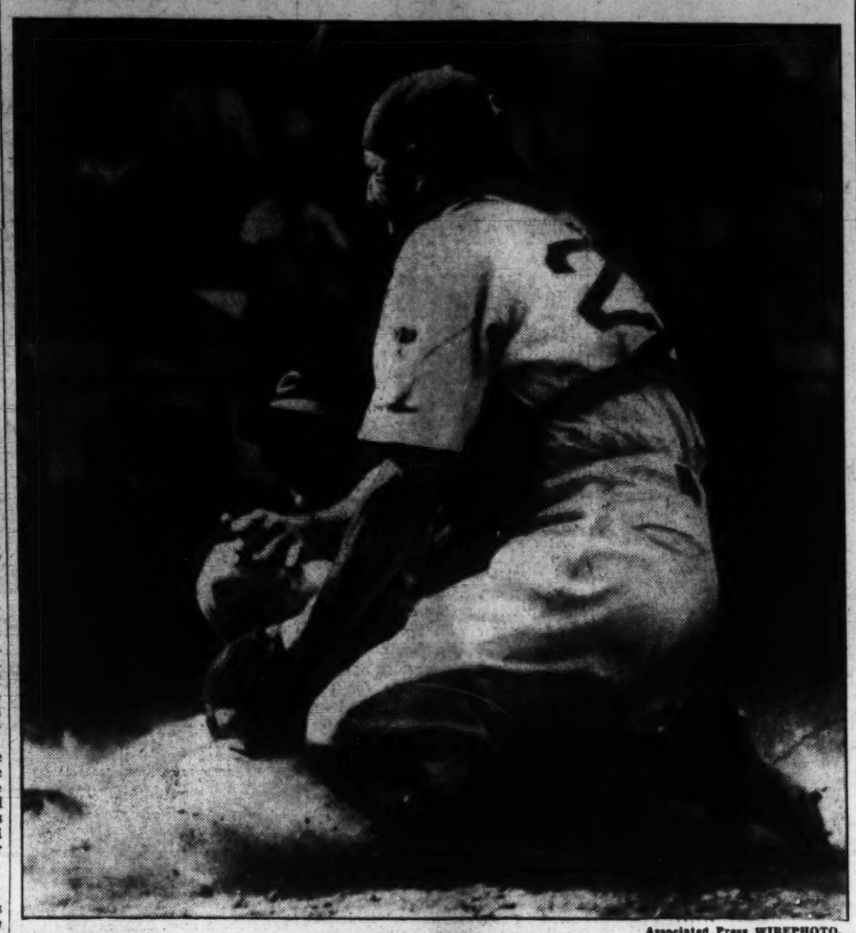

"I want to go to work tomorrow," Ferebee insisted. "I had to take the day off to play golf. I've got a business to attend to."

He appeared near exhaustion, however, but still moved around the locker room with the quick movements he showed on the course, in the cafeteria and every place he's been today.

Ferebee's game held up remarkably under pressure. He never had played before a gallery—which eventually reached 600 when he

Goodman's Bid for a Home Run Fails

Davis Cup Rivals Meet for Net Title Today; Wood, Hunt Upset in Doubles.

By the United Press.

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Robert L. Riggs, of Chicago, and Sidney B. Wood, of New York, bitter rivals for the No. 2 berth on the American Davis Cup team, gained the singles final in the Meadow Club's forty-eighth annual invitation tournament today.

Riggs, top-seeded defender of the challenge bowl, hammered Lanky Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., 6—1, 6—4, 6—3. Wood, who was playing Davis Cup tennis when Riggs was wearing knee pants in his native Los Angeles, triumphed over Don McNeill, Oklahoma City, in a grueling three-hour test, 6—4, 6—3, 5—7, 3—6, 7—5.

Kovacs and a fellow-Oaklander, Bobby Harman, upset Wood and Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—3, 3—6, 6—4, to gain the doubles final. They were joined in the titular round by the young Southern combination, Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, and Frank Guernsey, jr., of Orlando, Fla. Bobbitt and Guernsey, the latter intercollegiate singles titleholder from Rice Institute, accounted for Ernie Sutter, of New Orleans, and Gil Hunt, of Washington, D. C., 3—6, 7—5, 6—0, 6—1.

Wood and Riggs meeting in the titular final tomorrow will mark the second clash between them this season. Riggs put out the blond internationalist in straight sets on the indoor courts at Longwood three weeks ago. At Southampton last year Wood defaulted to the dark-haired former Californian in the quarter-final, collapsing from a combination of sunstroke and fatigue while trailing in the second set.

Riggs Impressive.

Riggs' straight-sets triumph over Kovacs today was completely in keeping with his playing philosophy of raising his game a notch as the daily competition grows keener. Riggs looked every inch a champion today and Kovacs found himself helpless before a steady stream of placement pouring over the net.

Every time Kovacs attempted a sally to the net, Riggs scored with a superb attacking lob or a sizzling sideline placement. And when Kovacs attempted to match baseline drives with Riggs he found his game methodically cut to shreds.

But neither he nor the gallery figured upon the amount of stubborn fight remaining in the sandy-haired Oklahoma youth who holds the No. 9 national ranking.

McNeill Takes Set.

Wood let up the least bit in the third set, and McNeill, trailing 4—2, fought an uphill battle to take the set. The Oklahoman, playing at the height of his game and covering court like a whirlwind, won the next set and made a terrific bid which just fell short in the fifth set. Down 4—2 in the fifth set, McNeill rallied courageously to tie the count at 5-all, but Wood went on to break service in the next game and proceeded to hold his own in the twelfth game for victory.

McNeill raised a series of huge blisters on both feet in the closing stages of the match and finished playing in his stockinged feet.

Two California girls, Miss Barbara Winslow, of Hollywood, and Miss Dorothy Workman, of Los Angeles, swept into the singles finals of the Maidstone Club's Invitation Women's tournament at Easthampton. Neither of the coast contenders enjoyed a seeding in the draw.

Beats Helen Pedersen.

Miss Workman accounted for the last remaining ranked star, Miss Helen Pedersen, of Stamford, Conn., fourth-seeded player, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4. Miss Pedersen played with a thick bandage on her left knee, the result of having pulled a tendon during her quarter-final match with Miss Katharine Winthrop, of Manchester, Mass., the day previous. Miss Winslow put out a fellow-Californian, Miss Virginia Wolfenden, of San Francisco, 6—1, 7—5.

Miss Workman and Miss Dorothy Dunds, of Santa Monica, reached the doubles final, turning back Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Wolfenden, in a thrilling two-hour test, 8—6, 3—6, 8—6, 3—6, 8—6. The other doubles final round position was filled by the top-seeded pair, Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France. The Franco-American combination won over Miss Virginia Rice Johnson, of Boston, and Miss Winthrop, 8—6, 3—6, 6—1.

Island Bird Miles River Event Victor

Special Dispatch to The Post.

St. Michaels, Md., Aug. 5.—In the seventeenth edition of the annual nautical mardi gras here, Washington wind sailors blanketed two of the first-day events and placed well in all others entered.

A Washington poser boat driver drummed Frank Muzzey's Nittany Lion across the finish line first in two heats, and James L. Barnhard's South Wind won Washington further honors by winning the United States Power Squadron event.

Two freak accidents climaxed a day which had few dull moments, most serious of which was Walter Buskes' mishap. The Dover, N. J., record holder was burned slightly about the face and arms when he tested his engine before taking his boat, Bus-Kee, from the trailer. He extinguished the oil fire, which resulted before St. Michaels fire-fighting apparatus arrived.

In the Miles River Trophy unlimited event, Operatic Star John Charles Thomas' Smyne broke a rudder and ran wild between two spectator cruisers, narrowly missing both.

Nittany Lion Wins.

Sail events on both inside and outside courses staged drifting contests before the wind freshened to a maximum of 12 miles an hour in the late afternoon.

Frank Muzzey's Nittany Lion II won the day's honor in power events, with two firsts and a second place. Mrs. Betty Smith, of Washington, piloted the Lion to first place in both heats of the ladies' inboard runabout free for all, sharing driving laurels of the day with Philadelphia sportsman Muzzey himself. Muzzey, who has been spread eagling the field in bay power racing, took the first heat of Class F and G runabouts and first heat of the Class E runabouts.

Despite third place in the ladies' runabout free for all, Miss St. Paul won thunderous acclaim from the spectator fleet when her owner's daughter, 13-year-old Dorothy Twilley, of Baltimore, took the helm.

Pep IV Fastest.

Fastest time of the day was made by E. T. Chase's Pep IV, as the Baltimore speed artist struck an average pace of 49.382 M.P.H. in the unlimited displacement runabout class to win first heat for the Miles River Trophy.

West River sailors tested out their 20 footers last night in a risky 24 miles sprint from Galesville to St. Michaels with a bottle of something or other going to winner Ralph Youngs and his Myra. H. Clendon Bush's Cricket II, placed second; Dr. Albert E. Pagan's Kan-Do was third; Herbert Neiley's Spray was fourth, and E. Edrington's Lady Avon was fifth. The winning time was 3:45.

West River racers blanketed the field in the Albatross event as W. E. Wells and his Cardinal took first; Arthur E. Fifer's Raven, second, and Emil Hartge's Hawk third.

Harding Is Victor.

In the 20-foot restricted event West River yachtsmen placed one-two as John Harding, jr., won first place with his Ranger and Osborne Owens' Vanity came in second. In the flat bottom 20-footers, Double Trouble, owned by C. J. Owens, of the Maryland Yacht Club, placed first, but again the Galesville skippers closed up fast to place Bush's Crickett II second and Edrington's Lady Avon third. After a flat start, a northeast breeze turned the Comet heat into a broad reach and Washington skippers showed their sailorman-ship by winning first, tying for second, blanketing third and winning fourth high point totals for the day.

Verner Smythe's Sassy Too won with 45 points, Ernie Covert's Escapade earned 41 points to tie with Swope's Alpha for second; Hulburt's Aries took 35 points to tie with Col. Jacobs' Titl for third place and Clyde Cruit's So Big won fourth place with 34 points.

In the event for Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoes built before 1917, only two entered competition for the Sidney Covington Trophy. Famous Island Bird, owned by J. H Caulk Kemp, and skippered by Hastings Wrightson, of St. Michaels, won the race over an 8-mile course in 2 hours 17 minutes and 13 seconds.

Other races for these craft tomorrow promise more competition.

Babe Ruth Gives Blood to Daughter

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

King of Swat Leaves Game for Transfusion

By the United Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Babe Ruth bared his mighty left arm in a hospital room today and allowed physicians to drain a pint of blood from it to give strength to his 22-year-old adopted daughter, Julia.

"Whew, I'm glad that's over," said the former home run king as he climbed down from an operating table, sweat pouring down his nose. "Didn't hurt a bit; I didn't feel nothin'."

He grinned at the pretty, auburn-haired girl—daughter of Mrs. Ruth by a previous marriage—and she grinned back.

"I feel better already," Julia said.

A few days ago Julia was operated on for cellulitis of the neck. Her condition was not considered serious, but today when her white blood corpuscle count began to drop, a telephone call was put through to Ebbets Field. Ruth was out on the baselines there, coaching the Brooklyn Dodgers in their game with Cincinnati.

Hurries From Game.

Hospital attendants told the Babe there was no hurry, but he insisted on leaving Ebbets Field before the game was over. He arrived at Manhattan Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital, wearing gabardine slacks, a white polo shirt and brown and white sports shoes.

"I never had one of these transfusions before," Ruth said as he walked into Julia's room and sat down to wait for the doctors. When everything was ready, the Babe stripped off his polo shirt and lay down on an operating table. The transfusion took 15 minutes, and perspiration seemed to worry Ruth much more than the loss of blood. A nurse stood over him, mopping his face with a towel.

His Team Loses.

When the operation was over, Ruth looked at the bandage around his left arm—once one of the great pitching arms of baseball and later part of the equipment of the greatest home-run hitter of them all.

"Well, I'll be out to the ball park tomorrow," Ruth said, touching the bandage lightly. "Say how did today's game come out?"

"The Reds beat the Dodgers, 4 to 1," somebody told him.

"Nuts," said Ruth.

Ruth waved good-by to his daughter, slipped on his shirt and strode out of the hospital. A score of ragged, barefooted kids swarmed around him, yelling, "Hi, Babe!"

"Hi, kids," he said, signing autographs as fast as he could. Then he waved for a cab and was gone.

Touring American Track Team Wins

Malmoe, Sweden, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The touring United States track and field team won five more events today, making a total of ten victories scored over a picked European team in the two-day meet here.

Ben Johnson, of Columbia, won the 200-meter sprint in 21.3 seconds; Fred Walcott, Rice, was ahead in the high hurdles, in [illegible]; Charlie Fenske, Wisconsin, triumphed in the 2,000-meter run, in 5:19.2; George Varoff, Oregon, topped the pole vaulters with a mark of 4.27 meters (14 feet), and the United States 1,000-meter relay team won in 1:54.3.

Fights

times, Mamakos will be seeking revenge when he climbs through the ropes to meet his arch-rival. The pair met last winter and Abrams ripped the Gilded Greek to shreds with his short, choppy shots to the face.

Abrams won by the proverbial mile, but Mamakos apparently has improved enough to give the Jewish boy a closer fight and may atone for that inglorious defeat. The Greek has four straight victories under his belt and looks strong enough to absorb everything Abrams tosses at him, as he did the first time, but also figures to hit Abrams oftener and harder than he did in their initial meeting.

Abrams only recently returned from a month's vacation, and looks well rested, bigger and stronger than ever before. As far as he is concerned Mamakos is still a crude, tough boy who can be punched around at will without incurring any serious damage in return. The match to him looks like another soft touch, an opportunity to pick up some easy money, and he accepted with alacrity.

The fans, those skeptical souls who have to be shown, have a peculiar feeling, however, that the Greek boy may surprise his neighborhood rival this time. They point out that Mamakos has been up against stiff punches as well as better-than-average boxers in his last few fights, and made a distinct hit. They believe he will do the same to Abrams—and whip him this time.

Bulwark Annexes Mohawk Claiming Stakes Over Favored Jesting

Hugh Jackson Entry Draws $2,175 Purse

Bulwark Never Headed, Scores by 1 Length; Pastry Is Third.

By the Associated Press.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Hugh W. Jackson's Bulwark carried his speed the full mile distance of the thirty-sixth Mohawk claiming Stakes here today and drove over the wire a one-length winner in 1:38 1-5. Jesting, the big bay mare which won the Fixture for Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs a year ago, was a 12-to-5 favorite to repeat in the silks of Kenneth T. Dawes, but second was her positiin. Sol Pisacano's Pastry, after suffering bad racing luck, accounted for the show, another length behind.

It was in the Mohawk two years ago that the mighty Seabiscuit, then racing for the Wheatley Stable, made his last start in claiming company. Nobody put in a claim for the son of Hard Tack on that occasion, although he could have been taken for $6,000. Seabiscuit was an easy winner of that renewal.

Purse of $2,175.

Bulwark was coupled with Alexandrine. The Jackson entry opened at 3 to 1, but receded to 5 to 1. Bulwark, ridden by the veteran Lee Hardy, drew down a purse of $2,175.

Breaking on top, Bulwark never was headed. He put Orient Express away before reaching the stretch, then stuck to his task in game fashion when Jesting staged her rally. The latter dashed up from fifth place at the top of the stretch and managed to hold Pastry safe. Pastry, last away, was blocked twice before Wagner took her around horses on the bend. The gelding then was steered to the inside in the stretch and closed steadily, but too late.

Reclaimed for $4,000.

Mrs. Jacobs reclaimed Jesting from Dawes for $4,000. Dawes had acquired the mare from the Jacobs barn for a $7,500 claim about a year ago.

Eddie Arcaro, scoring another double, had the 3-to-1 choice, Moujik, out in front from flagfall to finish of the sixth race, a mile tussle for platers. The combination got back with five lengths advantage over Free Child, while Sun Kincsen was beaten three-quarters of a length for second money. Moujik handled his 123 pounds like a feather, drawing away with ease after a preliminary skirmish with Sun Kincsen and Free Child.

No Fraternal Games.

Because of the Jewish holiday, there will be no games tomorrow in the Fraternal Softball League.

Workman had the mount. The track was a quagmire, no less. Ekky was installed as the 95-cents-to-a-dollar favorite.

Ekky Moves Up.

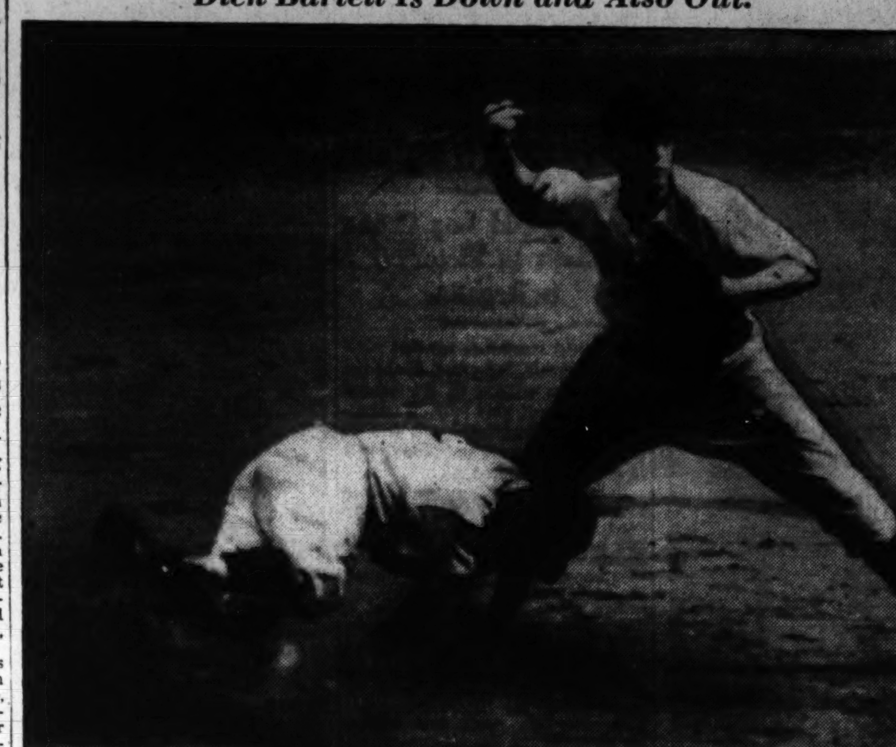

Last to get away, Ekky was still last at the half-mile post, with Mate setting a sizzling pace. Workman could hardly see to pilot his mount through the great clods of mud kicked up by the pacemakers, but at the far turn he called for Ekky to give. Eighth, seventh, sixth, fifth, fourth—Ekky moved up to second in the home stretch. Mate quit, but Twenty Grand was making a battle of it. Saddle cloth to saddle cloth the pair fought it out to the wire. It was Ekky's nose that showed first, and he had earned $50,360 more for the Whitney stable.

The chart said: "Equipoise, left at the post, settled into full stride after the first half-mile, went to the outside, withstood severe punishment, wore his opposition down and won in a rare finish."

That word "rare" virtually tells the story of that finish by Equipoise. Chart writers, as unsentimental as a castiron gargoyle, rarely use that word. They say "strong finish" and "game finish," but rarely "rare finish." That was truly a tribute to Ekky's race that day.

He was quite a horse.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—America's most sporting racing event will be run tomorrow with ten high-ranking two-year-olds competing in the six furlongs of the Saratoga Special.

The conditions provide for the winner to take all, which will be $9,000 if all the overnight entries accept the issue, and a gold cup. Victory is a coveted honor, for the owners must nominate their horses in groups of three each and then select one from each trio to face the barrier.

Heading the field is William Ziegler, jr.'s, unbeaten El Chico. The son of John P. Grier, an outstanding contender for the two-year-old championship, has not bowed in four starts and includes the United States Hotel Stakes among his conquests.

Other top notchers are George D. Widener's Eight Thirty, winner of the Flash Stakes; William Woodward's Johnstown, DeWitt Page's Maeline, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' On Location and Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Impound.

Ziegler also holds a strong hand in the $7,500 Merchants and Citizens Handicap, having named his five-year-old mare, Esposa, for the mile and three-sixteenths event. Esposa, which ran War Admiral to a nose decision last Saturday, is a strong choice to whip her six rivals, including Mrs. Louise Viau's Rex Flag, the Shandon Farms' Burning Star, Woodward's Isolator and Walter M. Jeffords' Regal Lily.

Roger Williams 'Cap At Narragansett

Narragansett Park renews the mile of the $5,000 Roger Williams Handicap with 18 entries. Hal Price Headley's consistent Preeminent is top weight with an assignment of 123 pounds, 4 more than Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance.

Both high weights figure to be in the running, along with Walter Carter's lightly weighted Clodion, Donald Christmas' New England favorite, Accolade; Infantry, from the Millsdale Stable; Felix Spatola's Wise Prince, and A. C. Compton's 3-year-old Sun Egret.

2 $2,500 Handicaps Head Program

Two $2,500 handicaps head Washington Park's card, one a 6-furlong dash with 14 entries, and the other a test of a mile and 70 yards, with 15 nominees.

The sprint, known as the Chicago Handicap, has attracted Frank Seremba's Canadian-owned pair of Fairflax and Pin Money; Mrs. A. M. Creech's combination of Misss Dolphin and Grey Streak; J. B. Respess' Speedy Main Man, and Kirby Ramsey's Mucho Gusto. The latter two are top weight with 123 and 121 pounds, respectively.

The Sheridan Handicap is limited to 3-year-olds. In the field are the entry of M. Vehon's Invincible and Mrs. L. Lowenstein's Novelette, the Blue Ridge Farm's Wise Barrister, A. G. Tarn's Wise Fox and J. W. Parrish's Knee Deep.

Early Autumn Wins Woonsocket Purse

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 5 (AP).—T. P. Morgan's Early Autumn today accounted for the Woonsocket Purse, 6-furlong feature at Narragansett Park, as the favorites continued to find it difficult to find their way into the winners' circle. The 4-year-old daughter of Jamestown finished a length in front of D. B. Midkiff's Dixieland and paid $10.70 to win.

Dixieland paid $13.90 to place and finished a length in front of Hal Prices Headley's Drift Along. The latter was two lengths in front of A. Untermeyer's Torchlight at the finish of the sprint test and paid $4.90 to show.

Reds Whip Dodgers, 4-1, Gain a Tie

Cincinnati Ties for Third Place; Dodgers Drop to Sixth Place.

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 5.—The Cincinnati Reds climbed back to a third-place tie in the National League race today by whipping the Dodgers, 4 to 1. The defeat dropped the Brooklyns into sixth place, behind the idle Boston Bees.

Paul Derringer, although tagged for 11 hits, was effective with men on bases and went the route for his fourteenth victory of the season. The Dodgers' only run came in the fourth, when Dolph Camilli clouted his sixteenth homer of the year.

Cardinals Beat Phillies by 3-0

Philadelphia, Aug. 5 (AP).—St. Louis took advantage of errors by Shortstop Scharein in the first two innings to score two runs and whip the Phillies 3-0 in the opening game of the series today.

Lon Warneke pitched for the Cardinals and held the Phillies to six hits. Mulccahy and Sivess allowed six safeties.

In the first inning Scharein made a two-base wild throw of Medwick's grounder with Brown on base. In the second inning with two out and two on base he booted Brown's roller and a walk to Slaughter forced another run over.

slowed down enough to permit a following—but its antics didn't faze him. Photographers popped out at him on almost every hole and twice he was halted for radio interviews.

Laughs at Rain.

He laughed at the effects of the t[illegible] rainstorms. One caught him at n[illegible] and stopped him an hour, another struck at 1 p. m., and forced him to drive by automobile to the club house for another change of clothes.

All during this, his game was held up. His drives, never long at best, kept down the middle and his lazy, rolling approaches bounced up to the greens consistently.

On the seventh round, his short game collapsed as he tried to move too fast. Time after time, Ferebee flubbed approach shots in and around the green. The greens were so wet he had to use a five iron on long putts and in the sand traps, beaten solid by rain, he resorted to a putter.

Time marches back! And just 10 years ago today . . . Babe Ruth hit his forty-third home run of the season as the American League-leading Yankees beat the Chisox, 8-6, in 10 innings . . . By his round-tripper Ruth moved 22 days, 27 games and 9 homers ahead of his 1927 record . . . Joey Sewell, midget Cleveland third baseman, scored one run and drove in another to enable the Indians to defeat Garland Braxton and the Nats, 2-1, on only four hits . . . Meanwhile fans were speculating on the future of Bucky Harris, youthul Nat manager whose contract expired at the end of the season . . . With the Nats dangerously close to the cellar, President Clark Griffith refused to say that Harris' contract would be renewed . . . With three youngsters—Jimmy Foxx, George Haas and Ossie Orwool—supplying a new spark the Athletics continued to threaten the Yankees' lead . . .

Martha Norelius, youthful New York girl, broke her own world freestyle record for 400 meters in a trial heat of the Olympic swimming championships at Amsterdam . . . Miss Norelius' time was 5 minutes, 4 4-5 seconds . . . Capt. R. E. Van Vliet, jr., won the singles tennis championship of the United States Army, defeating Lieut. D. E. Hedekin in straight sets at Columbia Country Club . . . Hughey Critz and Horace Ford, second baseman and shortstop, respectively, for the Cincinnati Reds, completed their 136th double play and experts conceded them a fine chance to top the record of 182 held by Washington's trio, Peckinpaugh, Harris and Judge . . . Bob Considine, D. C. singles champion, together with Dooley Mitchell and William Buchanan, public parks doubles titleholders, left by motor for Cleveland to represent Washington in the National Public Parks tennis championships . . .

Fresco Thompson, Philly second baseman, ended his record of errorless play in the first game of a doubleheader with Pittsburgh . . . He erred on what would have been his 150th consecutive chance . . . He made another error later in the same game but his feat of handling flawlessly 149 chances easily bettered the old major league record of 135, held by Horace Ford of the Reds . . .

Sandlot Pick-ups

One of the best team records compiled on the sandlots this season was brought to our attention yesterday . . . The Victoria Laundry Insects, formerly the Junior Senators, registered its twenty-first consecutive victory as the Michigan Park Orioles were shut out, 3 to 0 . . . and the lads who were responsible for this praiseworthy achievement and the positions are as follows: Mosser, second baseman; Smith, shortstop; Mulvihill, third baseman; Wallis, catcher; Fisher, first baseman; Paxton, centerfielder; Gregory, leftfielder; Naiman, rightfielder, and Price, pitcher.

• • • •

Hurling highlights . . . Archie Schrivner, who has spent several seasons with the Nats in spring training, and who also hung around the Senators' dugout until his arm went bad, turned in a masterful mound exhibition last Wednesday . . . Hurling for Heurich Brewers, he pitched one-hit ball, struck out four, never walked a man and only five of the opposition were able to get on base . . . Four of this number got to first base and the other was the single enemy batsman to reach second. . . . His club trounced the Russell Motors' nine, 9 to 0 . . . George Russell, Russell's first sacker, was the player who connected safely with the offerings of Schrivner.

Softbal smatter . . . Take a peep at this record . . . The United States Housing Authority ten captured the first-half title in the 16-team Interior League, a week-day group divided into two sections . . . They also are leading the second-half race, with only one game remaining on the schedule . . . In establishing this achievement, the U. S. H. A. squad captured 13 games in 14 starts . . . In the Sunday Morning League, Potomac Section, which comprises eight teams, the Housing lads have won nine and lost two . . . The team has high hopes of participating in the city playoff, which means a trip to Chicago for the winners . . . Incidently, only one local player, Frenchy Cohen, short centerfielder, performs for U. S. H. A. . . . The other regulars of the squad come from all sections of the United States . . . Included in the roster are many former college athletes.

Signs Multiply That Business Tide Is Rising

Speculative Raw Materials Have Advanced 10 Per Cent Since June.

New York, Aug. 5.—In its weekly summary of the general business situation, the Standard Statistic Co. says today:

"The past several weeks have provided increasing evidence that a definite turn in the business situation has taken place. While statistical data to support this statement are still inconclusive, there are numerous surface indications of an upturn in business activity and of the likelihood of still further improvement as the year progresses.

"One of the most encouraging developments has been the trend of speculative raw material prices. Beginning in March, 1937, prices pursued an almost uninterrupted downward course, closely paralleling the decline in industrial production. The first signs of a turn occurred early in June, and, since then the Standard Statistics Co. index of speculative prices has advanced approximately 10 per cent.

"It is significant in this connection that the upturn in raw material prices which has been witnessed in recent weeks has been in the face of continued weakness in farm product prices, particularly the grains. This suggests that the cyclical low point in prices for industrial raw materials has been passed.

Inventories.

"This does not mean that continued marked gains in industrial raw material prices are to be looked for over the near future. Indeed, much of the advance to date has doubtless been due to speculative buying and some replenishment of inventories. The important point is, nevertheless, that prices are no longer showing pronounced weakness, and this in turn should breed confidence, just as declining prices encourage conservatism.

"The sharp rise in security prices has doubtless been the most potent factor in changing business sentiment. Whether or not the advance in the security markets is forecasting a cyclical recovery in business of some years' duration, there is no gainsaying that the upturn has added billions of dollars to potential purchasing power and has caused many business men to revise upward their views of the business outlook for the rest of this year.

"The only important statistical evidence of improving business has been the relatively sharp recovery in steel operations, which has been due, to some extent, at least, to inventory replacement. Checks with a large number of industrial companies, nevertheless, reveal that there has been in recent weeks a definite increase in new orders and inquiries, which have not yet been reflected in industrial production."

Good Weather Lowers Cotton

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Further liquidation appeared in cotton today owing to more favorable weather in the South. December reacted from 8.57 to 8.50 and closed at the low, with final prices 8 to 9 points net lower.

The market opened 4 to 6 points lower in partial response to easier Liverpool and Bombay cables. Moderate hedge selling, foreign and commission house liquidation encountered further trade buying at limits as October again eased under 8½ cents, but partial recoveries were not maintained when the weather map showed only light scattered showers in the belt.

Some selling developed toward the close when a cotton firm reported prospects for a crop of 11,977,000 bales based on a limited number of inquiries.

Large Bond Offerings Expected Next Week

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—New financing in the week ended yesterday was limited to $7,165,497 in municipal loans but bond men looked ahead to one of the most active periods of corporate borrowings in more than a year.

Starting the ball rolling was the offering today of $37,500,000 in bonds and notes of the Indianapolis Power & Light Co., not included in the figures for the past week. Other bond issues scheduled for public offering in the next week include $36,500,000 Toledo Edison; $32,000,000 New York Steam; $25,000,000 Republic of Argentina and $10,000,000 Public Service Electric & Gas.

The past week's total compared with $13,586,496 in the like 1937 week and with $10,848,875 in the preceding week, according to compilations by Poor's Publishing Co.

July Shipments Of Rayon Yarn Set New Peak

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 5.—Daily shipments of rayon yarn by American producers in July nearly doubled the June rate and were the largest for any month in the history of the industry, the Textile Economics Bureau reported today.

"The sudden favorable change which came over the rayon yarn market during the four-week period from mid-June to mid-July can only be called amazing," said the bureau. The index of daily yarn shipments, based on 1923-25 averages as 100, soared to 843 from 473 in June and 697 in July, 1937.

Producers, it was said, were forced to draw on surplus stocks to meet the sudden demand. The boom attributed to improvement in business psychology accompanying the mid-year upswing in security markets, fear that rayon yarn prices might be raised, normal seasonal expansion in demand and favorable prices.

Reaccumulation of inventories is expected to continue for many months, keeping the yarn delivery figure at a relatively high level.

Before the upturn, yarn output had fallen to the lowest since 1934. Production in the three months ended June 30 totaled 53,300,000 pounds compared with 57,500,000 in the first three months of 1938 and a quarterly average of 78,100,000 in 1937.

Reserve Banks Report Decline in Profits

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday a decline in net earnings of the 12 reserve banks for the six months ended June 30. Net earnings for the first half year totaled $4,606,309, compared with $5,791,603 in the corresponding period last year. Dividends paid in the first six months of 1938 totaled $3,999,875 compared with $3,964,404 in the like period of 1937.

Gross earnings dropped to $18,903,206 in the first six months from $19,758,606 in the like period of 1937. Total expenses, including operating costs, rose to $14,296,897 from $13,967,003 in the corresponding period a year ago.

$100,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for Treasury bills to the amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts. They will be 91-day bills, and will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve banks or branches up to 2 p. m. on Monday. Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

Associated Gas Output.

New York, Aug. 5.—For the week ended July 29 Associated Gas & Electric System reports net electric output of 86,516,681 units. This is 3,127,336 units or 3.5 per cent below production of 89,644,017 units a year ago.

The Market

Steel, Copper, Motor and Store Shares Lead Broad Advance; Wheat Slumps.

New York, Aug. 5.—Stocks gained and held quite a bit of altitude after Wall street and the rest of New York had paid its respects to the Irish ocean flier. The big board list put on its broadest advance in some days under leadership of pivotal steel, copper, motor and store shares, with gains at the finish running from large fractions to several points. Volume at 1,169,940 shares was about double the turnover in Thursday's dull session.

Wheat markets went into another tail spin, prices descending as much as 2⅝ cents at Chicago and 3 cents at Winnipeg, to new five-year lows. September wheat, at 64⅝ in the former market was more than 10 cents under the U. S. Government loan level and the Canadian price on nearby grain sank 6 cents under the Ottawa guarantee. Cotton dipped 40 to 45 cents a bushel with the long side hesitant to step in in advance of the government crop report, due Monday.

Bonds were firm in spots, exceptions being some of the Japanese liens which were unsettled because of the Siberian hostilities, and few domestic rails, influenced by corporate problems. Foreign exchange dealings were on the dull side, with sterling showing a small loss after Thursday's betterment. A further $7,812,000 gold was engaged for shipment to the United States.

A variety of optimistic predictions for better business, further gains in steel production in several centers, a better than seasonal rise in carloadings, announcement of several substantial programs of new financing, and estimates that automobile assemblies will start a definite upswing by mid-month, were among encouraging news items of the day which aided traders to ignore the apparent lack of foundation beneath values in grain and some other farm products.

General Motors Leads.

General Motors led the list of active stocks with an advance of 1⅝ on turnover of 50,600 shares. Yellow Truck and Chrysler turned in gains of 1⅛ and 2½ respectively. U. S. Rubber added better than 2 points and Steel common closed at 61½, up 1¾. Betterment of 1 to 2 points was recorded by such issues as American Smelting, Western Electric, Union Pacific, Texas Corporation, Allied Chemical, American Can, Southern Pacific, Sears Roebuck, Loew's, International Nickel, Johns-Manville, Goodyear, General Electric, Du Pont, Chesapeake & Ohio, Bethlehem Steel and Atchison.

The composite of 100 key stocks was up 0.88 point. Of 784 issues traded, 536 advanced and 100 declined, 148 being unchanged. Forty-seven issues recorded new highs for the year or longer.

Bond Market Higher.

Cheerful conditions prevailed in most sections of the listed bond market today, but there were a few soft spots among the rails. Stimulated by the equity advance, most of the speculative carrier issues advanced in the quiet market. Exceptions included the relatively well rated New York Central, the borderline B. & O. and some of the default bonds. Gains were pronounced only in a few instances. Holding company bonds were irregular, but communications improved. Turnover in all issues was $6,200,000.

Best grade money market bonds were firm, with the rapid distribution of $37,500,000 Indianapolis Light & Power securities a stimulant. As the bonds and notes moved to premiums over the issue levels, large buyers turned again to the list market. United States Treasury bonds were fractionally better. Best utility and rails held their ground, while United States Steel debentures were maintained at the record high.

In the foreign section, Japanese bonds showed gains to 9 points and losses to 3 points, which indicates the thinness and uncertainty of the market for such securities. Most Japanese issues improved moderately. Italian bonds were better, while European default issues attracted little interest. Latin-American default bonds were mostly improved. Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian bonds remained firm.

Steel Industry 6 Months' Loss Is $16,000,000

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Fourteen leading steel producers, representing 83.1 per cent of the industry's total ingot capacity, reported aggregate net loss of $13,493,875 for the first six months of 1938, according to a survey today by the magazine Steel. This contrasts with $128,837,088 net profit for the identical companies in the first half of 1937

Second quarter deficits aggregated $9,204,787, compared with $68,089,892 net profit in the second quarter last year, and $4,289,088 net loss for the first three months this year. Of the 14 producers reporting, four earned a profit in both first and second quarters; ten reported a loss for both periods.

The reporting companies represent 58,159,700 of the industry's 69,964,356 gross tons of ingot capacity. Assuming their experience to be typical, indicated net loss for the industry for the first half of 1938 was approximately $16,000,000.

Efficiency.

Steelworks operations for the six months averaged 31.17 per cent of ingot capacity, compared with 84.88 per cent in the first half last year. Reflecting the full force of the depression, the industry's deficit was less than expected and demonstrated the remarkable operating efficiency that has been achieved.

Price reductions made in June, too late to be reflected in first half financial statements, would have amounted to approximately $43,000,000 on the iron and steel produced during the first half. Had present prices been in effect, with all other conditions being equal, it is fair to assume the industry's net loss would have been close to $60,000,000.

Thus under present price schedules, the "break-even" point in operations has been raised considerably above the estimated low of 35 per cent. Future profits will depend on substantial reductions in costs or in a sharp upturn in operations.

Wheat Prices Tumble 2⅝c To 5-Year Lows

Indications of Large Surpluses Is Basis of Heavy Selling.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Wild tumbles of values, 2⅝ cents in Chicago and 3 cents at Winnipeg, plunged wheat pices down today to bottoms unreached before in five years.

Attention of traders here focused chiefly on official notice that despite Government guaranteed prices to be paid to Canadian farmers, Canada's export trade would be on a world competitive basis. With indications pointing to a large surplus of wheat in the United States, Canada and Argentina, this development quickly served to upset speculative confidence.

Successive big waves of selling overwhelmed the futures pit here and the price of September contracts collapsed to 64⅝, more than 10 cents under the United States Government loan rate and about 48 cents a bushel below quotations a year ago. At Winnipeg, October wheat dropped about 6 cents under the price guaranteed to Canadian farmers.

Chicago wheat futures closed tumultously at the day's lowest level, 2¼-2⅝ cents down, compared with yesterday's finish; September, 64⅝-64¾; December, 66⅜-66½; corn showing ½-⅞ decline; September, 54-54⅛; December, 51¾-51⅞; oats, ¼-½ off; rye, 1⅝-2⅛ lower, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents setback.

Mack Trucks Gets $650,000 Order

New York, Aug. 5.—An order for 19 additional Diesel-powered trucks has been placed with Mack Trucks, Inc., by Generoso Pope, president of Colonial Sand & Stone Co., New York, who last week signed a $500,000 order for 50 Diesel-powered Mach trucks, the largest single order for Diesel trucks ever placed in New York, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mack officials.

The 19 additional trucks, which will cost approximately $150,000, will be used to haul concrete. Each truck will have a capacity of 6 cubic yards of concrete, which will be mixed as the truck is en route to its destination.

Foreign Markets.

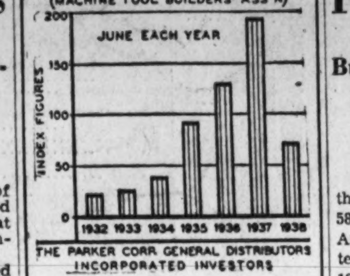

By the Associated Press.

London, Aug. 5.—Stocks were quiet today, most business consisting of closing out the current account. The market closed steady with industrials in better demand. Mines had a firm tone, especially kaffirs. Transatlantics opened at about a parity and added fractions as the session progressed. Gilt-edged issues and foreign bonds held even.

Paris—Bourse issues advanced substantially in a firm market today. Industrials were widest gainers. Demand for internationals tapered in later trading, but most net gains were maintained at the close. Bank of France was up 50 points. Royal Dutch was ahead 15 points and Suez Canal added 10.

Liverpool—Weakness at Winnipeg this morning erased most early gains in wheat futures today. Firm at the outset on good outside buying influenced by Canada's wheat board announcement of 80 cents a bushel payments, the market eased to finish ⅛d higher to ¼ lower. Cotton was quiet pending the American Bureau crop report Monday. Some support absorbed hedge selling, but prices eased as Bombay offerings increased. Final prices were off 1 to 2 points.

Tool Orders Gain Sharply in June

Boston, Aug. 5.—Machine tool orders in June showed a marked increase over May but were less than half those of a year ago. It must be considered, however, that in the second quarter of last year orders for new machine tools were at a record high.

Phelps Dodge Nets 75 Cents

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Phelps Dodge Corporation, producers and fabricators of copper, reported consolidated net income, before depletion, of $3,830,587, equal to 75 cents a share on the capital stock, for the six months ended June 30. This compares with $7,101,458, or $1.40 a share, in the first half of 1937.

Schenley Distillers.

Schenley Distillers Corporation and subsidaries reported for the June 30 quarter net income of $849,532 after providing reserve for extraordinary adjustments occasioned by a July 1 increase in Federal spirits tax, equal after preferred requirements to 48 cents a common share. This compares with $364,712, or 9 cents a share on the common for the preceding quarter and $1,595,400, or $1.07 a share for the June, 1937, quarter. The company has subsidaries which manufacture distilled spirits and allied products, principally at Schenley, Pa.; Lawrenceburg, Ind.; Lexington, Frankfort, Louisville and Covington, Ky.

U. S. Securities To Be Listed in Paris

Paris, Aug. 5 (AP).—Banking circles reported today the French government had given stock exchange authorities permission to list American stocks on the Paris Bourse, for the first time since the World War. French brokers long have attempted to obtain government consent, declaring they were losing large profits.

In the past some conservative financial quarters expressed fears there might be attempts to unload abnormally high-priced American stocks on French investors.

R. L. Anderson Is Indorsed as Va. Party Head

Duval Rival Wins Approval of Augusta Young Democrat Club.

By the Associated Press.

Staunton, Va., Aug. 5.—Robert Lane Anderson, of Marion, had the indorsement of the Augusta County Young Democrats today in his campaign for president of the State organization.

The club instructed its delegation to vote for Mr. Anderson in his race against John T. Duval, of Gloucester, at the State convention in Richmond, August 25-26. The club also expressed opposition to a third term for President Roosevelt.

At a recent meeting, the Young Democratic Club of Carroll County also indorsed Anderson for president.

The Augusta Club adopted a resolution, pointing out that "It has been proposed" that President Roosevelt seek a third term and declaring that "such an undertaking embodies a violation of the traditional principles of American Government established by its founders and would tend to create dissension, if not an actual split in the ranks of the Democratic Party."

Representative Clifton Woodrum, of the Sixth Virginia District, criticized National Republican Chairman John Hamilton for statements which Woodrum said sought to link present Republican policies with principles advocated by Thomas Jefferson.

The club, in other resolutions, expressed it "highest esteem of Senators Carter Glass and Harry Flood Byrd," commended the present Administration for efforts to promote national prosperity and welfare, and praised Representative Willis Robertson, of the Seventh District.

Virginia Guards To Bivouac Here

The 111th Field Artillery of Virginia National Guard will bivouac on the south Monument Grounds tonight on its way to its annual encampment at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

The regiment, commanded by Col. William H. Sands, of Norfolk, includes 55 officers and approximately 600 men. Largest unit in the regiment is the famed Richmond Howitzers, which forms one battalion, and includes 25 officers and 300 men.

Other units in the regiment are from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News and Fredericksburg. They will converge on Washington to make camp this afternoon. Their training period at the Pennsylvania reservation will end August 20.

8 Persons Drown In Tennessee Flood

Sevierville, Tenn., Aug. 5 (AP).—Eight persons were drowned today when a raging mountain torrent swept away the home of Alfred Ball, 36, farmer, after a heavy downpour.

The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gillen, and Mr. and Mrs. Ball and the latter couple's four children. All the bodies except that of Mrs. Ball were recovered.

2 D. C. Youths Get Eight Years for Va. Camp Holdup

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 5.—George Phillips, 25, Sixth street northwest, Washington, and Charles Everett Coleman, 18 K street northwest, Washington, were sentenced to eight years each in the State Penitentiary today by Circuit Court Judge Frederick W. Coleman after they had pleaded guilty to holding up and robbing the Austin Farm Tourist Camp, 14 miles north of here the night of July 23.

Charles Watts, 19, of C street northwest, Washington, who was arrested with Coleman and Phillips pleaded not guilty and was given trial by jury at his request. The jury failed to reach a verdict late this afternoon and he was released under $2,500 bond until a new trial can be arranged.

Jack Marcom, night manager of the tourist camp restaurant, was robbed of $28. The holdup men made their getaway in a wrecking truck. The three were arrested here.

Assembly to Dedicate Tabernacle Tomorrow

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 5.—The highlight of Sunday's program at the Piedmont District Assembly, at Gordonsville, which opened ten days ago, will be the dedication of a new tabernacle on the assembly grounds, to replace one which was burned in June. The dedication sermon will be preached by Dr. W. H. Book, of Orlando, Fla., who presided at the dedication of the original tabernacle 41 years ago.

Motorist Fined in Death Of Running Board Rider

Hagerstown, Aug. 5.—Walter R. Bowers, 35, driver of the car on the running board of which John Rohrer, 28, was riding when the machine sideswiped a pole killing Rohrer, was fined $50 on a reckless driving charge. A coroner's jury found Bowers negligent in permitting Rohrer to ride on the running board.

Gov. Leche Aids Strike With Food

Hammond, La., Aug. 5 (AP).—Richard W. Leche poured coffee and served sandwiches to strike pickets today from the soup kitchen he built for strikers at the Hammond Box Factory.

Leche said the box company employes work 10 or 12 hours a day and receive "the miserable starvation wage of 10, 12½ and 15 cents an hour." The strike spread today to the Roseland Manufacturing Co.

Justice Employe Sees Robber Loot His Pants of $81

Edward S. Deiss, 1734 Q street northwest, an employe of the Department of Justice, awoke early yesterday morning just in time to see a stranger going through his pants pockets, but was unable to catch the intruder as he dashed away with his wallet containing $81.

Deiss told police he first thought the man was a roomer at the Q street address, and asked "what's up." When he mumbled something about being in the wrong room, Deiss said he grabbed at the thief, but was unable to hold him.

He was described as about 25 years, 5 feet 10 inches tall and wearing a polo shirt, brown pants and glasses.

County G. O. P. to Back Robertson for House

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 5.—Frederick County delegates to the Seventh District convention of the Republicans, slated for Saturday at Harrisonburg, Va., will be instructed to oppose offering a nominee to combat A. Willis Robertson, Democratic incumbent in the House, it was stated today by local leaders.

They said Robertson's record against the New Deal has been so courageous they do not see the necessity of offering opposition to his re-election.

Hyattsville Youth Wins Legion Medal At Ft. Hoyle Camp

Walter C. Meredith, 18, of Hyattsville, will be one of two student soldiers at Fort Hoyle to receive medals Wednesday from citizen soldiers of the World War. The medals are given to students making best records at the Fort Hoyle Citizens' Military Training Camp.

A graduate of high school, where he played basebal and studied dramatics, Meredith wants to get into motion pictures. He will step from ranks at a formal ceremony to receive the Maryland American Legion Medal for the Maryland trainee whose individual record showed the highest all-around rating.

Clyde D. Boden, jr., 17, of Shamokin, Pa., was awarded the Veterans of Foreign Wars Medal for top-ranking basic student. Son of a former V. F. W. post official at Shamokin, Boden is in his first year at a C. M. T. C. camp.

13 Youths Seized In 50 Burglaries And Auto Thefts

Fifty cases of housebreaking and thefts from parked automobiles were believed solved yesterday with the arrest of 13 boys, members of a juvenile crime gang. They range in age from 12 to 16 years.

According to police, the boys' adventure into crime netted them about $2,500 in loot.

Police said that the boys used the money for trips to amusement resorts. They gave some of the jewelry to their girl friends. One burglary at the Boulevard Apartments, 2121 New York avenue northwest, netted them about $400 in jewels, police said.

Martin's Faction In Union Divides

Detroit, Aug. 5 (AP).—Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers' Union whose suspension of four vice presidents brought into the open a split in the ranks, appeared threatened tonight with a rift in the faction that had remained loyal to him.

First indication of further troubles in the strife-laden union became apparent in the discharge of all the union's PWA organizers by Fred C. Pieper, UAW finance chairman, in Martin's absence, and on the eve of the international executive board's decision in its trial of the four suspended officers.

Massanetta Pageant Finally Is Presented

Massanetta Springs, Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—After three postponements on account of rain, the first performance of the historical pageant, "Massanetta Mirrors," was given tonight, before a large audience of Lutherans, here for their summer assembly, and nearby valley citizens.

Colorado Voters Given Mail Registry Advice

Colorado voters are being notified by the Democratic Absentee Voters Bureau that they may register by mail in Denver on August 17 and August 23 if they have relatives, friends or registered voters from the same Colorado address who will present their affidavits to the board of registry.

They may register by mail outside of Denver between August 23 and August 28.

Seamen Strike Today On Canadian Lake Line

Montreal, Aug. 5 (U.P.).—The Canadian Seamen's Union tonight ordered the crews of Canadian Steamship Lines vessels to go on strike at noon tomorrow.

Canadian Steamship Lines operate one of the largest Canadian fleets on the Great Lakes, owning more than 50 bulk and package freighters. Several hundred seamen are affected by the strike order.

5 Danger Spots On Route 40 to Be Eliminated

Work Starts on Relocating 'Death Curve' Scene of 20 Fatal Crashes.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Aug. 5.—Five danger spots on the National Highway (Route 40) between Hancock, west of here, and Boonsboro, to the east, will have been eliminated early in September, the State roads commission announced.

Work was started this week in relocating the highway at "Death Curve," scene of a score of fatal accidents within the last ten years. The curve is located 5 miles east of Hagerstown. One of the old landmarks, "Halfway House," is being moved across the highway to make room for the new road.

The new steel bridge across Licking Creek, 18 miles west of here, has been finished and with the completion of approaches will be opened later in August. This improvement cost approximately $150,000 and will eliminate the possibility of the highway at this point being blocked by flood waters as it was in 1936 and 1937. The highway at this point is being relocated to eliminate a hazardous hill and two curves.

A section of the highway from Huyetts crossroads east toward Hagerstown, a distance of 1.13 miles, was completed Monday. One lane of the concrete highway is now open and the other will be opened in ten days. A number of hills were cut down at this point.

The highway at St. Paul's Church, near Clearspring, is being relocated. Two houses have been moved to make room for the new concrete section of the road, which will eliminate two sharp curves and a hill that has been the scene of numerous accidents in slippery weather. Another hill is being cut down and a new section of highway built at Shady Bower, near Clearspring.

Organizing Ban Laid To Md. WPA Official

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—Leaders of the Western Maryland Industrial Unions Council complained to WPA officials here today a supervisor for the WPA sewing project here told workers she wanted to hear no talk of organization among them.

Clyde D. Lucas, C. I. O. leader, stated that Mrs. Margaret Wilson, the sewing supervisor, told the women workers the C. I. O. would get them nothing and that it was because of the C. I. O. that many of them were without jobs.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

Bob Burns

Says—

Some people always seem to know jest what to say and do in any situation and some folks don't ever seem to be able to get the knack. I suppose it's that born knack that makes salesmen and diplomats. That's why I admire my Uncle Skinny Flint. He always knows the right answer.

He rented a house to a fella one time and a few days later his tenant came to him and says "Skinny, that place is the draughtiest place I've ever lived in. When I sit in the dining room, my hair blows down all over my face. Can't you do somethin' about it?" Quick as a flash, Uncle Skinny said "Wéll, I'll tell you, brother—I ain't no barber. But I'll take a shot at cuttin' your hair."

Road Surfacing Moves Rapidly For Lyon Park

Glencarlyn Area Is Next on Arlington County's Budget Program.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier yesterday reported that work of resurfacing county roads in Lyon Park area by the James Gibbons Co., of Baltimore, is progressing rapidly. After this work is completed next week, Kinnier said, roads in the Glencaryln section will be resurfaced.

He said the work is in accordance with this year's budget, which calls for surfacing treating and resurfacing a number of streets in the county.

Preliminary discussion of plans for a schoolboy patrol system for Arlington County was held yesterday at a meeting at the District Auto Club.

Arthur H. Surprise, executive director, and Mrs. Russell B. Clapper, chairman of the committee on school and child safety of the new Arlington County Safety Council, met with Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the Auto Club, and Richard M. Ham, director of safety of the American Automobile Association.

A program for presentation to the safety council will be prepared by Mrs. Clapper's committee, and at that time a plan of action will be completed.

Bids will be opened next week for repainting inside and out all county health centers, Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, announced yesterday.

Dr. Beachley said in the future all tuberculär clinics will be conducted at Cherrydale Health Center. He said the Health Center has been equipped with a complete X-ray and fluoroscope outfit by the county Tuberculosis Association, of which Mrs. E. C. Butterfield is president.

Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, will speak Monday night at the meeting of the Young Democratic Club at Lee Tavern, on Glebe road, at 8 o'clock. Dr. Beachley will speak on "Social Hygiene Program."

Appointment of the second vice president will be announced and plans discussed for the State convention to be held at Richmond August 26 and 27. Delegates to the convention will be named.

A court of honor and review for Arlington County Boy Scouts will be held tonight in the Chapel at Fort Myer. Troop 105 will act as host.

Arlington chapter, Women of The Moose, holds its monthly meeting Monday night at the Lyon Park Community House. Following a short business session there will be a rehearsal by the ritualistic committee in preparation for an initiation.

Carol F. Winchester, business manager of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce, yesterday announced the executive committee has accepted the invitation of George P. Marshall, president of Pro-Football, Inc., to participate in the ceremonies in the Intra-squad ball game at Ballston stadium, August 21. Marshall's team, the Washington Redskins, has been tendered use of the Ballston stadium for pre-season training.

Paroles Are Asked By 26, Including Death Car Driver

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—Parole Commissioner J. Cookman Boyd will hear next Wednesday the parole application of John E. Kelley, Baltimorean, serving a year for manslaughter in the traffic death of a Baltimore patrolman.

Kelly's application is one of 26 to be heard Wednesday. Others seeking parole include:

Raymond Carr, colored, sentenced in June, 1937, in Anne Arundel County to three years for robbery.

Lloyd Conrad, sentenced in Allegany County in October, 1936, to five years for assault with intent to rape.

Vernon Creek, colored, sentenced in Prince Georges County in May, 1937, to two years for attempted arson.

Thomas Dixon, colored, sentenced in Charles County in May, 1935, to five years for manslaughter.

Luther Gray, colored, sentenced in Anne Arundel County in February, 1938, to a year for larceny.

Alfred Henson, sentenced in Washington County in February, 1938, to a year for larceny.

James H. Lyons, sentenced in Prince Georges County in November, 1935, to four years for storebreaking and receiving stolen goods.

Lawrence Moore, colored, sentenced in Montgomery County in September, 1937, to two years for assault to murder.

Willard Saylor, sentenced in Frederick in October, 1937, to two years for larceny.

Citizen Soldiers Plan Show Today At Fort Meade

Some 2,850 citizen soldiers will put on a show at the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Meade, Md., today in honor of visitors, Maj. Gen. Kelly Parsons, commander of the Third Corps Area, and of Maj. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, adjutant general of Pennsylvania.

The young student soldiers—they call them "trainees"—will end their encampment with a review and with presentation of prizes. The program begins about 1 p. m. The camp, the largest of its kind in the United States, includes about 150 boys from the District.

Among the Washingtonians who will receive prizes today are Albertus N. Schroeder, jr., of 2536 Eleventh street northwest, winner of the National Patriotic Council Medal for an essay on the value of military training; Alexander J. Davis, of 4207 Chesapeake street northwest; Lawrence A. Westcott, of 1082 Bay street southeast, and William H. Pindell, of 1437 Monroe street northwest, all winners of Military Training Camps Association Medals for all-around excellence; Arthur Fields, of 1650 Fuller street northwest, and Robert Russell, of 1736 Eighteenth street northwest, winners of citizenship medals from the Civitan Club of Baltimore.

Tell of Tear Gas Attack on Pickets

Harris & Ewing.

Mrs. Erba Krepechiak (left) and Mrs. Stella Krin, wives of Youngstown steel workers, yesterday told the Senate Civil Liberties Committee in halting English how they were driven from a steel strike picket line by police using tear gas. They were sitting across from the Republic steel plant, they told the committee, when Capt. Charles Richmond, of the Youngstown police force, warned them three times to move and then resorted to gas.

Camp Ritchie Seems Comfy To Engineers

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 5.—District Guardsmen of the 121st Engineers have completely settled down in their new surroundings here and started into their field training in earnest.

Companies A, B and C this morning trained their men in erection of different types of bridges while the map section of Headquarters and service company was surveying and laying out areas for battalion and regimental parades.

Company A of the 372d Infantry defeated the Baltimore infantry company in a combat firing problem which consisted of 500-yard range firing for marksmanship. They outshot their opponents by a score of 82 to 69. The second platoon, commanded by Second Lieut. Sylvester Blackwell, was judged to be the best shots.

Sergt. Rheinbold Leaves.

First Sergt. George A. Rheinbold, of E Company, Enginers, who is also chief of the Cottage City Volunteer Fire Department, is taking leave of his company tonight to attend a banquet of the Frederick Company Volunteer Firemen's Association. Sergt. Rheinbold was invited to attend as a special guest of the Thurmont Fire Company, near the camp.

Most of the engineers say they are highly pleased to be away from the temporary encampment at Washington. Private Everett Rose, of the band, says "Camp Ritchie feels like home."

The band, infantry and quartermaster organizations have been exerting themselves today in preparation for Federal inspection tomorrow by Maj. George A. Miller, of the Regular Army.

Turning from their duties of furnishing transportation to the regiment, a detachment of the Quartermaster Company pinch-hit for the Signals Corps and installed field telephones from the company area to the motor park and tent of the 104th Battalion adjutant. In all, the men hooked up telephone lines over a mile long. As a consequence, truck dispatching service has increased to the highest degree of speed, according to officers.

Bandsmen Go Jitterbug.

Rowdy sounds coming from the Engineer area in the evenings have proven to be none other than the band's "hot-cha" orchestra. Everett Rose, Curtis McConnell, Frank Moran and Walter Heber have banded together to entertain their tentmates with other than military music. They are scheduled to give a concert in Hagerstown tonight.

Approximately 400 Guardsmen of the 104th Medical Regiment, commanded by Col. George Vinup, Medical Corps, will arrive in camp Saturday, according to their advanced details already here.

The regiment will consist of headquarters and service, hospital, collecting and ambulance companies, all from Maryland and Virginia.

Pa. Legislature And Jury Await Ruling by Judge

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP).—A week-end truce was declared today in the fight between the Legislature and the judiciary for the right to investigate campaign charges against Gov. George H. Earle and 13 associates.

Judge Paul N. Schaeffer expected to have ready by Monday his decision on the constitutionality of recently enacted laws to suspend the Dauphin County grand jury inquiry.

If he rules the acts constitutional, the jury investigation, scheduled to start Monday, will be halted.

Should he rule them invalid, Attorney General Guy K. Bard said he would immediately appeal.

Prince Georges Holds Fete for Sasscer Today

Democrats Will Honor 'Favorite' Son' With Field Program.

Prince Georges voters will hold a field day for their "favorite son" candidate for Maryland gubernatorial nomination, State Senate President Lansdale G. Sasscer, at the Capital Airport, near Bladensburg, today.

Senator Sasscer, a resident of Upper Marlboro and leader of the county's Democratic organization, will speak at 7 p. m., climaxing a program which starts at 3 o'clock.

Entertainment features will include two parachute jumps, boxing bouts, a baseball game, and fireworks displays.

The boxing will consist of four bouts between members of the Seat Pleasant unit of the County Police Boys Club team and representatives of Colmar Manor Legion team. Marty Gallagher, former Washington heavyweight, will referee.

The Landover A. C. and the Southern Maryland Democratic Club nine will meet in the baseball game.

The program also will include novelty contests, such as peanut races, fat men's and women's races, and three-legged dashes. There will be no admission charge, but proceeds from the refreshment stands will be used to aid Senator Sasscer's campaign chest.

Farm Bureau representatives from the five Southern Maryland counties will meet today in the courthouse at Upper Marlboro to try to discover why tobacco growers, who received 25 cents a pound for their crop last year on the Baltimore market, are receiving only 14 cents this year.

W. R. C. Connick, president of the Prince Georges Farm Bureau, said there had been rumors among the growers of an agreement between the buyers to keep down the price of the crop. He added, however, there was no concrete evidence of any such agreement.

The five counties to be represented are Prince Georges, Calvert, Anne Arundel, Charles and St. Mary's.

The annual carnival and picnic of the White Marsh Church, one of the oldest in Maryland, will be held today.

The church was built about 1745. Fire destroyed the interior in 1854, but it was rebuilt on the same stone walls. White Marsh was the scene of the convocation of Catholic clergy, at which John Carroll was nominated as first bishop in America.

A 4-foot block of wood crashed through a window into the bedroom of Mrs. Ada Clark, 302 Wells avenue, Edmonston, Md., when a tree across the street was struck by lightning in the heavy thunderstorm early yesterday. Mrs. Clark, asleep at the time, was unhurt.

Jefferson Davis, Washington newspaper photographer and brother of Mrs. Clark, was also in the house. He said two cellar windows, one in a door and another in the living room, were broken by the concussion. Part of a tree limb also tore a hole in the roof of the house.

Bail Set at $5,000 For Asylum Aides On Killing Charge

Baltimore, Aug. 5 (AP).—Bail for three Spring Grove Hospital attendants charged with the murder of Henry Baumgartner, a patient, was set at $5,000 each by Circuit Judge William H. Lawrence at Towson.

The three, Elmer Albert Loveridge, 32; Oliver G. Corkran, 21, and Donald W. Walter, 24, previously had been held without bail pending action of the fall grand jury.

Baumgartner died July 23 of peritonitis allegedly resulting from a rupture of the lower intestine. The guards were held for the grand jury by Magistrate John W. Loeber on charges of "feloniously and wilfully murdering" Baumgartner by beating him.

Zook Doubts Bulk of G.O.P. For Coughlan

Ex-Montgomery Club Head Strikes at Action of Takoma Group.

D. W. Zook, of Takoma Park, former president of the Young Republican Club of Montgomery County and active in Republican affairs, yesterday said he doubted that the action of the recently organized Takoma Park Republican Club, in indorsing the candidacy of Paul M. Coughlan as commissioner in the forthcoming primary, represents the sentiments of the majority of Republican workers and voters in Takoma Park.

Zook said, "Press reports of a meeting of a so-called Takoma Park Republican Club, at which certain candidates were indorsed for nomination in the September 12 primary election, came as a surprise to most Republicans in Takoma Park. Invitations to the meeting apparently were closely guarded and confined chiefly to persons now holding county jobs or otherwise receiving patronage. It is not customary for clubs assuming to represent the voters of a party to indorse candidates or take any part in primary elections. This club should properly be called the Coughlan for Commissioner Club."

Zook said the action of this club, in all likelihood, would act as a boomerang against the candidates indorsed, particularly Coughlan.

"Indorsement of Coughlan by a group of persons enjoying patronage will have the effect of raising a doubt in the minds of the voters, and of centering attention upon the superior qualifications of his opponent, Judge Herman C. Heffner.

"Judge Heffner, long active in welfare and civic effairs in Montgomery County, and well qualified by long business experience to be a commissioner, is known personally to practically every voter in Takoma Park. He needs no indorsement from the handful of patronage recipients who compose the new club," Zook said

Program Announced.

The Montgomery County board of education will launch a $436,489 school building program, with the assistance of a $196,420.05 PWA grant announced yesterday.

Official announcement of the Montgomery County grant came from Acting PWA Administrator Howard A. Gray, but Representative David J. Lewis, advised in advance, had made it known earlier.

A new one-story and part basement elementary school building on Massachusetts avenue extended.

A one-story and part basement elementary school building connecting passageway and alterations to the present school at Gaithersburg.

New one-story and basement, fireproof, elementary school at Poolesville, reconditioning of old building and new sewage disposal system.

One-story additions to the school buildings at Sandy Spring and Damascus.

New one-story buildings at Laytonsville, Sellman and Wheaton. These projects also will include necessary sewerage facilities and landscaping.

Slate Selected.

The Independent Democratic faction's slate of candidates for the Montgomery County primary was complete yesterday with the exception of five places.

Sixteen candidates were indorsed by the group at a meeting Thursday night, Eugene B. Casey, chairman, announced.

William W. Evans, Chevy Chase, Md., attorney who announced several weeks ago for State's attorney, was indorsed by the group. Francis O. Day, of Potomac, who announced recently for sheriff, also was voted support.

Four candidates for the House of Delegates were indorsed. They are Mrs. Marguerite Fischer, of Chevy Chase, president of the Women's Democratic Clubs of Montgomery County; Mayor Douglas Blandford, of Rockville; Lauman Faulconer, of Silver Spring, and Owen Ryan, of Bethesda, past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Walter M. Magruder, of Gaithersburg, who is seeking reelection, was indorsed by the faction a month ago.

For register of wills, the Independent faction announced it would support Edmund Codwise, of Laytonsville. Mrs. Bessie H. Guerry, of Takoma Park, and Edgar Roby, of Silver Spring, were indorsed for judges of the orphans' court.

The faction's slate for State central committee includes Harry Hoskinson, of Germantown, former vice president of the Sanitary Grocery Co.; Joseph Bowie, of Chevy Chase; William Fitzgerald, Bethesda; Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Takoma Park; Lawson King, Gaithersburg, and Joseph Miller, Colesville.

Joseph N. Starkey, Rockville, was indorsed for county surveyor, an office which he held several years ago.

As yet no candidates have been announced for circuit court judge, State Senator, county treasurer, clerk to the circuit court and one place on the orphans court bench.

Casey said candidates had been indorsed for county treasurer and State Senator, but that they would not be announced until later.

The faction has experienced some difficulty in finding a candidate for circuit court judge, but a selection will be made shortly, Casey said.

The group last week began circulation of a petition among the voters of the county asking Albert Bouic, Rockville attorney, to undertake the race.

Kamens Again Heads Cumberland C. of C.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 5.—Benjamin M. Kamens was re-elected president of the Chamber of Commerce for the fourth term at a meeting of directors yesterday. Other officers are:

Charles L. Kopp, first vice president; Henry W. Price, second vice president, and Douglas R. Bowie, third vice president; W. Russell Brewer, treasurer, H. W. Smith was renamed secretary last month.

Fairfax Board Fails to Act on School Buses

Refuses Requests for Route Changes at This Time.

The Fairfax County school board yesterday voted to leave the county school bus routes as they were when schools closed last spring. No adjustments or extensions will be made in the routes until after school opens in September and actual conditions ascertained by school officials.

The action was taken yesterday when the board was faced with a number of requests from various sections of the county.

The board refused the petition of residents in the Idylwood community asking that the old school which has been closed for several years be reconditioned and reopened for small children. At present these children are transported over the auto-railer line to the Vienna school. The petition was refused because a new school will be erected at Dunn Loring in the fall of 1939 which will take care of the pupils of the Idylwood-Dunn Loring-Merrifield section of the county.

It was voted to cancel the application for a $10,000 State literary loan for the erection of two additional classrooms at Groveton and to file a new application for an additional loan of $10,000 to be used at the Fairfax High School. The county board of supervisors Wednesday approved this action which clears the way for the $375,000 school building program in the county which is being financed by a PWA grant of $169,000 and State literary loans.

Janitors of the various county schools and bus drivers on the different county owned school buses were appointed for the 1938-39 school year.

The Board of Christian Education of the Falls Church Southern Methodist Church will meet at 7 p. m. and the board of stewards at 8 p. m. Tuesday in the parsonage preparatory to the fourth quarterly conference of the Falls Church, Merrifield and Dunn Loring churches, to be held Wednesday in Falls Church. This will be the business meeting with reports of all officials and organizations preparatory to the start of the new conference year October 1.

County Agricultural Agent Joseph E. Beard, of Fairfax, states that crop insurance will be offered to Fairfax County wheat growers to cover seedings of wheat made in the fall of 1938 which will be harvested in 1939.

Farmers taking out this insurance will be expected to co-operate with the AAA soil conservation program. The insurance which covers losses from drought, hail, windstorm and fire before threshing, is issued at a low premium rate which is within easy reach of all wheat growers.

A meeting will be held of all wheat growers in Fairfax County at the courthouse Thursday at 8 p. m. for the purpose of explaining crop insurance to all persons interested.

W. H. Evans, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington, will address the meeting and answer any questions concerning the crop insurance plan.

Harvey G. Rice, of Lorton, was named first vice commander; Marshall E. Davis, of Lorton, second vice commander; C. W. Shaver, of Woodbridge, adjutant; E. E. Payne, of Occoquan, finance officer; Kyle Davis, of Ox road, service officer; C. W. McInturff, of Lorton, chaplain, and Marion Beach, of Lorton, sergeant-at-arms.

Jennings to Lead Police Boys Club

Sponsors of the newly organized Prince Georges County Police Boys Club last night elected Col. William T. Jennings, Hyattsville councilman, as club chairman. The meeting was held in Hyattsville.

M. H. Brown, of Hyattsville, was elected secertary and temporary chairman of the organization, while Officer Louis J. Mackell, of the county police force, and the mayors of nine incorporated townships in the county were named to the board of directors.

The group of citizens and police officers will hold another meeting on Wednesday to plan a drive for funds and to consider sites for a clubhouse.

Tommy Dorsey Ill With Diphtheria

Hollywood, Aug. 5 (AP).—Tommy Dorsey, swing band leader, was quarantined today in a Hollywood hotel after physicians diagnosed a throat infection as diphtheria. Doctors said he would be confined to his room "for observation" for at least a week.

45,000 Bass Released In Western Md. Waters

Lewistown, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—Approximately 45,000 fingerling small mouth bass have been distributed in western Maryland streams during the past few weeks, officials of the State Fish Hatchery here said today.

Earlier in the season, the hatchery placed approximately 150,000 large mouth bass in streams. Washington County received approximately 4,000 of the latest distribution, Allegany County 7,000 and Garrett County 3,000.

Faustman Sued in Reno.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 5.—Divorce suits filed here yesterday included Edith Marland Faustman against Edward Henry Faustman, of Washington, on the grounds of cruelty. The Faustmans were married in Washington in 1920.

Roosevelt to Try Bahamas' Fishing; Quits Canal Zone

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Aug 5 (U.P.). President Roosevelt, his Pacific vacation cruise over, tonight sailed for home via the Bahamas after urging construction of additional highways in the Canal Zone and the adjoining Republic of Panama as a defense measure for the canal.

Former Soldier Sends U. S. $50 For Stolen Duds

Maj. Gen. Emory S. Adams, adjutant general of the Army, has received a $50 bill from a conscious-stricken former soldier in payment for clothing pilfered from the service, the War Department said yesterday.

Accompanying the money was a note stating that the money would pay for articles stolen over a period of nine years. It concluded by saying, "The U. S. A. has been very good to me and I humbly ask your forgiveness."

Officials said the money from the anonymous former soldier would be turned over to the Treasury Department for inclusion in the "Conscience Fund."

Curran Faction Keeps Control of Sea Union

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The administration of Joseph Curran of the National Maritime Union (CIO), described by its opponents as left-wing, retained control of a bare majority of union offices in an election ratified tonight, winning five posts and losing four. Curran himself was not opposed for president, nor was Ferdinand Smith for vice president.

Submarket Stock Sales Profit Held Free From Taxes

By the Associated Press.

An employe of a corporation may purchase its stock at submarket prices without paying an income tax on the implied profit, under a ruling yesterday by the Board of Tax Appeals.

Delbert B. Geeseman, of Houston, Pa., appealed against a tax deficiency claim for $6,349.77. The Internal Revenue Bureau contended the Continental Can Co. paid Geeseman $26,690 additional salary in 1933 by selling him 640 shares of stock with a market value of $45,890 for $19,200. Geeseman maintained the stock transaction did not constitute salary, but was merely an added inducement to retain his services.

Coal Group Fights Fuel Oil Imports

By the Associated Press.

The National Coal Association told tariff experts yesterday importation of fuel oil ought to be stopped, to halt "irreparable injury" to the bituminous coal industry.

The greater part of fuel oil imports, the association declared in a brief filed with the Committee for Reciprocity Information, comes from Venezuela or the Dutch West Indies.

Georgia Voters Reminded.

Georgia voters are reminded by the Democratic Absentee Voters Bureau that they may vote by mail in the primary election on September 14 if they have registered and paid their poll tax before May 8. Applications for absentee ballots must reach the county registrar by August 14.

Sales Boosters Address Rally In Alexandria

John W. Howard, manager Northern Virginia Division, Virginia Public Service Co., presided over the mass meeting last night in the interest of a sales campaign to boost business conditions in Alexandria. The movement is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Retail Merchants Association. The meeting was held in the George Washington High School.

Short talks were made by David C. Book, president, and Martin E. Greene, business manager of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, and Robert E. Knight, president of the Retail Merchants Association.

The meeting was preceded by an automobile parade up King street to West and thence to the school building, starting from the city hall.

Hugh Fleming, jr., of the United States Forestry Service, spoke at the meeting of Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, last night in Gadsby's Tavern. His talk was on "Forest Conservation." Comdr. Herbert A. Cady presided.

Final plans for the attendance of the delegates to the department convention in Charlottesville August 14-17 were made, also plans to entertain legionnaires of the Eighth District at a crab dinner Tuesday in Gadsby's Tavern.

Miss Annie Frantum, 67, widow of James Frantum, died Thursday evening in a Washington hospital. She is survived by two sons, Clarence and William Campbell. The funeral will be held Monday at 11 a. m. from her home, 707 Pendleton street, conducted by the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Baptist Temple, and burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery.

The funeral of James French Jones, 50, who was killed Thursday when he missed his footing in attempting to board a moving train, will be held at 4 p. m. today from the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Woolls, 506 south Henry street. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, and burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Celanese, Union Heads To Meet Again Monday

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 5 (AP).—Celanese plant and textile union officials negotiating for a contract to cover employes at the large artificial silk plant near here will meet again Monday.

The negotiators are seeking to formulate an agreement replacing the one that expired August 1. The conferees adjourned their last meeting without any comment.
